HOOVER SEEN AS PRINCIPAL IN TARIFF TILT

FIGHT TO BE WAGED ON FLEXIBLE RATES

EXECUTIVE'S COURSE PROVOKES REGULARS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

There were indications yesterday that the Democratic-progressive coalition was so shaping its fight on the flexible provisions of the tariff as to make it an out-and-out issue between the Senate and the President, instead of between the Senate groups.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking minority leader on the Senate finance committee, submitted his proposal which would repeal the flexible provisions, but which would instead make it possible for Congress to act from time to time on single commodities and without opening up the entire tariff bill.

The Tariff Commission, under the terms of this proposal, remaining constituted as at present, would make investigations upon its own initiative or upon petition, make its report to the President, who would in turn send it to Congress, with or without a recommendation.

Congress Would Benefit.

In other words, individual industries or petitioners could continue to get relief as at present, except that they would get it at the hands of Congress. The effect of the change would be simply to give the political weapon, such as the tariff is, back to Congress.

As indicative of how this proposal, not the form originally intended by the coalition, may upset the balance there is the statement of Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts, made just after he had concluded a vigorous defense of the President's intervention in the flexible provision fight.

Senator Norris, insurgent leader, outlined just such an idea as that contained in the Simmons proposal.

"I am inclined to acquiesce to that suggestion, Gillett said. "I am in favor of keeping the power in Congress if results can be produced."

Reed's Stand Uncertain.

And it would seem that there would be uncertainty about the regularity of Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, on the proposal, because he expressed himself some time ago as against delegating the tariff power to the President.

There is no doubt that the President's intervention has caused some resentment among the regulars. They had not been overly enthusiastic about the flexible provisions in the first place, and this is probably what caused the President to act.

As the situation stacked up before his action there was no doubt that the regulars all intended to speak in behalf of and to vote for retention of the flexible provisions, but their greater concern was to get the matter disposed of in order that they could get down to votes on the rates.

Resistance Is Stiffened.

The first effect of the President's statement was to stiffen their resistance, of course. There was a rather general feeling that the President should not have said anything, and, of course, it gave them no appetite for him to have acted without consulting any of them, thus laying them wide open to the taunts of the Democrats.

It is significant that Senator Watson, the Republican leader, has not been one of those to rise to Mr. Hoover's defense. Even Senator Fess, who did defend him yesterday, was less enthusiastic than he has perhaps ever been before. He said very frankly, in fact, that had he been consulted he would have advised against the President's action. Inasmuch as the President had spoken, however, he said, there was no doubt as to his right to do so and then Fess-wise, he warned that the country would side with the President, too.

Issue Is Defined.

But the coalition has been quick to take advantage of the position in which the President rightly or wrongly placed himself, that of being interested only in that part of the tariff bill that affected his power. And they have moved to make it a fight between the Senate and the President. To what extent they will be successful remains to be seen. The Gillett sympton was a bad sign from the President's viewpoint.

The coalition hope, particularly, is that the new form of their proposal

Vital Issue Masked By Deceit in Auto Insurance Measure

Post to Present Series of Articles Dealing With Pros and Cons of Three Broad Attacks on Problem With Purpose of Blowing Away Elaborate Smoke Screens.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Public protection, the issue flung before Washington street users in the bitterly assailed bill for so-called financial responsibility for motorists, is one that the National Capital, along with the rest of the Nation, eventually will have to face once it is rid of all deceit and questionable motives. Debunked as to the method proposed and the motive exposed in the McLeod bill, the principle is one that unprejudiced authorities recognize as having attained the status of a national problem.

Publication this week in The Post of a series of articles dealing with the inadequacy and deception of the bill sponsored by the American Automobile Association has attracted tremendous interest in the question of compensation for the victims of automobile mishaps. It has acquainted pedestrians and motorists alike, those who get hurt as well as those who hurt, those who must be paid and also those who must pay, with the fact that despite the motives behind its current introduction, the question is one that some time must have a final answer.

Since the enactment in Connecticut three years ago of the Nation's first financial responsibility law and the subsequent adoption of a compulsory automobile liability statute in Massachusetts, the compensation issue, in one form or another, has found its way into the legislatures of virtually two-thirds of the States. In the case of ten, it has gone onto the statute books. In the case of none has it been settled with universal satisfaction.

Far-reaching in its effect, a more difficult problem than at first was apparent, adopted in many cases as a smoke screen for selfish purposes, an abstract subject at best, the prin-

FIRST 1931 BUDGET FIGURES REVEALED

VETERAN EXPENSES GAIN

(Associated Press.)

First budget estimates for 1931 showing that expenditures for the executive and independent establishments totaling $656,571,000 had been approved were made public yesterday at the White House.

This represents a decrease of less than $1,000,000 from 1930, excluding an appropriation for the Federal Farm Board of $161,500,000, which brought the expenditures for the current fiscal year to $808,689,123. The total left available for other independent establishments was $657,189,000.

An excess for the current year over the amount spent in 1929 of approximately $6,000,000 was ascribed to an increase in expenditures of the Veterans' Bureau.

The Budget Bureau did not include the expenses of the Farm Board in its estimates for next year because the board has been unable to determine how much money it will need. It still has approximately $350,000,000 already authorized by Congress, but not yet appropriated.

The independent establishments include 31 commissions, boards and bureaus not attached to any department. Estimates for these were the first approved by the Budget Bureau, which now is preparing the 1931 budget for submission to the next regular session of Congress in December.

Rockville to Demand Parked Cars Lighted

In line with the edict of Mayor J. Roger Spates and the Rockville town council that traffic regulations in the town must be observed, Montgomery county police are conducting a drive against unlighted automobiles parked on the streets at night. Five persons were arrested last night and four Thursday night by County Policeman Windsor Poole.

The town council recently passed an ordinance regulating the parking of automobiles on the streets under which the council was empowered by the ordinance to regulate the length of time vehicles could be parked.

NUMBERS OPERATOR DRAWS FINE OF $500

Judge in Maryland Imposes Maximum Amount When Man Pleads Guilty.

15 ARE ASSESSED COSTS

Walter Hall, colored, alleged operator of a numbers game headquarters at Suitland, Md., which was raided September 17 by Prince George County police led by Sheriff Charles S. Early, yesterday pleaded guilty to setting up and maintaining a gaming table before Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Upper Marlboro Branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. Judge Sheriff imposed the maximum fine of $500.

Fifteen other persons arrested at the same time and charged with "playing with a game with a fraudulent device or trick, to wit, by the use of numbers," were released on payment of court costs of $3.50 in each case. The charges were nolle prossed by State's Attorney J. Frank Parran.

Among this latter group was Mrs. Claudine Freeman, wife of Joe Freeman, well known in Washington sporting circles, in whose name the house was listed. Mrs. Freeman was not in the basement where the alleged headquarters was located, but in her kitchen on the first floor of the house.

Those who paid court charges are John Foster, Kermit Gilbert, Maurice Clayton, Harry Goldberg, Alford Scott, Bryant Clark, Edward Jackson, Charles Jacobson, John Smith, Mary Coleman, Dorothy Hill, Alice Montgomery, Margaret Perry and Parthenia Adams, several of whom are colored.

The defendants were represented by former State's Attorney J. Wilson Ryon, who asked for consideration of Hall in view of his not having been charged with a like offense before.

In imposing the fine, Judge Sheriff declared that he was being lenient with Hall in view of this plea, and would not impose a jail sentence. He drew attention to the fact, though, that while gamblers and like persons appeared to shun Montgomery County and Virginia because of the strict watch in those sections, they appeared to believe they could "get away with most anything" in Prince Georges County.

The judge implied that he intended

TORCH SLAYER, FOUND GUILTY, ESCAPES CHAIR

Peacox, Held for Second-Degree Murder, Gets 20 Years to Life.

PRISONER IS CALM AT JURY'S VERDICT

DECISION UPHOLDS INTENTION THEORY

Mother of Convicted Man Weeps Quietly When She Hears Fate.

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 27 (A.P.). Earle Peacox, 21-year-old radio instructor, was convicted tonight of murder in the second degree for killing his wife on the first anniversary of their marriage.

This verdict carries with it a sentence of imprisonment from 20 years to life.

The jury took the case late this afternoon and had been deliberating for more than six hours when it brought in its verdict tonight.

Verdicts Are Outlined.

Peacox's defense had been that he struck his wife on the head with his pistol and choked her to death during a moment of insanity induced by his wife's infidelity and brought to a head by a quarrel on their wedding anniversary when she visited his flat and referred to it as "the same old dump." He admitted that after killing her he put the body in his automobile and drove it to some nearby woods where he hid it and six days later he poured kerosene over it and set it fire.

In charging the jury, Justice Tompkins instructed the jurors that if they believed the temporary insanity defense, they must set the prisoner free, but that if they did not believe it, they should convict him of either first or second degree murder or manslaughter.

By giving him second degree murder they decided that he was sane and that he killed his wife intentionally though without premeditation.

Sentenced at Once.

Peacox waived his right to two days before sentence was imposed, and Justice Tompkins thereupon sentenced him to 20 years to life.

When Peacox was brought into the crowded courtroom to hear his verdict of the twelve men who had decided his fate, he was pale but composed.

He had perfect control of himself.

When the verdict was pronounced by the foreman, a 56-year-old merchant with several children, Peacox showed scarcely a sign of emotion.

As he stood to answer the usual questions about his pedigree, he was directly in front of his elderly mother, weeping quietly in the chair she had occupied during the trial.

As soon as sentence was imposed, Peacox was led back through the courtroom corridor to the cell he had occupied since his arrest last April, after his wife's charred body was found by a passing motorist.

GRAND JURY TO GIVE VERDICT IN M'PHERSON DEATH TODAY UNLESS NEW FACTS APPEAR

CASE IS LEFT OPEN FOR MORE EVIDENCE

Allen Goes Before Body to Tell Person He Thinks Is Murderer.

FURTHER TESTIMONY ON SCREAMS HEARD

Another Neighbor of Girl Relates Disturbance on Fatal Night.

Wearied by four days of intensive investigation, the district grand jury this morning is expected to return a verdict in the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, who two weeks ago today was found strangled with a pajama cord in her apartment in the Park Lane Apartments.

The grand jury is expected to return one of three verdicts: An indictment naming the person who may have killed the young woman; a decision that she met death at the hands of an unknown person, or that she committed suicide.

The grand jury, it was learned last night, has not reached a verdict, as first reported, and has left the case open to the further presentation of new evidence this morning, if any is forthcoming.

Robert J. Allen, suspended policeman of the Third Precinct, whose theory that Mrs. McPherson was murdered caused the inquiry, made his long anticipated appearance before the grand jury late yesterday afternoon. Allen had announced that at the conclusion of taking testimony he would name the person he suspects of having slain Mrs. McPherson.

Silent on Leaving Room.

Allen is understood to have carried out his promise. Upon leaving the grand jury he refused to discuss the details of his climactic testimony, explaining that grand jury regulations prevented him from speaking. Allen, however, boldly reiterated his claim that the young woman was murdered, and expressed confidence that an indictment would be returned.

It was at first reported that Allen's testimony would lead the grand jury to summon a new mystery witness. After a half hour's deliberation, however, announcement was made that the grand jury had completed the gathering of evidence.

Further testimony that screams were heard in the Park Lane Apartments on the night Mrs. McPherson met her death is understood to have been presented by Mrs. Ethel Schuttler, a resident of the Park Lane and occupant of an apartment near that occupied by Mrs. McPherson.

Evidence Is Corroborated.

Mrs Schuttler, according to members of the homicide squad told them Thursday night that she had heard screams. She was immediately subpenaed.

Mrs Schuttler's reported evidence corroborated that given by Mrs. Roy Heavrin, another resident of the Park Lane Eugene R. Weisbender another resident of the Park Lane who occupied an apartment directly across the corridor from that in which Mrs. McPherson lived, told reporters yesterday that he sleeps with the door of his apartment slightly ajar and that he sleeps lightly. He said that on the night Mrs. McPherson died he heard no sounds, and added that if there had been screams he is sure they would have disturbed him.

A strong witness for Allen and the murder theory was E. Ruffle Vass, a resident of the Lombardy Apartments, adjoining the Park Lane. Vass apartment is directly opposite the McPherson apartment. It was learned from

ROTHSTEIN MURDER TRIAL IS SPEEDED

LAGUARDIA HITS JUDGE

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The ghost of Arnold Rothstein, which has haunted New York politics for months, today hastened the trial of George McManus, accused of killing his one-time friend and gambler associate.

After standing for weeks the fire of political opponents for failure of police and his office to solve the murder last November, District Attorney Joab H. Banton today said he would move Monday for the selection of a special jury panel for the trial, and would open the prosecution as soon afterward as possible.

"We are in the midst of a political campaign, Banton said, "and the Rothstein case has been made the subject of public clamor. An organized effort has been made to persuade the public that there is something mysterious about this case and that sinister influences are at work to block prosecution.

"I believe that the administration of justice is best served when it has the utmost confidence of all of the people * * * I have therefore determined to try McManus at once and satisfy the public that no sinister influences have operated to delay this trial."

The Rothstein case has been a bone of contention within the city government, and a favorite weapon for Republicans in attacking the administration of Mayor James J. Walker, who is seeking reelection in November.

Frederick Coudert, jr., Republican candidate for district attorney, yesterday made public a letter he had sent Banton, asking that official if it was true that several important papers had been stolen from Rothstein's files, which were in the cus-

First Cousins Granted License to Be Married

John W. Sanders, 28 years old, yesterday obtained a license to marry his 34-year-old first cousin, Marie M. Sanders. The bridegroom specified that both reside in Washington, but neglected to give his or his bride's street address.

The ceremony, according to the application for license, was to be performed by the Rev. E. J. Connelly.

Marriages of first cousins are so rare in the District that when Saunders placed his application before the marriage license clerk references had to be made to the legal statutes.

MACDONALD STARTS ON TRIP TO AMERICA

Dawes Speeds Minister on Way; Crowd Gathers at Station.

BOARDS SHIP AT NIGHT

London, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald tonight started on his historic mission to the United States with a parting warm handclasp from United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes to speed him on his way.

Gen. Dawes, meticulously clad in evening dress with a shiny silk hat, elbowed his way through the huge workaday crowd which had gathered at Waterloo Station to cheer "Good Old Man," "Good Old Ramsay." He found the prime minister standing at a Pullman door on the boat train, surrounded by friends, and with his three pretty daughters hovering in the background.

"I am off in the hope of being able to do something to narrow the Atlantic," MacDonald said. He wore an ordinary business suit and fedora hat and appeared quite serious during his leave taking.

As the time neared for the train to depart, Ishbel MacDonald, who alone of the three girls was accompanying her father to the United States, reached from the door of the car and plucked him once or twice by the sleeve, urging him to step aboard. Her flushed face betrayed excitement. Her eyes sparkled in anticipation.

Armless Woman Aviator Killed in Unlicensed Plane

Girl Tumbles Several Thousand Feet to Crash in Texas Cotton Field After Warnings of Commerce Department Were Ignored.

Abilene, Tex., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—An armless woman, who became a flier despite warnings of the Commerce Department, fell to her death near here today in an unlicensed airplane.

The plane, piloted by Miss Josephine Callaghan, wealthy rancher of Encino, Calif., who used a shoulder-high control stick which she manipulated with her stub arms, got out of control at an altitude of several thousand feet and crashed in a cotton field.

A letter in her effects, signed by W. P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, dated August 22 at Washington, said:

"I note that you have one exceedingly serious physical defect, namely that you lack your forearms, and another moderately serious defect, namely, a vision of only 20-70 in each eye.

"These defects are of such a nature that I do not feel justified in granting your request for a waiver. The handicaps and hazards are still there and are particularly liable to cause you to get into difficulties in emergencies."

Other earlier letters from Department of Commerce officials denied her a private license.

Miss Callaghan took up flying about a year ago, and declared it was easier to manage a plane than to ride horseback or drive an automobile. She was an expert at each of these, despite her handicap carried from birth.

Charles F. Dyer, her instructor, said she was more proficient than many men. Miss Callaghan successfully executed loops in her first solo flight, Dyer said today at Los Angeles.

Hoover, on Coming Trip, to Be Present at Dearborn as Wizard Shows How He Discovered Principle of Incandescent Electric Lamp.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover on his forthcoming trip to Detroit will see Thomas A. Edison reenact the experiment which led to the discovery of the principle of the incandescent electric lamp just half a century ago.

The experiment will be enacted at the new Edison laboratory of the Ford factory at Dearborn and will be witnessed also by Henry Ford and other especially invited guests.

Arriving at Detroit early on October 21, the President will ride through the streets of that city en route to Dearborn and will be the guest of Ford at luncheon. In the afternoon he will visit the Edison laboratory and will speak at a banquet at Dearborn at 7:30 o'clock the same evening.

Leaving Detroit late that night, the Chief Executive will arrive in Cincinnati early the next morning, and after riding through the streets of that city he will go to Eben Park to speak at the dedication of a monument commemorating the reopening of the improved Ohio River waterway to navigation.

In midafternoon Hoover and his party will board the river steamer Mississippi and make a trip through some of the new locks on the Ohio. At nightfall the steamer will tie up and resume its voyage the morning of October 23, arriving at Louisville in midafternoon. The President will ride through the city, attend a banquet, speak from the steamer over the radio early in the evening, and leave later that night for Washington, arriving here about noon on October 24.

Then Ball Vanishes.

One morning, it struck him as peculiar that the tennis ball had vanished, he said. Vass observed later, he said, that the morning on which he noticed the ball had disappeared was that following the night on which Mrs. McPherson died.

Dr. Thomas Ballard, of New York, a former friend of Mrs. McPherson, was not required to appear before the grand jury. A member of the homicide squad who interviewed Dr. Ballard in New York said yesterday that the grand jury had expressed itself as satisfied with the affidavits produced, giving a detailed and confirmed account of the doctor's activities during the two weeks preceding the tragedy. Dr. Ballard's affidavits revealed that he last saw Mrs. McPherson in Washington on September 1, and that he returned to New York the same day.

Miss Eleanor Sheppard, friend of Mrs. McPherson, was brought from a sick bed to the grand jury in company of a friend yesterday. She is understood to have told of a telephone conversation with Mrs. McPherson on the fatal night, and Mrs. McPherson's reference to a date with Dr. Ballard early in the month.

Policeman Lawrence Botts was recalled to the grand jury room during the final stages of the hearing. He is supposed to have been with Allen on the night that Allen says he saw a man emerge from the McPherson window.

Relief Disapproved In Chinese Famine

Commission of Red Cross Says Poor Distribution Is Main Cause.

(Associated Press.)

The Red Cross commission to China, which has spent five months studying famine conditions there, in a report to the central committee of the American Red Cross yesterday advised against an appeal to the generosity of the American people.

In the opinion of the commission members, Ernest P. Bicknell, William M. Baxter, jr., and Ernest J. Swift, China should be permitted to work out her own salvation. To extend famine relief under present conditions would retard ultimate recovery, they said.

The extensive report covered chaotic political conditions, held responsible for the famine. It set forth that suffering was due to failure in distribution, rather than to shortage of food.

Stage Celebrity of 50 Years Ago Dies in Dingy Basement Room.

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Lula Leslie, a stage and vaudeville celebrity of 50 years ago, was found dead in a dingy basement apartment today, a victim of gas fumes. A jet was open on the gas stove, but its connection was loose and police believe it had been turned on accidentally.

The aged woman's identity was not established until police searched six trunks in the apartment and found newspaper clippings lauding the skill of Lula Leslie, the dancer.

The clippings revealed that years ago she had starred in "The Black Crook," which recently was revived in Hoboken, N. J., and in the musical extravaganza, "King Cole the Second." Nearly $800 in cash and jewelry valued at from $5,000 to $10,000 also were found.

SOUTHERN CITIES MENACED BY FLOOD

Georgia and South Carolina Report Towns Cut Off by Rainstorm.

RAIL TRAFFIC IS STOPPED

Augusta, Ga., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Torrential rains during the past 24 hours tonight had sent streams in eastern and central Georgia on a rampage that isolated this city and half a dozen or more towns in this section from both rail and highway communications, as the floods swept over the country side. Augusta, a city of 60,000 inhabitants, remained safe behind its new 9-mile levee, however, while the greatest flood in its history flowed past its doors in the Savannah River. The gauge this afternoon showed a stage of nearly 48 feet, with the river still rising slowly and expected to crest at about 47 feet near midnight.

Across the river at Hamburg, S. C., conditions were the reverse, as the currents flowed through the street of the oft-flooded mill town and even over the roofs of some of the houses.

There had been no loss of life, however, as the residents of the South Carolina mill town are accustomed to evacuating before the river when it goes on a rampage, and had reached safety on the ridges before the water became deep enough to do material damage.

Towns Are Cut Off.

Appling, Millen, Wadley and Midville, like Augusta, were cut off from rail and highway communication by rampaging streams that carried away bridges and washed out both railroads and highways. Communication was badly hampered over both highways and railroads through the eastern portion of the State lying near the South Carolina line.

Residents here felt little concern over the high water, as the levee, constructed in 1914-15 at a cost of $2,000,000, was built to stand a stage of 49 feet and 4 inches, and forecasts today were for approximately 46 feet.

It was built to stand a stage of 49 feet and 4 inches. Forecasts today were for approximately 46 feet, more than 5 feet above the record stage of 40 feet 5 inches established in 1928.

Storm Halts Trial.

A murder trial was halted at Appling because of high water that marooned the judge and jury in the courthouse, while the solicitor general was water bound in another section of town. The defendant, Burley Adams, charged with slaying Walter L. Tolbert, a prohibition agent, was in jail in another section of town.

An undetermined number of passengers on a Georgia Railroad train were marooned at Thomson, Ga., where they were being fed in the town and sleeping on the train. Several trains were marooned at other points.

Railroad officials held out no hope of restoring service for 48 hours or more, even though there is no more rain. The Central of Georgia had suspended service between Tenille and Savannah because of washouts and through trains were being detoured.

Food supplies were sent by airplane to a Central of Georgia train marooned near Almira. The Georgia and Florida, Statesboro and Northern and Central of Georgia had suspended service out of Midville, where the Ogeechee River was rising rapidly.

Columbia Reports Flood.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Northwestern South Carolina tonight continued to be menaced by flood rains, which during the past 48 hours have done great damage to crops and put State and county highways out of commission.

While there were some signs of a let up of the almost continuous downpour in the Piedmont region, the rains were unabated farther west and distressing reports came from the banks of the Savannah River. The highest water in history was reported at the Savannah River crossing north of Augusta, Ga.

Transportation from South Carolina into Augusta was entirely cut off, that city being flood-bound with all of its highways under water. Traffic was at a complete standstill as neither by train nor motor could the city be reached.

Rail Traffic Disrupted.

In South Carolina a washout on the Little River at the outskirts of Laurens prevented railway traffic between Greenville and that town. Some of the highways in the Laurens section had been repaired, however, with bridges and culverts replaced, making a possibility of highway transportation that was done away with yesterday.

At Greenwood, where some of the heaviest rains have fallen, the downpour continued today.

The Sixth United States Cavalry, after a disastrous experience in Ninety-six creek yesterday when nearly a dozen horses were drowned and several soldiers escaped only by heroic efforts of companions and was able to proceed to Columbia by a roundabout route.

The Savannah River was said to have reached the highest level in its history.

Sousa Is Stricken By Nausea Attack

Famous Bandmaster Ill in Syracuse; Condition Is Not Serious.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—John Philip Sousa, famous bandmaster, lay ill in his suite at the Syracuse Hotel tonight under the care of a physician. While he was in a weakened condition, the attending physician indicated that the illness was not critical.

Commander Sousa was stricken with nausea a short time after his arrival in this city early this afternoon for two concert appearances.

Associates said the band leader had suffered from a cold since his recent experience in Colorado when the special train carrying the Sousa Band was derailed, causing injury to several members. Last night, they said, Commander Sousa coughed almost continually, but he insisted on keeping his engagement here. The belief was expressed that the cold had settled in his stomach.

Costes and Mechanic Leave Le Bourget Airdrome on Long Journey.

NONSTOP RECORD GOAL

Paris, Sept. 27 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"Eastward Ho," or its equivalent in French, exclaimed Dieudonne Costes as he climbed into his big red plane, the Question Mark, at Le Bourget Airdrome, just outside Paris, this morning and took off for the Siberian steppes.

Until the very last minutes the aviator had kept the secret of the distination of his flight. Until he turned the nose of his machine toward Berlin and Russia many people, even some of his close friends, believed he might try another Paris-to-New York flight.

Costes, however, as he told the New York World News Service on his return from his last unsuccessful transatlantic attempt, believes that the North Atlantic can be flown from east to west only under exceptionally favorable weather conditions and with an exceptional plane.

His aim on the present flight is to break the world's distance record for a nonstop flight. To do so, flying in the direction he is following, he must reach Harbin, Manchuria, or Mukden. The present record is 4,490 miles. Harbin is 5,187 miles from Paris and Mukden 5,312 miles.

Costes is accompanied on his present flight, as he has been on previous ones, by his mechanic, Bellonte. He has obtained permission from the Soviet government for himself and his flight companion to land in Siberia.

The Question Mark, fully loaded, weighs nearly 6 tons. On the present flight it is carrying fuel enough for 50 hours of flying. Its average speed is reckoned at 100 miles an hour at the least.

Costes made one false start at 8:15 this morning. When, as in his last Atlantic attempt, fuel overflowed from his tanks and blew back in his face, he came down and made a second start at 8:20 a. m. This time the take-off was successful. Two hours after taking the air at Le Bourget the Question Mark was sighted at Cologne.

Should the French fliers be forced down after covering a considerable part of their projected route, Costes and Bellonte may attempt to reach Tokyo in a second stage.

Balloon Cup Race Will Start Today

Six Nations' Entries to Set Out in James Gordon Bennett Event.

St. Louis, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Ideal weather was forecast tonight for the start at 4 p. m. tomorrow of the eighteenth James Gordon Bennett international balloon race, one of the premier classics of aeronautics.

Nine bags, bearing the colors of six nations, will be unleashed at five-minute intervals from a specially prepared field on South Broadway. They will vie in the air currents for the third Gordon Bennett trophy, being placed in international competition for the first time this year by the air board of the Detroit Board of Commerce to replace the cup won permanently for the United States last year by Capt. William E. Kepner, Army pilot.

A trophy must be won three years consecutively by one nation to become permanently in its possession.

The countries represented in this year's race are Germany, France, Belgium, Denmark, Argentina and the United States. Capt. Kepner, with Capt. James F. Powell as aid, will pilot the United States Army entry again this year by reason of his victory last year.

Jury Disagrees Again In Poison Liquor Death

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The jury deliberating the fate of Morris Mansfield, alleged wholesale bootlegger accused of the death of Harold Huddleston by poison liquor, was discharged today after 45 hours of deliberation.

The jury had been locked up since Wednesday afternoon, and reported it was hopelessly deadlocked.

This was the second trial of Mansfield which has ended in a jury disagreement. Henry Pratt, State's attorney, said Mansfield would be tried again. He was alleged to have distributed poison liquor which caused a score of deaths here last spring. Mansfield was tried only for the death of Huddleston, a Kokomo, Ind., painter, who was working in Peoria.

Biscuit Plant Guarded When Employes Strike

Kansas City, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Police guards were called today at the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. plant, following a strike of between 1,000 and 2,000 workers, who complained of changes in wages and working conditions.

No violence was reported, the strikers contenting themselves with jeering company officials and making sarcastic comments to the police. Most of the participants in the walkout are women and girls. Pay under a system recently inaugurated is based on production. The workers charged they were pitted against each other, and no matter what production resulted the salary was less.

TROOPS MAY OUST TEXAS CRIME RING

POLICE BRIBED, HE SAYS

Austin, Tex., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Gov. Dan Moody tonight prepared to send State troops to Borger, Hutchinson County oil town, where District Attorney John A. Holmes recently was assassinated, to dislodge what he called an "organized and entrenched criminal ring." The only thing likely to avert martial law was resignation of certain county officers.

"The peace officers are for some reason failing to suppress crime and bring criminals to justice," Gov. Moody said. His opinion was deduced from reports on the situation submitted to him by his investigators.

Information gathered by the investigators, the executive said, indicated the assassination of District Attorney Holmes "was brought about by a conspiracy among the peace officers."

The governor said conditions in Borger were not the fault of the judiciary, but of the peace officers, and that information convinced him that the "law-abiding citizenship had been intimidated and is living under a menace which prevented their giving information on law violators."

Gov. Moody said that his investigators had determined that there exists a conspiracy between certain officers and the criminal element.

"We have affidavits showing that money has passed to peace officers for protection from enforcement of the law," he said.

Witnesses who had been questioned regarding law violations had been threatened, and in some cases run out of the county, he added.

One man who had attempted to help the officers in their investigation of the Holmes slaying was threatened by a policeman and told that "it would take only one bullet" to finish him, Gov Moody said.

Gen. Jacob Wolters, of the Texas National Guard, and Clem Calhoun, acting district attorney in Holmes' district, were in conference with the governor today.

Score of Passengers Hurt in Train Wreck

Clay Center, Kans., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—A score of persons were injured, none seriously, when Rock Island passenger train No. 224, southbound from Omaha, was derailed four miles north of here early today.

A Pullman and a chair car overturned in a ditch and all six cars back of the tender were derailed.

Although the cause of the wreck had not been officially determined, it was believed to have been caused by spreading rails.

Court Grants Divorce To Woman Publisher

Las Vegas, Nevada, Sept. 27—(A.P.)—A decree of divorce was granted here today to Mrs. Cecelia G. Wyckoff, publisher of a New York financial magazine, from Richard G. Wyckoff, on charges of cruelty and desertion.

The divorce action was not opposed, a legal representative of Wyckoff appearing in District Court merely to establish that property and separation suits previously filed in New York City by him had been settled.

Bride Found Slain Near Peacox Pyre

Woman's Body Discovered 3 Miles From Spot; Was Shot to Death.

Greenburgh, N. Y., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The body of Mrs. Elsa Marshall, 24, a bride of three months, who had been shot to death, was found today in the underbrush off a lonely Westchester road.

She had disappeared yesterday from the home of Henry Kelly, jr., Elmsford produce dealer, who employed her and her husband as maid and butler.

Two Negro laborers working near the spot where the body was found told police they had seen another Negro emerging from the underbrush yesterday afternoon carrying a shotgun.

The body was found about 3 miles from the place where the charred remains of Mrs. Dorothy Peacox were discovered last spring.

Two Men Die, Five Hurt In Freight-Train Crash

Petoskey, Mich., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Two trainmen were killed and five others injured in the collision of two Pere Marquette Railway freight trains head-on near here tonight.

Both of the men killed, members of the crew of the same train, jumped just before the collision and were crushed beneath their locomotive which overturned on them. They lived in Traverse City, Mich.

Masked Bandits Hold Up Russell County Bank

Johnson City, Tenn., Sept. 27—(A.P.)—Three masked bandits entered the Russell County Bank at Cleveland, Va., shortly after noon today, bound and gagged Douglas Wilson, assistant cashier, and escaped with more than $3,000.

IDEA FOR LIVE STOCK COOPERATIVE AIRED

C. S. WILSON IS QUIZZED

(Associated Press.)

Plans for a national cooperative livestock marketing corporation to handle possible surpluses of animal products were laid before the Senate agricultural committee yesterday by C. B. Denman, of Missouri, who represents livestock on the Farm Board.

Examined with a view to a report on his confirmation for a three-year term, he said the corporation was intended to include producers through their cooperatives from "California to the corn belt," and may rival in size the $20,000,000 grain marketing corporation now being organized.

C. S. Wilson Also Quizzed.

Questioning Charles S. Wilson, of New York, who represents miscellaneous agriculture on the board, the committee learned he considers $500,000,000 perhaps insufficient to stabilize all farm products. He voiced a presumption that more money would be requested when the need is felt. Wilson has been designated for a four-year term.

Denman also was asked if Congress had provided enough money, and replied that experience would demonstrate what was needed but that he would have no hesitancy in asking for whatever the board could use legitimately.

"Can't you stabilize all farm commodities at once if we give you the funds?" inquired Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa.

"Depends on Cooperation."

"Only so fast as the producers of commodities will cooperate with us to do what we can under the law," Denman replied.

After he and Wilson had been heard, Chairman McNary recessed the committee until Monday, when Carl Williams, of Oklahoma, who represents cotton on the board, will be examined. Williams is expected to be questioned principally by Southern senators, who have asserted he is not what they described as "an out and out cotton man." The Oklahoman has had years of experience with cotton cooperatives and has edited journals devoted to the trade.

Yesterday's hearing was marked by questioning of Wilson by Senators Brookhart, Wheeler, of Montana, and Caraway, of Arkansas, intended to bring out the range of his experience and his national viewpoint on the farm problem.

FEAR IS EXPRESSED FOR BAHAMAN CITY

the dispatch stated. The water system, however, remains intact.

Nassau, capital of the Bahamas, escaped without loss of life, but considerable damage was done to property by the hurricane sweeping over the islands, according to a radio message received here tonight by the Tropical Radio Station from the superintendent of government telegraph stations at Nassau.

The radio message read: "The hurricane began Wednesday night and continued until Friday morning. Center, two hours' duration, passed over city 9 to 11 o'clock Wednesday night. No loss of life reported. Property and shipping damage considerable."

The Princess Montagu, freighter and passenger ship operated by the Interisland Transportation Co. between Miami and Nassau, is aground on Tony Rock, near Nassau, according to a later radio message received here tonight.

The Montagu is a remodeled yacht once owned by the late Julius Fleischman, the yeast manufacturer, and later by Barron G. Collier, Florida real estate developer and street car advertising magnate. Collier is listed as president of the company now owning the ship.

Part of the crew of 23 men was rescued on a life line after others from the ship had made their way to shore in a boat.

The radio of the steamer Ena K., anchored in Nassau Harbor, afforded the means of communication that told the outside world of the wreck of the Montagu and also of the hurricane that swept over the Bahamas.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Miami and vicinity was struck by a 58-mile-an-hour squall tonight during which the barometer dropped to 29.65, the lowest reading here since the tropical hurricane was reported off the Florida east coast several days ago. Miami Beach was thrown into total darkness when power lines there were blown down. Electric light service in many section of Miami also was disrupted, but no serious property damage was reported.

Nassau, capital and largest city of the Bahamas, is on New Providence Island, one of the smallest but most largely populated of all the Bahama Islands. There are three other towns on the island besides Nassau—Foxhill, Gambier and Adelaide. The total island population approximates 16,000, with whites in the decided minority. Nassau boasts a new and enlarged water supply system and fair refrigeration facilities. Its large tourist hotels are closed at this season of the year.

Havana, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Weather reports issued this afternoon by the national observatory assured Cuba that it would not be visited by the Bahama hurricane. The vortex was 55 miles southeast of Key West today and swerving away from Cuban shores.

The only danger that exists for Cuba was seen by Dr. Carlos Millas, head of the national observatory, to be in possibly recurving of the storm to form a loop back to Nassau. That danger, he said, would depend on the size of the loop.

Local weather conditions remain unchanged this afternoon. Barometer readings were 29.81, with an 18-mile northwest wind. Skies continued murky and rain squals were forecast.

The Gulf of Mexico waters were lashes to a fury. Throughout the forenoon exceptionally high waves broke over the Havana seawall, forcing traffic to back streets. Coastwise shipping was stopped. Fishing fleets did not venture out in the choppy waters.

(Associated Press.)

The following storm warning was issued last night by the Weather Bureau:

"Advisory northeast storm warning continued 10:30 p. m., Miami to Jupiter. Tropical storm central 100 miles southeast of Miami, apparently moving very slowly westward, attended by strong, shifting gales, and probably winds of hurricane force near center.

"Caution advised vessels Florida straits and off southeast Florida coast. Wind will likely reach gale force greater part area Jupiter to Key Wet within the next twelve hours."

Day in Congress

Senate.

Met at 11 and recessed at 5:15 to 11 Monday.

Naval investigating committee decided to call naval experts after hearing William B. Shearer Monday.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, defended the action of President Hoover in urging retention of the flexible provision in the tariff bill.

Agriculture committee heard C. B. Denman, of the Federal Farm Board, tell of plans for a national cooperative live stock marketing corporation to handle possible surpluses of animal products.

The Senate adopted the Heflin resolution requesting the Census Bureau to report how an error of 300,000 bales for Georgia was made in this week's cotton ginning report and to state what could be done to prevent such errors in the future.

SENATORS WILL HEAR SHEARER, EXPERTS

Investigating Committee to Call Observers Next Week in Inquiry.

SECRET RECORD SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

Awaiting the story from William B. Shearer of his activities at the 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference as the $25,000 representative of American shipbuilders, the Senate naval investigating committee yesterday put the shipbuilders and American naval experts at that conference on notice to be ready to follow him.

Credited by some of the foreign press as the man who broke up the Geneva parley, Shearer has promised to tell the committee on Monday about his work for the firms he is now suing for an additional $250,000 he alleges is due him for the Geneva job.

The committee expects to receive a request for a hearing by the naval experts on the staff of the American delegation to Geneva, who were named as associates of Shearer during that conference by Drew Pearson, newspaper reporter at the Geneva meeting.

Reeves Is Mentioned.

If those named do not come forward to answer, the committee will call them. Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves was singled out by Pearson as one of the experts he heard openly express the hope that the conference would not succeed. He said Reeves associated frequently with Shearer.

Meanwhile, the Senate investigators also are preparing to look into the past record of Shearer and into his activities in Washington with the Shipping Board, to which the shipbuilders said they sent him late in 1926 "to cooperate" in formulating a merchant marine campaign.

Pearson has told the committee that Albin E. Johnson, Geneva correspondent for the New York World, showed him a document purporting to be a Scotland Yard record of Shearer. Later, he said, Shearer told him of taking the document away from Johnson in his hotel room at Geneva.

Shearer Record Sought.

As a result, Chairman Shortridge said yesterday it was possible the committee would turn to the secret files of this Government to learn what records were there about Shearer, if any.

Senator Shortridge says he is interested also in knowing what the shipbuilders knew about Shearer when they hired him for $25,000 to "observe" the Geneva conference.

Senator Allen (Republican), Kansas, of the committee, joined yesterday in the opinion expressed by Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, who started the Shearer inquiry, that the American naval experts named by Pearson should be called to tell of their relations with Shearer at Geneva.

Adjournment Is Likely.

The shipbuilders have insisted before the committee that they only expected Shearer to "observe" and "report" for them at Geneva. Chairman Shortridge notified all yesterday to be prepared to return before the committee after Shearer speaks Monday.

The committee is seeking to conclude the investigation before Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain reaches America's shores next week.

If the hearing is not concluded by that time, an adjournment probably will be taken until his departure.

HOOVER IS PRINCIPAL IN FIGHT OVER TARIFF

will appeal to those senators who might be described as being on the outer fringe of the Progressive block. There are two or three senators who sincerely admire Mr. Hoover and who think that despite his silence on the rates in the pending bill, he really sides with the Western farm side of the fight and they point in support of this to the enmity he is arousing among the Pennsylvania industrialists.

But under the present flexible provision whereby the President is empowered to raise or lower rates by 50 per cent, they point out that the President could at one swoop, on the eve of an election, for example, grant the Pennsylvania demands and destroy the favorable balance they had attained.

Flexible Clause Fought.

Their reluctance heretofore to go along with the coalition in its efforts to knock out the flexible clause is based upon the insistence of the Farm Board that there be some way in which relief can be given in the intervals between general tariff revisions.

The Simmons proposal shows them the way this can be done and at the same time the way in which they can regain the political tariff power.

Under the Simmons' proposal, incidentally, the range of tariff readjustment would not be limited to 50 per cent. There would be no limit at all.

Smoot Asks for Time.

Before the Simmons proposal came out, the issue between the coalition and the regulars had been very close. Simmons said he was ready for a vote yesterday, but that Senator Smoot, in charge of the bill for the Republicans, asked for more time. The best guess is that had there been a vote yesterday the coalition would have won by one vote.

It is not at all unlikely that the coalition will gain ground from now on as the new light in which the fight has been placed, more fully develops.

General debate on the flexible provisions continued in the meantime. Fess declared that to repeal them would be a step backward. Connally, of Texas, said it would be a step forward. Robinson also entered the fight against the provisions and continued it in a radio address last night.

MRS. PANTAGES, ILL, ABSENT FROM COURT

Sentencing of Magnate's Wife for Murder Is Postponed.

SEVERE PAINS CLAIMED

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Sentencing of Mrs. Lois Pantages, convicted of manslaughter for the death of Juro Rokumoto, resulting from an automobile collision, was postponed today when a physician appointed by the superior judge, Carlos Hardy, reported the wealthy society woman was too ill to appear in court.

Mrs. Pantages, the wife of Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, faces a term of from one to ten years in prison.

After receiving a report from Dr. John V. Barrow, the court ordered Mrs. Pantages to appear at 10 a. m. next Monday to hear sentence passed.

Dr. Barrow said Mrs. Pantages had a temperature one degree above normal, and that she was suffering from a severe cold, with attendant bronchitis and "severe nervous shock from strain of her recent trial."

She also is suffering with pains in her abdomen from a recent operation made necessary by the automobile collision which caused Rokumoto's death and resulted in her prosecution, the physician testified.

"I do not think it would be wise to bring her here," Dr. Barrow said.

"Do you believe, doctor, she will be in a condition to be brought here Monday?" Judge Hardy asked.

"Yes, I think she will be well enough then," Dr. Barrow replied.

Judge Hardy sent Dr. Barrow to Mrs. Pantages at the request of Buron Fitts, district attorney, after defense attorneys had informed the judge that the woman was in no condition to appear. Dr. Barrow said he found Mrs. Pantages in bed attended by two nurses and a friend. "She was extremely nervous; had severe pains in various parts of her body and complained especially of a cold."

Mrs. Pantages had had no food in two days and only one glass of water in the last 24 hours, the doctor said.

WAGGONER FILES NOT-GUILTY PLEA

UNABLE TO RAISE BOND

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Charles D. Waggoner, bank president of Telluride, Colo., today pleaded not guilty to a Federal indictment charging mail fraud in connection with the manipulations by which he is said to have swindled six New York banks of $500,000.

His bail of $100,000 was continued and trial was set for October 4.

Waggoner was accompanied by two attorneys at his arraignment, but four of his relatives who had come here in answer to Federal subpenas to appear before the grand jury were not in court. C. E. Downtain, former cashier of Waggoner's bank, and Harry Miller, a Telluride barber, two other witnesses brought here from Colorado in the Federal investigation, saw Waggoner before he entered the room and exchanged greetings.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, had sought an earlier date for Waggoner's trial, suggesting next Tuesday. He pleaded that the Colorado witnesses who were allowed only $5 a day expenses should be "shown some consideration."

The defense counsel objected, however, and Judge T. Blake Kennedy, of Cheyenne, Wyo., who is sitting temporarily in this district, set the date a week from today, telling Waggoner's attorneys that if they needed additional time to prepare their case they may apply for a postponement at that time.

Waggoner, failing to raise the bail, was returned to the Federal House of Detention where he has been held since he was brought here Wednesday night from the West.

Policeman's Dismissal Approved.

Dismissal of Policeman W. C. Minnick, of the Second Precinct, recommended by the Police Trial Board on August 29, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners. Minnick, who was appointed to the police force on May 20, 1925, was found guilty of being in an intoxicated condition and unfit for duty on August 16.

ROBBERS ADMIT $1,000,000 LOOT

Lamar Murder Trio Reveals Long String of Holdups Over Several Years.

FOURTH STILL AT LARGE

Denver, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The Fleagle gang of alleged bank robbers, three members of which will go on trial next week for the killing of four men in the robbery of the First National Bank at Lamar, Colo., obtained more than $1,000,000 in loot from banks during ten years of operations in various parts of the United States, Sheriff L. E. Alderman, of Lamar, said here today.

Alderman said he had obtained admissions from the three prisoners, Ralph Fleagle, George J. Abshier (alias Bill Messick), and Howard Royston, which would enable authorities of the Middle Western and Pacific Coast States to account for dozens of unsolved bank robberies.

Jake Fleagle, brother of Ralph Fleagle and leader of the gang, is still at large and was identified by witnesses as one of three men who yesterday held up a bank at Rodeo, Calif., and escaped with $35,000 after mortally wounding Constable Arthur J. McDonald.

Dined Their Pursuers.

The Fleagles lived on a ranch near Hutchinson, Kans., and their extensive criminal operations never were suspected until Sheriff Alderman finally connected them with the Lamar robbery. They were regarded as wealthy stockmen. A posse trailing the Lamar bandits through western Kansas stopped at the Fleagle ranch and its members were served dinner without any suspicions being aroused that the men sought were the hosts.

Alderman said the biggest haul, next to the Lamar robbery, was the holdup of the Ottawa, Kan., National Bank, in which $195,000 was stolen November 2, 1923.

On February 17, 1929, he said, Ralph and Jake Fleagle, Abshier and Royston, held up a bank at Haines, Oreg., and obtained $2,060.

A bank at Kinsley, Kans., was held up on June 27, 1927, the loot being $25,000.

Girl Spoils One "Job."

Alderman said the gang was involved in another Oregon bank robbery in 1919, obtaining $2,500. No details of this affair were given out.

In a hold-up at McPherson, Kan., June 15, 1922, the gang got $3,036.

A girl employe of a bank at Marysville, Kan., spoiled a hold-up in 1926. While the robbers were scooping up cash the girl escaped and spread an alarm and the robbers got away with only $741.

The gang held up a bank at Larned, Kans., December 9, 1927, getting $95,000.

Alderman said he had information on several other bank robberies committed by the gang, but he was not permitted at present to give out any information concerning them.

Bowie Man Killed By Steam Shovel

Worker on Railroad Job in Glenndale Crushed by Scoop.

William Howard Taft Woods, 21 years old, of Bowie, Md., received fatal injuries at 6:30 o'clock last night when a steam shovel beside which he was working at Glenndale, Md., crushed him against a Pennsylvania railroad freight car parked on a siding.

Wooda had been at work with a gang of men in the loading of gravel by the steam shovel on the railroad cars when the heavy scoop suddenly swung around and crushed him without warning against the side of a railroad gondola.

He was given first aid by the Prince Georges Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 and removed to Providence Hospital here, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Death was reported due to a crushed chest. The body was taken to the District Morgue, awaiting the arrival of relatives.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

PRESIDENT HOOVER was most likely moved to issue his statement on the flexible provisions of the tariff because of a belief that the members of his party in the Senate were preparing to ditch him in the matter, but it is unfortunate that he did so, or that circumstances forced him to act.

Because it simply adds to the picture that he is impatient with Congress, that he is loathe to share responsibility with it, that all he wants to do with it, in fact, is to get as much power away from it and into his own hands, as he possibly can.

That he sincerely believes he will be able to give the country a better and a "business" administration in this way there is not the slightest doubt.

* * * *

BUT THIS czaristic picture of him—it preceded him into office and was responsible for much bitter opposition to him, opposition that was decidedly ineffective, but it was bitter and it was opposition that was not altogether outside of his own party.

It is a picture, too, that he has apparently tried to get away from. It is believed to have been such a desire that caused him to issue his famous utterance in the first place, that he intended that the three departments of the Government—the legislative, judicial and the executive—should function within their own spheres without interference from the other.

This was a most unusual statement and, of course, it was one that he could not long abide by.

Nevertheless Mr. Hoover felt called upon to issue it, and the reason is believed to be that he wanted to dissipate that czaristic picture of him.

But then when he succeeds in doing this he moves in almost his first major act that follows in such a way as to give it form and substance again.

* * * *

HIS whole attitude in the farm fight tended to do so. What he wanted and what he was prepared to fight vigorously for was a Farm Board unfettered by legislative rules and regulations as to how it should act—simply a Farm Board all to himself, no questions asked.

Certainly, a Farm Board was a most unpromising-looking thing. It offered no hopes of any tangible relief to the farmer at all. And after all the hullabaloo of the campaign when so much was heard of the Hoover plan to get the farmer out of the woods, a mysterious something that did not bear too much discussion—to learn that the plan was a Farm Board, something that had been before Congress for years, just another governmental department, left one feeling decidedly flat.

But it was an unfettered Farm Board that he demanded and an unfettered one that he got.

And now even his worst critics are inclined to believe that he and his Farm Board will do something for the farmer after all, probably more than Congress could have done. But the point is that he wanted the board responsible only to him, a delegation, in fact, of power to him to settle the farm problem without the assistance or consultation of Congress.

* * * *

THEN comes the tariff fight, and Mr. Hoover is represented as not being concerned in it at all. It is a squabble that the Congress works up, he is represented as feeling. Loud squawks are uttered because he will not say whether he is for this rate or that. He falls back on his statement that he will not interfere with the legislative functions.

He rests on this until his tariff power is endangered. Then he acts, the Congress and the President being separate institutions notwithstanding.

It gives weight to the impression that only when he wants additional power or wants to retain that which he already has, is he concerned about Congress, about what it does and about what it fails to do.

PREMIER MACDONALD STARTS JOURNEY TO UNITED STATES

a group of workers clambered to the tops of taxicabs and began singing "The Red Flag," but as departure time neared every one became a little less political and a little more mellow and the tune changed to "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Finally, as the train pulled out for Southampton, whence the MacDonald party sails early tomorrow on the Berengaria, the entire crowd began to sing "Auld Lang Syne."

Shortly before he left 10 Downing street for the train he received a message from King George.

"On the eve of your journey, I wish you Godspeed," said the message. "It is a departure that will be surrounded with good wishes, for it is a contribution to those happy relations between two great peoples which must be an article of faith among all men of good will.

(Signed) "GEORGE R. I."

MacDonald withdrew from the bustle of getting ready for departure to dictate a message of thanks to his majesty, saying: "With my humble duty to your majesty, I am deeply grateful for your majesty's gracious and kindly thought in sending me good wishes for a journey which will, indeed, I trust, be a fruitful innovation.

(Signed) "RAMSAY MACDONALD."

Southampton, England, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Completing the brief first stage from London of his journey to America, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald arrived at 10:18 p. m. With his daughter, Ishbel, and his party he immediately went on board the liner Berengaria, which will sail early tomorrow morning.

Cheered at Southampton.

The passage to the coast was uneventful.

MacDonald, his daughter and the others were cheered by the waiting crowds as the special train drew into the environs of Southampton and were given a hearty reception from the throng at the terminal by the waterside.

The Mayor and Mayoress welcomed the distinguished guests and escorted them aboard the liner. The travelers had dined on the train which brought them here and planned to sleep on board the ship until sailing time.

To the newspapermen who swarmed about him at Waterloo Station, MacDonald said: "I am looking forward very much to my visit to the United States and Canada and the renewal of old and the making of new friendships there. But of course this is an official visit and is concerned with public affairs.

"I do not, as I have already said, expect my stay in Washington to lead to spectacular developments as the result of continued negotiations.

"One reason of this is that the current negotiations concerning naval disarmament have been carried so far that they have now to be brought to a wider international stage. Before there could be any progress in naval disarmament it was necessary for Washington and London to devise means for terminating a deadlock which had arisen between them at the Geneva conference in 1927.

"I am glad to say we have made such good progress in this work that the moment has, we hope, come when the five naval powers who signed the Washington treaty can be invited to join and insure in common a happy issue to a conference. If all goes well, a five-power conference will be held early in the new year.

Larger Parley Foreseen.

"If it succeeds, I will supply the preparatory disarmament of the League of Nations with a substantial contribution to naval disarmament. The preparatory commission would then be free to proceed with its general work and it will later on be possible for the League of Nations to summon a general disarmament conference of all nations toward which it had long been working.

"Such, briefly, is the situation regarding disarmament. But that is not the only impulse that moves me to go to America. I want very much to see President Hoover once again and to meet other American men, many of whom I know already.

"We have so much work to do in cooperation which can not be done unless we understand and have confidence in each other. The history of the Anglo-American naval situation during the last three years proves, if proof is needed, that the closest possible understanding between the two nations is of the greatest importance, not only for those nations but for the world.

Personal Contact Desired.

"I have always felt that personal contact between those actually responsible for government in Washington and London is essential if that understanding is to be developed as fully and as well as we all wish it to be.

"Both nations have a great role to play in advancement, not only of disarmament but of many democratic and moral issues with which their history is associated. I am off in the hope of being able to do something to narrow the Atlantic."

Stanley Baldwin, the conservative former prime minister who turned over his office to MacDonald as the result of the general elections last May, tonight issued a statement in which he wished every success to the mission of MacDonald in the United States. He said he looked with favor on the pending negotiations with President Hoover, and, referring to what happened before he left office, said the time did not permit of any agreement being reached before the general election, but that it had been his own intention, if returned to office, to pay a personal visit to the United States.

A description of the arrival of Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister, at the Union Station next Friday afternoon will be broadcast over the National Broadcasting Co. system, including station WRC in Washington.

William S. Lynch and George F. Hicks, N. B. C. announcers, have been selected to give the radio audience a word picture of the premier and the high lights of the reception as he reaches Washington. Two microphones will be used. One will be close to the track on which the premier's train comes in. The other will be just outside of the east side of the station where the premier steps into an automobile. It was also announced last night that in the event of a reception in New York this will also be broadcast.

DECEIT HIDES ISSUE IN AUTO INSURANCE

THREE PROBLEMS CITED

ciple involved finally has emerged as one of vital interest to every street user.

The unprejudiced observer, as reflected in the remarks of Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, demands a full and fair consideration of all of the facts before the statute books become cluttered up with quack panaceas. Especially is he concerned with avoiding what Mr. Reeves designates as "a hasty, half-baked substitute for real public protection."

The history of the issue is one that has made the general observer wary of the danger that special, selfish interests will "get there first" with measures written for their own enrichment and protection. Dislodgment of such a bill, it is feared, might prove more difficult than the original enactment of a law based upon public interest.

Three Efforts to Answer.

There are today three broad efforts to provide an answer to the question. They are:

The so-called financial responsibility law such as is proposed for enactment here.

The compulsory liability insurance law in force in the State of Massachusetts.

The third, hitherto untried but increasingly popular in many authoritative circles, is a proposal for compensation insurance directly comparable to workman's compensation.

In a series of articles to start soon in The Post, the arguments for and against, the forces in favor of and opposed to, and the possible effects of all three of these projected solutions of the problem will be thoroughly discussed. Compilation of the mass of data in connection with each of these proposals, determination of the interests behind each and the reasons therefore is a large task.

Smoke Screens Hide Issue.

It is felt generally, however, that only by a detailed presentation of the whole vital subject can the smoke screens which have hidden it be blown away and the affected individual form his conclusion as to the intelligent and fair solution of the problem. These smoke screens, it is pointed out, have been so elaborately developed in many cases by the powerful interests affected by the issue that even public officials most directly concerned with the hidden issue have been confused and misled.

Clarification of the question for the average man who eventually must provide its answer is generally regarded as the first important step in settling the compensation issue wisely and with justice.

tody of the district attorney. Banton termed the suggestion "disgusting bunk," repeating the denial he had voiced when Fiorello H. La Guardia, as Republican candidate for mayor, two months ago made a similar charge of missing documents.

La Guardia Accuses Judge.

Tonight La Guardia charged in a speech that Magistrate Albert H. Vitale gave Rothstein his note for $20,000 and received in return Rothstein's check for $19,940.

"Judge Vitale is at this time very actively campaigning for Mayor Walker, in the Bronx," La Guardia said. "He has made several speeches for him, and announced the formation of the Italian-American citizens in behalf of Mayor Walker.

"I now ask Mr. Walker to repudiate Mr. Vitale or to stand by him. Of course I am sure the mayor will ask a city magistrate to explain a $20,050 note and a $19,940 check from Mr. Rothstein, who Mr. Banton states, was a notorious gambler."

NEW ROVER AID

JOHN R. FITZPATRICK, former secretary of Justice Frederick L. Siddons, of the District Supreme Court, who has been appointed assistant United States attorney.

FITZPATRICK NAMED BY ROVER AS HIS AID

Former Siddons Secretary Chosen as Assistant U. S. Attorney.

TOWNSEND GETS POST

John R. Fitzpatrick, former secretary of Justice Frederick L. Siddons of District Supreme Court, was named an assistant United States Attorney yesterday.

At the same time Justice Siddons announced that J. Leonard Townsend, native of Washington, had been named as his secretary.

Fitzpatrick is a native of Illinois and is 31 years of age. After completing his scholastic education he was instructor in the Omaha schools until 1917, when he entered the service of the Department of Commerce, serving in Russia, Denmark, England, Washington and Canada.

Fitzpatrick formerly was an instructor in the Knights of Columbus Evening School, and at present is a member of the educational staff of the Y. M. C. A. He holds an LL.B degree from the Columbus University of Law and has been secretary to Justice Siddons since 1926.

Townsend, who succeeds Fitzpatrick as secretary to Justice Siddons, is a graduate of Business High School and holds an LL.B degree from Columbus University. He passed the bar examination recently and is now awaiting admittance to the bar. He is an instructor of common law at Columbus University and is a graduate of the American Banking Institute.

Early Maryland Engine Obtained by Henry Ford

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 27.—One of the early steam-driven engines, invented and manufactured at Ringgold, Md., near this city, by George Frick, has been added to the collection of Henry Ford for his museum at Dearborn. The engine was built in 1856 and is of the same type upon which Ford learned to become a mechanic when 16 years of age.

The engine had laid in an open field for the last 40 years at Waynesboro. The inventor founded the Frick Co., of Waynesboro, Pa., which is one of the largest plants in southern Pennsylvania.

MUSSOLINI'S ENEMY GETS 30-YEAR TERM

LURED BACK BY WOMAN

Rome, Sept. 27 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Cesare Rossi, whose trial on charges of conspiring to overthrow the Fascist regime and to foment attempts on the life of Premier Benito Musolini has created great excitement here, was sentenced today to 30 years imprisonment. The special tribunal before which offenses against the state are tried, presided over by Gen. Cristini, took only half an hour to reach its verdict.

Rossi was prominent among Fascist leaders at the time of the historic march on Rome and was chief of the press bureau when Mussolini first came into power.

Later he was accused of being ringleader in the conspiracy that culminated in the murder, in the summer of 1924, of Giacomo Matteotti, Socialist deputy, who had been an outspoken critic of Il Duce's administration. After 18 months imprisonment, he was released under a decree of amnesty and fled to France.

Crosses Italo-Swiss Frontier.

On August 28, last year, he crossed the Italo-Swiss frontier at Campione, near Lake Lugano, and was at once arrested. The Swiss government protested to Rome at the time, declaring that Swiss sovereignty had been violated in making the arrest. The Swiss press declared that Rossi had been lured across the border by a woman.

The prosecution today accused Rossi of being the leader of the anti-Fascists in France. The defendant acknowledged the authorship of articles written in Paris attacking Fascism. He admitted sending 5,000 pamphlets attacking the Fascist regime into Italy.

The prosecution testified that it had intercepted coded correspondence showing that Rossi had been in constant communication with political exiles, with Italian Communists with French Freemasons and with the Soviets. Rossi's defense was that he was led to carry on these activities because he was starving. Throughout his trial he personally maintained silence, bursting out only when he was charged with having accomplices. Such charges, he asserted, were all police invention.

Matteotti Kidnaped in 1924.

Giacomo Matteotti, the Socialist deputy, in connection with the death of whom Rossi first fell afoul of the Italian law, was kidnaped in June, 1924. It was two months later before his body, found on the outskirts of Rome, was definitely identified.

Thirty arrests were made in connection with the crime, but only five men were held on charges of homicide. At their trial, which opened in March, 1926, they admitted kidnaping Matteotti, but denied murdering him. Two of the three defendants were acquitted; the three others were sentenced to short terms in prison for unintentional homicide.

After reaching Paris, Rossi violently attacked Premier Mussolini and his associates as being the instigators of a reign of terror in Italy and accused Il Duce himself of being responsible for the death of Matteotti.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE IS GIVEN

TELLS TENETS OF FAITH

A lecture on "Christian Science: Its Value to Humanity" was delivered last night in First Church of Christ, Scientist by William W. Porter, C. S. B., of New York City. Porter is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Wilbur E. Yocum, first reader of First Church, under whose auspices the lecture was given. The lecturer said in part:

"In the year 1866 Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science and the author of its textbook, 'Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures,' was brought back almost from the grave through her spiritual understanding and pure desire. Following her remarkable healing Mrs. Eddy launched forth upon an undertaking which was destined to become her crowning life-work, the demonstration of Christian Science, and its presentation in such a way that humanity could not fail to understand its meanings and receive its benefits.

"In the orderly process of arriving at the correct statement of the problem of being, one finds himself confronted with the question, 'What Is God?' We are told by Mrs. Eddy in the Christian Science textbook (p. 465) that 'God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.'

"In science creation reflects the perfection of the creative cause from which it springs. Sin and sickness are inconsistent with this idea of creation. Therefore, these evils can not be considered as the outgrowth of a perfect Creator.

"The effect of Christian Science is seen in the building up and preservation of health, happiness, and success wherever this Science is known and practiced. Unless spiritual values and power may be apprehended and enjoyed in the everyday walks of life, then spiritual things have no significance with respect to daily existence.

"Christian Science denies the psychology of the human mind as a healing factor. The mortal mind, which produces disease, can not be the healer of disease. In Christian Science all healing power is understood to belong to God, and it accompanies always the divine, or spiritual, idea of God.

"The healing work wrought by Christian Science is the effect of prayer. By this is not meant that a petition is offered asking God to do something for man. The Christian Scientist knows that the nature of man as God's creation includes completeness, and that man possesses all good. On page 1 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy has written, 'Desire is prayer; and no loss can occur from trusting God with our desires, that they may be moulded and exalted before they take form in words and in deed.'"

Plans for Church Receive Approval

Ground Will Be Broken at Western Presbyterian Site Soon.

Plans have been accepted for the new building of the Western Presbyterian Church by the members of the congregation, according to announcement by the Rev. J. Harvey Dunham, pastor. Indications are that the ground will be broken at the new church site on H street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets northwest, in the next few weeks.

The Western Presbyterian Church is one of the Capital's oldest churches. The corner stone was laid on August 22, 1854, during the administration of President Franklin Pierce, who, incidentally, was a contributor to the building of the present church. Significant events in the church's history have been preserved by the late Robert Arthur in his published "Brief Sketch of the History of the Western Presbyterian Church, 1854-1923."

The volume recounts: "A perusal of this list will show that it includes the name of Franklin Pierce, the then President of the United States, and of members of his Cabinet, senators, representatives and many other prominent men of that day, including Matthew G. Emery, Mayor of Washington, D. C.; William W. Corcoran, George W. Riggs, Mr. Fairo (evidently Charles W. Fairo) and other bankers of note."

Legion Corps Leaving Today for Convention

The 52-piece Bugle and Drum Corps of Victory Post No. 4, American Legion, prize winner of the Labor Day contest here, will gather at the Union Station this afternoon at 5 o'clock to entrain for the American Legion Convention at Louisville, Ky.

The trip will be made on a 13-coach special train, which will take several outfits, including the Vincent Costello Post Corps of Washington.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ALEXANDRIA RALLY HEARS DR. POLLARD

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor of Virginia, addressed the voters of Alexandria last night in the auditorium of the Elks Home, on Prince street, speaking to a capacity crowd.

Dwelling for a few moments on national issues, he took up several questions which are being agitated by his opponent, Dr. William Moseley Brown, among them being a reduction in the gasoline tax and license tax, and the construction and maintenance of roads. He took the stand that the road construction program is much more important than the slight gain to the individuals which would result from these reductions.

The meeting last night was under the auspices of the city Democratic committee, and was presided over by Charles C. Carlin, jr., chairman of the committee. The speaker was introduced by Gardner L. Boothe, after invocation by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church. The citizens band rendered selections, and there were several vocal selections on the program.

The establishment of a clearing house association for the banks of Alexandria City and Arlington and Fairfax Counties was the subject of a meeting held last night in the Citizens National Bank and attended by approximately 25 representatives of the banks interested. The meeting was called by L. H. Dudley, chairman of a committee appointed by Group 3 of the Virginia Bankers Association, other members of the committee being A. B. Honts, of Cherrydale, and E. G. Rusk, of Winchester.

The institutions represented at the meeting were the First National Bank, Alexandria National Bank, Citizens National Bank and Burke & Herbert, bankers, all of Alexandria; the Peoples States Bank, of Cherrydale; the Clarendon Trust Co., the Bank of Del Ray, the National Bank of Fairfax, the Falls Church Bank, the National Bank of Herndon, the Arlington Trust Co. and the Trust Co. of Northern Virginia, both of Rosslyn, and the Vienna Trust Co.

The purpose of the meeting, as explained by Chairman Dudley, was not to establish a clearing house for the handling of checks or other forms of collateral, but to establish rules and regulations to govern the member banks in their relations with the public. A committee composed of one representative from each of the institutions subscribing will be appointed to draft a set of rules and regulations to be submitted to the member banks for ratification. An association will then be formed, to be known as a clearing house association, and to be one of several covering the entire territory of Group 3 of the Virginia Bankers Association, which includes northern Virginia and a substantial portion of the Valley of Virginia.

St. Mary's Catholic Church, which was struck by lightning and set afire the night of June 5, will be reopened for services tomorrow morning, the finishing touches to the interior decorations having been completed yesterday. The work of repairing the damage done by the fire included the placing of a new roof, a plaster ceiling and the entire redecorating of the edifice in buff and ivory. A new electric lighting system has been installed and in addition the floors have been covered with rubber tile. The marble altars were overhauled and Baltimore decorators have painted in the center of the ceiling an attractive painting depicting a holy scene.

A substantial amount of insurance was carried on the church, but considerably more than the amount of the insurance has been spent on the redecorating. A new organ, to replace the one which was practically destroyed by fire, will, it is understood, shortly be installed.

Since the damage to the church, services have been conducted in the Lyceum Hall on Duke street. Masses tomorrow will be celebrated at 7, 9 and 11 o'clock, this being a new schedule.

The Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will hold the annual emblem breakfast tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel, with the president of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Mrs. Laura Penn, of Martinsville, as the guest of honor.

Mrs. Mary Troth, president of the local club, will preside and the program will be in charge of Miss Lillian Hoffman, emblem chairman, which will present a tableau portraying the club emblem, with the club members representing the characters. Miss Minnie Brock, secretary, is chairman of reservations.

The Clarendon Business and Professional Women's Club will entertain at a dinner at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the George Mason Hotel, when the State president, Mrs. Penn, will present the club charter to this new organization.

John J. Kiger, assistant cashier of the Alexandria National Bank, was chosen registrar for the new voting precinct, to be known as the Rosemont Ward, at a meeting of the city electoral board held last night. The electric railroad station at Rosemont, which for several years past has been used as a subpolice station, has been designated as the new voting place. The new precinct will include the territory west of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad tracks, and north of King street, which territory was formerly included in the present Third Ward.

Clarence and William Reynolds, both colored, were arraigned in police court yesterday on charges of colliding and reckless driving, and each was fined $25 and costs. The police claim that about 1 o'clock yesterday morning the two men were driving past the intersection of Prince and Washington streets when their automobile collided with a car parked in front of the George Mason Hotel, then knocked over several lanterns which had been placed by street painters who were marking traffic lines. One of the men, it is alleged, was standing on the running board of the car while the other was driving. The arrest was made by Policemen Boley and Bibb.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA'S godmother, Aunt Phoebe Pearsall, of Buckroe Beach, Va., came up from the Tidewater country for a week-end visit. She wore one of those old-fashioned hats, a veritable flower garden, with birdbath, 'n' everything, ribboned streamers floating down the back.

Aunt Phoebe arrived in all her glory, just as we were reading about the abolishion of millinery classes from the night schools.

"Military classes in the night schools?" asked Aunt Phoebe, whose tympana are not what they used to be; her hearing dulled.

"Millinery classes!" shouted Luella.

"It seems," I explained to the old lady, "that women's headgear has become so simple, even children can make it—if only they would!"

* * * *

LUELLA read a statement from the night schools superintendent. "Women used to flock to our schools," he said, "because hats were so expensive and so hard to make. Now they're too easy to make, or too cheap, I guess."

"Cheap!" I gasped. "How does he get that way?"

Aunt Phoebe chuckled.

"Those were good old days," she declared, "when millinery was millinery. Look at this hat. I've worn it ever since the Spanish War."

"No!" said Luella.

"Yes," affirmed Aunt Phoebe, "and if I do say it myself, it's just as good now as the day I bought it, back in '98."

What a rare old lady.

AUNT PHOEBE took off her war bonnet and placed it, lovingly, on the table beside her. Had I not seen her do it I would have thought Luella had cultivated indoor flowers for the winter. There were clusters of peonies, canterbury bells, morning glories, and a dash of violets, with lilies of the valley sprinkled here and there. A lovely sight, to be sure, and so becoming to the old lady!

"I think these new hats are something frightful," said Aunt Phoebe, who had her first glimpse of them on the boat. "They are made of the same stuff they used years ago for bedroom slippers and pool tables—felt. Imagine table-cover felt for women's hats, and without a bit of trimming!"

* * * *

"Heavens, Luella!" exclaimed the old lady, "it makes you look as if you'd just had a bad fright."

"The lines are rather cruel," admitted Luella.

"Cruel?" mused Aunt Phoebe. "They're harder than a pawnbroker's heart. Now take my hat, for instance, with its soft lines——"

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "to think that millinery has been banned from the night schools, just as I was about to sign up for a course. I don't know what the world is coming to, I don't."

Aunt Phoebe was so affected we had to carry her upstairs and to bed. While she was there, resting, I plucked a gardenia from her hat and wore it downtown as a boutonierre.

Girl Cut by Razor In Attack by Thug

Miss Marie Allender Hurt in Mysterious Night Assault.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 27.—Miss Marie Allender, 20 years of age, daughter of Austin A. Allender, near Washington Junction, was attacked by a Negro last night and painfully cut about the hand with a razor. The young woman stated her assailant seized her by the throat and when she attempted to defend herself slashed her hand with the razor.

Miss Allender returned from an automobile ride and was about to close the doors of a garage 50 yards from her home when the man suddenly emerged from the side of the building and grabbed her. After he had slashed her hand and tore her dress she screamed and her assailant fled. Sheriff William Roderick was notified and he sent Deputies Wortenbaker, Steiner and Redmond to the scene.

The officers continued their search until a late hour without finding any trace of the attacker.

Miss Alexander said the attack was so sudden she was unable to observe her assailant further than he was a Negro, of medium height and wore a cap. Her throat was scratched by his finger nails.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27.—More than 1,300 midshipmen today reported back from September leave, which began upon the termination of the summer practice cruise, August 28. Most of the embryo naval officers passed their holiday with the "folks down home." Others whiled away part of the time at summer resorts.

There was activity everywhere about the Naval Academy with the return of the Middies. The regular academic routine of study hours and recitations will not start until October 1, the next few days being given over to the assignment of dormitories and other preliminary details. The regiment, which finds itself with a roster around the 2,000 mark, the largest in several years, will stage a formal drill on Monday as part of the official welcome to Admiral Momura, commanding the Japanese warships now at Baltimore, his officers and 178 Japanese midshipmen, who will visit the academy on an inspection tour.

CITY HONORS NAVAL OFFICERS OF JAPAN

Admiral of Training Vessels and Aids Call on Hoover and Visit Arlington.

MORE FUNCTIONS TODAY

Another full program is arranged today for Vice Admiral K. Nomura, commander of the Japanese training squadron, and his men, who are visiting in Washington.

Besides extensive sight-seeing tours, luncheons for the visitors will be given by the Japanese Ambassador and Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations. In the evening, the Japanese Naval Attache and Mrs. Sakane will give a reception at the Mayflower Hotel for the admiral and his colleagues, to which United States naval officers are invited. After a reception at 6 p. m., the Japanese commander and his aids will be honor guests at a dinner, given by Secretary of the Navy Adams at his residence, 2221 R street northwest.

They met Secretary Adams and other high American naval officers at the Navy Department, and later Admiral Nomura was the guest of President Hoover at a luncheon in the White House, after the Chief Executive had reviewed the Japanese midshipmen on the south grounds, as Secretary Adams had done earlier at the Navy Department.

Admiral Nomura was accompanied by his staff and the captains of the Asama and Iwate, the two Japanese cruisers.

Another buffet luncheon was given for the Japanese junior naval medical officers at the Naval Hospital, while the Japanese Naval Attache was host to about 50 officers at his home.

During the afternoon, Admiral Nomura placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. Last night the Japanese Ambassador gave a dinner in honor of the admiral at the Carleton Hotel, which was attended by American naval officers in full dress uniforms.

A few of the Japanese officers visited the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va., and had luncheon there. A large number of the officers and midshipmen spent the day sightseeing after their arrival here from Baltimore in buses.

Tomorrow Admiral Nomura, his staff and captains of the Asama and Iwate will return to their ships at Baltimore.

Activities are being arranged for the enlisted men tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday in Washington and Baltimore, prior to the departure of the squadron Wednesday for New York.

Shoe Perfection
Chance Creation

We realize ultra-perfection is an elusive thing, and the pursuit of it in shoe designs must, like happiness, not be hampered by too rigid adherence to the requirements of one type of woman. In our selection of shoes we have left nothing to chance . . . we have not relied alone on the inspiration of individual designers . . . we have picked a style of shoe for every type of woman . . . and for the type of purse she carries. We can fit the foot that insists upon the daintiest of evening slippers as easily as the foot that needs extra arch support. The charm of the footwear we offer is not accidental, but incidental . . . it is the result of a study of your needs and a careful choice of shoes to meet your demands.

At Stanley-Crandall Neighborhood Theaters

GEE WHIZ, Billy, you want to come to this! All the kids at school are goin' because teacher said that the new moving picture they are showing is the kind that we ought to see—something we can learn from. But we're goin' to have a lot of fun, too. They're goin' to give us carnival hats, and things like that, and a lot of novelties will be distributed free. Nobody's goin' to say anything if we laugh too loud, and, oh boy . . . wait 'til you see that picture. It's got lions and tigers and elephants and all kinds of animals in it and shows you just how they live and how the country looks where they come from. It's almost as good as goin' there yourself. The name of the picture is—

"The KING of the KONGO"

And the Carnival Will Take Place Today
at the

AVENUE GRAND THEATER
TIVOLI THEATER
THE COLONY THEATER

The carnival will be repeated at other neighborhood theaters of the Stanley-Crandall chain on the opening day of this new serial picture. Every boy and girl will have a chance to attend this good time party at the theater nearest to their home.

The Washington Post

Has cooperated with the Stanley-Crandall Theaters in providing carnival hats and souvenirs for this event, not only because so many of its carrier boys will be among the young people who will enjoy the fun, but also because of the belief that motion pictures of this type have an educational influence that is worthy of indorsement.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE IS GIVEN

TELLS TENETS OF FAITH

A lecture on "Christian Science: Its Value to Humanity" was delivered last night in First Church of Christ, Scientist by William W. Porter, C. S. B., of New York City. Porter is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Wilbur E. Yocum, first reader of First Church, under whose auspices the lecture was given. The lecturer said in part:

"In the year 1866 Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science and the author of its textbook, 'Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures,' was brought back almost from the grave through her spiritual understanding and pure desire. Following her remarkable healing Mrs. Eddy launched forth upon an undertaking which was destined to become her crowning life-work, the demonstration of Christian Science, and its presentation in such a way that humanity could not fail to understand its meanings and receive its benefits.

"In the orderly process of arriving at the correct statement of the problem of being, one finds himself confronted with the question, 'What Is God?' We are told by Mrs. Eddy in the Christian Science textbook (p. 465) that 'God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.'

"In science creation reflects the perfection of the creative cause from which it springs. Sin and sickness are inconsistent with this idea of creation. Therefore, these evils can not be considered as the outgrowth of a perfect Creator.

"The effect of Christian Science is seen in the building up and preservation of health, happiness, and success wherever this Science is known and practiced. Unless spiritual values and power may be apprehended and enjoyed in the everyday walks of life, then spiritual things have no significance with respect to daily existence.

"Christian Science denies the psychology of the human mind as a healing factor. The mortal mind, which produces disease, can not be the healer of disease. In Christian Science all healing power is understood to belong to God, and it accompanies always the divine, or spiritual, idea of God.

"The healing work wrought by Christian Science is the effect of prayer. By this is not meant that a petition is offered asking God to do something for man. The Christian Scientist knows that the nature of man as God's creation includes completeness, and that man possesses all good. On page 1 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy has written, 'Desire is prayer; and no loss can occur from trusting God with our desires, that they may be moulded and exalted before they take form in words and in deed.'"

Plans for Church Receive Approval

Ground Will Be Broken at Western Presbyterian Site Soon.

Plans have been accepted for the new building of the Western Presbyterian Church by the members of the congregation, according to announcement by the Rev. J. Harvey Dunham, pastor. Indications are that the ground will be broken at the new church site on H street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets northwest, in the next few weeks.

The Western Presbyterian Church is one of the Capital's oldest churches. The corner stone was laid on August 22, 1854, during the administration of President Franklin Pierce, who, incidentally, was a contributor to the building of the present church. Significant events in the church's history have been preserved by the late Robert Arthur in his published "Brief Sketch of the History of the Western Presbyterian Church, 1854-1923."

The volume recounts: "A perusal of this list will show that it includes the name of Franklin Pierce, the then President of the United States, and of members of his Cabinet, senators, representatives and many other prominent men of that day, including Matthew G. Emery, Mayor of Washington, D. C.; William W. Corcoran, George W. Riggs, Mr. Fairo (evidently Charles W. Fairo) and other bankers of note."

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ALEXANDRIA RALLY HEARS DR. POLLARD

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor of Virginia, addressed the voters of Alexandria last nght in the auditorium of the Elks Home, on Prince street, speaking to a capacity crowd.

Dwelling for a few moments on national issues, he took up several questions which are being agitated by his opponent, Dr. William Moseley Brown, among them being a reduction in the gasoline tax and license tax, and the construction and maintenance of roads. He took the stand that the road construction program is much more important than the slight gain to the individuals which would result from these reductions.

The meeting last night was under the auspices of the city Democratic committee, and was presided over by Charles C. Carlin, jr., chairman of the committee. The speaker was introduced by Gardner L. Boothe, after invocation by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church. The citizens band rendered selections, and there were several vocal selections on the program.

The establishment of a clearing house association for the banks of Alexandria City and Arlington and Fairfax Counties was the subject of a meeting held last night in the Citizens National Bank and attended by approximately 25 representatives of the banks interested. The meeting was called by L. H. Dudley, chairman of a committee appointed by Group 3 of the Virginia Bankers Association, other members of the committee being A. B. Honts, of Cherrydale, and E. G. Rusk, of Winchester.

The institutions represented at the meeting were the First National Bank, Alexandria National Bank, Citizens National Bank and Burke & Herbert, bankers, all of Alexandria; the Peoples States Bank, of Cherrydale; the Clarendon Trust Co., the Bank of Del Ray, the National Bank of Fairfax, the Falls Church Bank, the National Bank of Herndon, the Arlington Trust Co. and the Trust Co. of Northern Virginia, both of Rosslyn, and the Vienna Trust Co.

The purpose of the meeting, as explained by Chairman Dudley, was not to establish a clearing house for the handling of checks or other forms of collateral, but to establish rules and regulations to govern the member banks in their relations with the public. A committee composed of one representative from each of the institutions subscribing will be appointed to draft a set of rules and regulations to be submitted to the member banks for ratification. An association will then be formed, to be known as a clearing house association, and to be one of several covering the entire territory of Group 3 of the Virginia Bankers Association, which includes northern Virginia and a substantial portion of the Valley of Virginia.

St. Mary's Catholic Church, which was struck by lightning and set afire the night of June 5, will be reopened for services tomorrow morning, the finishing touches to the interior decorations having been completed yesterday. The work of repairing the damage done by the fire included the placing of a new roof, a plaster ceiling and the entire redecorating of the edifice in buff and ivory. A new electric lighting system has been installed and in addition the floors have been covered with rubber tile. The marble altars were overhauled and Baltimore decorators have painted in the center of the ceiling an attractive painting depicting a holy scene.

A substantial amount of insurance was carried on the church, but considerably more than the amount of the insurance has been spent on the redecorating. A new organ, to replace the one which was practically destroyed by fire, will, it is understood, shortly be installed.

Since the damage to the church, services have been conducted in the Lyceum Hall on Duke street. Masses tomorrow will be celebrated at 7, 9 and 11 o'clock, this being a new schedule.

The Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will hold the annual emblem breakfast tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel, with the president of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Mrs. Laura Penn, of Martinsville, as the guest of honor.

Mrs. Mary Troth, president of the local club, will preside and the program will be in charge of Miss Lillian Hoffman, emblem chairman, which will present a tableau portraying the club emblem, with the club members representing the characters. Miss Minnie Brock, secretary, is chairman of reservations.

The Clarendon Business and Professional Women's Club will entertain at a dinner at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the George Mason Hotel, when the State president, Mrs. Penn, will present the club charter to this new organization.

John J. Kiger, assistant cashier of the Alexandria National Bank, was chosen registrar for the new voting precinct, to be known as the Rosemont Ward, at a meeting of the city electoral board held last night. The electric railroad station at Rosemont, which for several years past has been used as a subpolice station, has been designated as the new voting place. The new precinct will include the territory west of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad tracks, and north of King street, which territory was formerly included in the present Third Ward.

Clarence and William Reynolds, both colored, were arraigned in police court yesterday on charges of colliding and reckless driving, and each was fined $25 and costs. The police claim that about 1 o'clock yesterday morning the two men were driving past the intersection of Prince and Washington streets when their automobile collided with a car parked in front of the George Mason Hotel, then knocked over several lanterns which had been placed by street painters who were marking traffic lines. One of the men, it is alleged, was standing on the running board of the car while the other was driving. The arrest was made by Policemen Boley and Bibb.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA'S godmother, Aunt Phoebe Pearsall, of Buckroe Beach, Va., came up from the Tidewater country for a week-end visit. She wore one of those old-fashioned hats, a veritable flower garden, with birdbath, 'n' everything, ribboned streamers floating down the back.

Aunt Phoebe arrived in all her glory, just as we were reading about the abolishion of millinery classes from the night schools.

"Military classes in the night schools?" asked Aunt Phoebe, whose tympana are not what they used to be; her hearing dulled.

"Millinery classes!" shouted Luella.

"It seems," I explained to the old lady, "that women's headgear has become so simple, even children can make it—if only they would!"

* * * *

LUELLA read a statement from the night schools superintendent. "Women used to flock to our schools," he said, "because hats were so expensive and so hard to make. Now they're too easy to make, or too cheap, I guess."

"Cheap!" I gasped. "How does he get that way?"

Aunt Phoebe chuckled.

"Those were good old days," she declared, "when millinery was millinery. Look at this hat. I've worn it ever since the Spanish War."

"No!" said Luella.

"Yes," affirmed Aunt Phoebe, "and if I do say it myself, it's just as good now as the day I bought it, back in '98."

What a rare old lady.

AUNT PHOEBE took off her war bonnet and placed it, lovingly, on the table beside her. Had I not seen her do it I would have thought Luella had cultivated indoor flowers for the winter. There were clusters of peonies, canterbury bells, morning glories, and a dash of violets, with lilies of the valley sprinkled here and there. A lovely sight, to be sure, and so becoming to the old lady!

"I think these new hats are something frightful," said Aunt Phoebe, who had her first glimpse of them on the boat. "They are made of the same stuff they used years ago for bedroom slippers and pool tables—felt. Imagine table-cover felt for women's hats, and without a bit of trimming!"

* * * *

"Heavens, Luella!" exclaimed the old lady, "it makes you look as if you'd just had a bad fright."

"The lines are rather cruel," admitted Luella.

"Cruel?" mused Aunt Phoebe. "They're harder than a pawnbroker's heart. Now take my hat, for instance, with its soft lines——"

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "to think that millinery has been banned from the night schools, just as I was about to sign up for a course. I don't know what the world is coming to, I don't."

Aunt Phoebe was so affected we had to carry her upstairs and to bed. While she was there, resting, I plucked a gardenia from her hat and wore it downtown as a boutonierre.

Girl Cut by Razor In Attack by Thug

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 27.—Miss Marie Allender, 20 years of age, daughter of Austin A. Allender, near Washington Junction, was attacked by a Negro last night and painfully cut about the hand with a razor. The young woman stated her assailant seized her by the throat and when she attempted to defend herself slashed her hand with the razor.

Miss Allender returned from an automobile ride and was about to close the doors of a garage 50 yards from her home when the man suddenly emerged from the side of the building and grabbed her. After he had slashed her hand and tore her dress she screamed and her assailant fled. Sheriff William Roderick was notified and he sent Deputies Wortenbaker, Steiner and Redmond to the scene.

The officers continued their search until a late hour without finding any trace of the attacker.

Miss Alexander said the attack was so sudden she was unable to observe her assailant further than he was a Negro, of medium height and wore a cap. Her throat was scratched by his finger nails.

1,300 Midshipmen Back at Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27.—More than 1,300 midshipmen today reported back from September leave, which began upon the termination of the summer practice cruise, August 28. Most of the embryo naval officers passed their holiday with the "folks down home." Others whiled away part of the time at summer resorts.

There was activity everywhere about the Naval Academy with the return of the Middies. The regular academic routine of study hours and recitations will not start until October 1, the next few days being given over to the assignment of dormitories and other preliminary details. The regiment, which finds itself with a roster around the 2,000 mark, the largest in several years, will stage a formal drill on Monday as part of the official welcome to Admiral Momura, commanding the Japanese warships now at Baltimore, his officers and 178 Japanese midshipmen, who will visit the academy on an inspection tour.

CITY HONORS NAVAL OFFICERS OF JAPAN

Admiral of Training Vessels and Aids Call on Hoover and Visit Arlington.

MORE FUNCTIONS TODAY

Another full program is arranged today for Vice Admiral K. Nomura, commander of the Japanese training squadron, and his men, who are visiting in Washington.

Besides extensive sight-seeing tours, luncheons for the visitors will be given by the Japanese Ambassador and Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations. In the evening, the Japanese Naval Attache and Mrs. Sakane will give a reception at the Mayflower Hotel for the admiral and his colleagues, to which United States naval officers are invited. After a reception at 6 p. m., the Japanese commander and his aids will be honor guests at a dinner, given by Secretary of the Navy Adams at his residence, 2221 R street northwest.

They met Secretary Adams and other high American naval officers at the Navy Department, and later Admiral Nomura was the guest of President Hoover at a luncheon in the White House, after the Chief Executive had reviewed the Japanese midshipmen on the south grounds, as Secretary Adams had done earlier at the Navy Department.

Admiral Nomura was accompanied by his staff and the captains of the Asama and Iwate, the two Japanese cruisers.

Another buffet luncheon was given for the Japanese junior naval medical officers at the Naval Hospital, while the Japanese Naval Attache was host to about 50 officers at his home.

During the afternoon, Admiral Nomura placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. Last night the Japanese Ambassador gave a dinner in honor of the admiral at the Carleton Hotel, which was attended by American naval officers in full dress uniforms.

A few of the Japanese officers visited the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va., and had luncheon there. A large number of the officers and midshipmen spent the day sightseeing after their arrival here from Baltimore in buses.

Tomorrow Admiral Nomura, his staff and captains of the Asama and Iwate will return to their ships at Baltimore.

Activities are being arranged for the enlisted men tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday in Washington and Baltimore, prior to the departure of the squadron Wednesday for New York.

Carroll Is Held For Grand Jury

Accused Attacked Driver of Car That Killed His Brother.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27.—Waiving a preliminary hearing when arraigned before Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins this afternoon on charges of assault and inciting a riot, James Carroll was held for the action of the Anne Arundel County grand jury at the coming October term of the Circuit Court, which will convene October 21. Carroll was detained at police headquarters until John M. Taylor, his bondsman, renewed bail of $1,000.

The charges are based upon a disturbance precipitated Monday night toward the close of the coroner's inquest into the death of David Carroll, 17-year-old shoe salesman, young brother of the accused, who was killed by an automobile driven by Meyer Epstein on the night of Thursday, September 19, while skating with a party of young friends on the Severn River Highway Bridge.

In connection with the case, Magistrate Hopkins made public a letter written to him by Epstein, now in the county jail awaiting grand jury action, in which he expresses sympathy for his attacker, and asks that the charges against him be dismissed.

Will Is Fought By Heiress Here

"Undue Influence" on Part of Uncle's Housekeeper Is Alleged.

Miss Florence F. Byers, of 4702 Fifteenth street northwest, yesterday filed a caveat to the will of her late uncle, St. John Byers, a well-known author of Hagerstown, Md., in that city, asking that it be set aside in favor of a will signed by him in 1920.

Miss Byers alleged that the last will was procured through undue influence by Mrs. Ross B. Snyder, housekeeper for Mr. Byers at the time of his death, who was named as principal legatee in the will filed by her also as executrix several weeks ago.

Miss Byers, who is to receive $10,000 under this last will, which disposes of an estate valued at $40,000 was named as principal legatee and executrix in the 1920 document.

Shoe Perfection
Chance Creation

We realize ultra-perfection is an elusive thing, and the pursuit of it in shoe designs must, like happiness, not be hampered by too rigid adherence to the requirements of one type of woman. In our selection of shoes we have left nothing to chance . . . we have not relied alone on the inspiration of individual designers . . . we have picked a style of shoe for every type of woman . . . and for the type of purse she carries. We can fit the foot that insists upon the daintiest of evening slippers as easily as the foot that needs extra arch support. The charm of the footwear we offer is not accidental, but incidental . . . it is the result of a study of your needs and a careful choice of shoes to meet your demands.

CARNIVAL
At Stanley-Crandall Neighborhood Theaters

GEE WHIZ, Billy, you want to come to this! All the kids at school are goin' because teacher said that the new moving picture they are showing is the kind that we ought to see—something we can learn from. But we're goin' to have a lot of fun, too. They're goin' to give us carnival hats, and things like that, and a lot of novelties will be distributed free. Nobody's goin' to say anything if we laugh too loud, and, oh boy . . . wait 'til you see that picture. It's got lions and tigers and elephants and all kinds of animals in it and shows you just how they live and how the country looks where they come from. It's almost as good as goin' there yourself. The name of the picture is—

"The KING of the KONGO"

And the Carnival Will Take Place Today
at the

AVENUE GRAND THEATER — TIVOLI THEATER — THE COLONY THEATER

The carnival will be repeated at other neighborhood theaters of the Stanley-Crandall chain on the opening day of this new serial picture. Every boy and girl will have a chance to attend this good time party at the theater nearest to their home.

The Washington Post

Has cooperated with the Stanley-Crandall Theaters in providing carnival hats and souvenirs for this event, not only because so many of its carrier boys will be among the young people who will enjoy the fun, but also because of the belief that motion pictures of this type have an educational influence that is worthy of indorsement.

MR. MACDONALD'S VOYAGE.

The British prime minister left London last night for Washington on what he has called a "voyage of exploration." His purpose is to consult with President Hoover in the furtherance of mutual efforts to promote world peace by limiting naval armaments. Mr. MacDonald made this useful statement to newspaper men just before his departure:

> I don't, as I have already said, expect my stay in Washington to lead to spectacular developments as a result of the continued negotiations.

It goes without saying that Mr. MacDonald is a welcome visitor; that he will find himself among friends and admirers; and that the American public will heartily support him and the President in their efforts to reach an agreement.

The people of Great Britain, without regard to parties, have demonstrated their approval of Mr. MacDonald's voyage, and there is universal hope that his mission will be successful. The opposition parties in Britain seem to be willing to cooperate with him in consummating an agreement.

One of the dangers that surround an adventure such as that undertaken by Mr. MacDonald is the reaction that may occur if the peoples of the two nations indulge in excessive hopes and are then disappointed. It is only too easy for enthusiasts to assume that Mr. MacDonald's errand is a foregone success—that the two heads of governments, in direct contact, can not fail to sweep away all obstacles to an agreement that will insure and maintain the equal strength of the world's two greatest navies.

Notwithstanding Mr. MacDonald's precautionary message through the press, it is only too evident that a large proportion of the peoples of both countries are keyed up to a high pitch of expectation, and confidently look for an announcement from Washington signifying that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover have reached an accord that will be crystallized into a treaty. If such an announcement should not be forthcoming this portion of the public is very apt to go to the other extreme and resort to international reproaches and recriminations. Thus it is possible that, if the proposed naval conference should be held, it will open in an adverse atmosphere.

Mr. MacDonald is admirable in his optimism, and admirable for his courage in taking the risks attending public disappointment over the possible failure of his mission. At the same time, while acknowledging that hope and not pessimism should inspire all parties who believe in naval limitation, many experienced observers look with apprehension upon the forthcoming visit. They have in mind the uncertain political conditions in both Britain and the United States, and the strict necessity of reaching a genuine parity agreement as a condition of treaty ratification. They realize that the consequences of failure on this point would be politically disastrous as well as injurious to the cause of international good will.

They also have in mind Mr. MacDonald's repeated statement that unless Japan, France and Italy can be brought into accord with the United States and Britain, any understanding reached by the two would be practically ineffective in limiting naval armaments. Therefore, these observers wish that all the governments concerned had been more fully consulted before Mr. MacDonald undertook his journey, in order that no adverse circumstance should develop to nullify all efforts and change hope into pessimism and distrust.

Mr. MacDonald's "voyage of exploration" is of the greatest importance. Whatever the result may be, it will profoundly affect Anglo-American relations. Now that the voyage is a reality, Americans will prepare a cordial welcome for Mr. MacDonald and will stand ready to do all in their power to promote the movement toward equalizing the strength of the navies of Great Britain and the United States.

CANDOR IN POLITICS.

Candor is a virtue so seldom practiced in politics that it is a pleasure to find either a candidate for office or a political forecaster speaking out what he thinks. The political pool was disturbed a few days ago by an announcement from Representative Wood, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, to the effect that the Republicans expect to lose in the election next year some of the seats won from the Democrats in 1928. Such frankness brought widespread comment and approval. But Mrs. Grace Van Namee, of New York, has gone a step further than Mr. Wood and announced that she will seek to abolish the city office for which she is a candidate.

Usually the requirements of a political office are pictured as so exacting that only a person of unique qualifications is competent to serve. But not so in the case of Mrs. Van Namee. In a public address she called attention to the fact that the office of register, which she seeks, is a political plum which is costing the taxpayers $12,000 a year. She expressed conviction that the office could be combined with that of county clerk without loss of efficiency, and pledged herself to an investigation looking toward that end.

Such candor will no doubt appeal to the electorate. The common practice of misrepresenting facts and of making claims for which there is no foundation is disgusting to voters. But since all parties indulge in it, the public has no opportunity to express its disapproval. Candidates who give their constituents credit for common sense should win immediate popularity.

In the case of Representative Wood he was merely pointing out an obvious fact that in presidential years the winning party usually gains some congressional seats which it can not be expected to hold when no President is being elected. It does not mean that the Republican party faces a calamity, but merely that the usual thing is likely to happen next year. The very fact that Representative Wood was willing to make such an announcement indicates the confidence of the Republicans that their majority will not be seriously diminished. The public reaction to this straightforward forecast will be far more favorable than if he had made blatant and untenable predictions.

DIGGING OUT OF THE SNOW.

The Byrd expedition in the Antarctic is beginning to dig out of the snow, in preparation for a season of intense activity. Throughout a long Antarctic winter the men have been waiting for the day when work could be resumed. A wind of 44 degrees below zero still whistles about the camp at Little America, but that is not sufficient to prevent workouts with the dog teams. The airplane squad is also at work digging out the planes that were buried last spring in hangars made of snow blocks. Reports from the camp indicate that within a month the whole crew will be at work outdoors again.

The camp has not been idle during the winter. Commander Byrd has been busy training a third navigator and keeping in touch with different units of the expedition by radio. All possible preparatory work has been done so that the last open season of the expedition may be devoted exclusively to exploring and scientific work. Apparently the harmonious spirit of the camp has not been ruffled through the long winter night. If Commander Byrd has been able to keep up the morale of his men through this period of inside work and waiting, that is an achievement in itself.

As soon as the weather permits dog teams will start southward on a 400-mile trek to the Queen Maud range, laying bases for exploring parties. Because of the danger of sudden storms there will be little flying in the Antarctic until December. But everything will be in readiness for the aerial expeditions, and much can be accomplished in the short summer season.

The country is looking for significant discoveries by the Byrd explorers, and all indications are that they will not be disappointed. In the coming few months Commander Byrd will have a better opportunity to unfold the mysteries of the Antarctic than any other explorer has ever had.

BROADCASTING BALL GAMES.

It is said on good authority that the forthcoming world series will be the last to be broadcast and that next year there will be no broadcasting from any major league park. For several years professional baseball opinion has been divided as to whether or not the broadcasting of games led to reduced attendance, and at regular intervals it has been announced that an official ban against broadcasting was to be promulgated. Professional boxing also has reached the opinion that broadcast descriptions of fights affect attendance. The Heeney-Campelo encounter, of August 15, was kept off the air, as was the Loughran-Sharkey fight of last Thursday night, and it is believed generally that henceforth the promoters will refuse to permit microphones to be installed within the arena. It remains to be seen whether or not baseball and boxing are killing a goose that has laid golden eggs.

Radio has played an important part in building up interest in professional boxing, until it no longer is considered bad form to attend an exhibition. Important matches today are social events; they might not have been if knowledge of the sport had not been brought directly into homes through the radio. Radio probably has played a part in sustaining interest in baseball. It may be quite true that attendance this year has not been as large as had been expected, but the 1929 variety of baseball has not been particularly interesting, and both league races were runaways. In any event, there is no reason to believe that the broadcasting of games kept any real fans away from the parks.

Radio speaks to millions; baseball parks and boxing arenas at best hold only a few thousands. It is the stay-at-home "audience" of today's game or tonight's fight that can be reached through a broadcast description of an encounter, and if the sport is really exciting the natural tendency of newly interested individuals is to witness the events.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION.

The motion picture film is one of the most perishable of commodities so far as its peak interest value is concerned, and with some 10,000,000 deliveries being made under contract each year there were many disputes within the industry. Will H. Hays, president of the allied producers, realized that litigation was costly to all concerned and that the small exhibitor, especially, was in no position to engage in lengthy legal battles, and in the hope of reducing litigation he worked out an arbitration scheme. In the five years' existence of the plan 73,600 disputes involving sums totaling $17,725,000 have been settled out of court. In 1928, almost 24,000 disputes were settled by arbitration boards operating in 32 film board of trade centers. The amount involved was $6,500,000, and there was not a single case where a producer, distributor or exhibitor chose to go before a court instead of an arbitration board.

The motion picture industry leads all industries in setting a standard for relieving courts of a flood of unnecessary litigation, for reducing the costs of doing business, and for the prevention of ill-feeling. "Arbitration," says Charles L. Bernheimer, to whose efforts perhaps more than to those of any other single individual are due the industrial arbitration laws of New York State, "sets up what may be called a poor man's court. Extensive experience has taught that disputants become wrought up and irritable after a business difficulty has arisen and, therefore, are not in a state of mind to consent to a written submission to arbitration—a formality prescribed in the law. Quite different is the situation if, while in a trading mood and on friendly terms, they contemplate the contingencies the future may bring. It is then that they readily insert a written clause in their contract to leave to arbitration any dispute that may arise in the future."

The motion picture industry, by recognizing this principle, has saved itself money, has eliminated waste and has created an era of business peace. The day is approaching when all industry will do likewise.

GALAPAGOS ISLANDS

By GIFFORD PINCHOT,

In a Letter to E. Ellsworth Claspby, of Lewistown, Pa.

Galapagos Islands, July 10.—My Dear Mr. Claspby: I am sending this letter with other letters to our home in Milford, Pa., to be mailed from there, since the only postoffice here consists of a barrel on a pole, into which letters are put in the hope that after a while a ship may come along and carry them away, to be mailed perhaps months afterward, when whatever ship takes them reaches a port it is going to. Probably this does not happen half a dozen times a year. On the way out we were delayed a full month at the canal by an accident to our main engine, due to running aground. On June first we sailed for Cocos Island, on the way to Galapagos at last.

Cocos is a wonderfully rich island, now entirely uninhabited, and the waters around it are crowded with fish, especially with sharks. It used to be a favorite resort for pirates, but that was long ago. Today the pirates are remembered chiefly because of the tales of buried treasure, of which (tales, not treasure) Cocos seems to have more than any other spot on earth.

At the Galapagos Islands, our next stop, we had a wonderful time. This is the most strange and unusual place I have ever been in. One strikingly remarkable thing about it is that all the wild creatures regarded us as their friends and playmates, and came to us and hung around us with the greatest confidence and curiosity. Most of them had never seen men before and were entirely unafraid. The birds perched on our heads and our knees and ate from our hands, and were so tame that I could hardly dare tell the truth about them if I did not have the photographs, as I have in plenty, to prove it.

"Wild as a hawk" has no meaning in the Galapagos, for a wild hawk came and perched on Mrs. Pinchot's head, and time and again I stroked sealions and albatrosses with my hand. Indeed, the albatrosses were so perfectly friendly that although for years I have wanted to hang one of them with its 10 to 12 feet spread of wing in the hall at Milford, I could not get my own consent to kill one. Our expedition did not harm a single albatross.

The Galapagos are not entirely without people. One island, as big as a Pennsylvania county, has three men on it. Another, almost as large, has seven. Another one, 100 miles long, has about 150, while the most populous has about 400 to 500. It was here at this island that we bought the most delicious oranges at 40 cents a hundred, and twelve whole bunches of bananas for $1.50 for the lot.

You can see from this that some of the islands have some cultivable land. But for the most part they are covered with broken volcanic rocks, so sharp and rough and so grown up with tangled brush that walking a mile in an hour is remarkably fast time.

What is so fascinating is the tameness of the wild things, and the glorious climate! For while the Galapagos lie right on the equator, the thermometer has never gone to 80 degrees in our experience, and mostly runs from 70 to 75. We have been too cool much oftener than we have been too hot, and this at a time when people were dying of heat in New York and Philadelphia.

Our wireless gives us a little news each day, but practically we have learned almost nothing about what was going on at home. We shall get in touch again a little at Balboa, to which we are going before setting out for the Marquesas and Tahiti. The reason is that we need more oil for our engine, and more water, which is the one thing hardest to get in the Galapagos. Then we shall start on our 4,500-mile trip across the Pacific.

We are all well and happy and hope to be home again about November 1. Good luck to you and all good wishes.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AFTERWARDS.

A little woman, with silver hair,
Sitting alone in her rocking chair;
Sitting alone in the twilight gloom,
Done with needle, and done with broom,
Done with duty and done with care
And all the pleasures which made life fair.

There is a man who used to be
A little boy at that woman's knee.
Time was when she led him along the street
And watched and guided his eager feet,
But today no need of her hand he feels,
He is unafraid of the traffic's wheels.

And there is a woman, tall and true,
Who never runs back as she used to do
For the tender care of those willing hands,
Today she fashions her own headbands.
That once little girl has grown so wise
That she settles herself what doubts arise.

And I think as I walk by her house each day,
I, too, may be lonely and frail and gray,
For my children must grow, and the time must be
When they shall no longer have need of me.
Then I shall dream of the years gone by
When I ran to answer their slightest cry.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

Since your sex now sits on top of the world you may decide to win fame and fortune in some field now monopolized by men, but whether you do that or devote your life to community activities and a swarm of your own children here is a bit of advice that will make you a sure winner.

It isn't new advice. It is almost 2,000 years old. And because it was first spoken by an idealist who wasn't interested in making money the "wise guys" have laughed at it for many centuries.

Their laughter hasn't made the advice less practical, however, and men wise enough to accept and follow it have profited in every case and made a place for themselves in history.

Here is the advice: If you would be great be the servant of all.

At first glance that seems an idealistic bit of unselfishness, but the devil himself couldn't give more practical advice to the cynical and hard-boiled.

This is a selfish world and it cheers the one who does its chores. Its heroes are soldiers who have won prizes for it or saved its skin and its great ones are men who have lessened its labors, given it a profit or provided entertainment for it.

Mr. Ford and Mr. Rockefeller are commonly regarded as our richest men. One brought the farmer into town and gave the luxury of rapid transportation to the poor, and the other provided cheap and portable power for the millions. Try to imagine our civilization today without cheap cars or gasoline and you will get some conception of the service these two men have rendered to win their wealth.

The smart ones who ridicule the idea that service wins rewards will advise you to look out for No. 1 and let the world go hang. When they do that you should look them in the eye and say: "My friend, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. You advise me to be selfish, as you are. Show me the profits of your plan. Are you rich. Are you famous?"

Without exception you will find them embittered fourth-raters who blame their failure on hard luck or think themselves successful because they have accomplished a little something that a first-class man would regard as evidence of failure.

Mother is the important and best-loved one in every wholesome household because she is the one who serves most.

The belle of your crowd is the one who gives the others the most pleasure; the youth who ranks highest is the one who has a convenient coupe.

It's a rule that never fails, Honey. Whether you covet popularity or wealth or lasting fame the one sure way to win is to serve. "You're a wonder" always means "you are useful." Love, DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHAT BANK MERGERS MEAN TO YOU—AND YOU, TOO!

Sir: Will you please explain the orgy of bank mergers? I never pick up a paper without reading about another big bank consolidation. Is it a new sport or something?

GUS, THE DEPOSITOR.

Dear Gus: Your curiosity is quite general. It is surprising how few people seem to realize the benefits that will result from the elimination of the smaller banks. In the first place, Gus, the bringing of many banks into one big institution works for economy. It makes it possible to handle money for less money. It gets it from the producer to the consumer with less waste.

* * * *

You take a small bank, Gus. (Go ahead and take one. Everybody else has.) Now a small bank can't possibly carry as big a stock of money as a big bank. It can't give the customer as much variety. When you go to a bank for some money you don't want to take whatever the cashier hands you, do you, Gus? Of course, not.

* * * *

You want to see the stock. You want to get smart, up-to-date money. You want to feel that the bank carries the kind of money the best people are using.

* * * *

Now, a big powerful bank has resources. Money means nothing to it. It can afford to carry a complete line of money from the latest design dime to the very smartest $10,000 bill. It keeps in touch with things. Then there is the matter of quantity, Gus. When you go to a small bank and ask for a $10,000 bill, the cashier probably won't have one in stock. He will suggest that you leave your name and let him order one for you. That's inconvenient. When a man wants a $10,000 bill he wants it quick, Am I right, Gus?

* * * *

Now a big bank can afford to carry showcases full of them. It can even afford to let a customer take money home on approval.

The big bank of today is really a personal service station. It will even tell you the baseball scores, correct your golf faults and solve your bridge problems. It is only a question of time when there will be but one or two big banks in a city, and each one will have lounging rooms, swimming pools, tea terraces and afternoon concerts. The bank president of the future will be somebody like Rudy Vallee.

* * * *

There may come a time when most of the banking will be done by big mail-order houses. You will have a catalogue and you can get your money by mail.

* * * *

It all tends toward bringing money within the reach of the masses and making them like it.

* * * *

This should explain everything to your satisfaction, Gus, and thanks for asking.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Ambassadors and Ministers Are Guests of the United States and Entitled to Courteous Treatment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If it is a fair presumption that news dispatches, dated at Washington, are intended for the amusement, edification or instruction of American citizens, a poll, taken to ascertain the extent, or degree, of such amusement, edification or instruction would make of record the success achieved by the authors of ideas, the writers of articles conveying the ideas to the consuming public, and the press associations and news bureaus engaged in the work of assembling the raw material and distributing the finished product in the form of news as a manifestation of commercial activity.

We have senators, representatives in Congress and members of uplift associations, clubs, societies and groups, believing themselves to be representatives of the very nerve centers of moral intelligence as well as champions of constitutional, statutory and international law, fanning their passions for political purity to furnace heat by feeding the fires of their indignation on criticisms of diplomatic immunity, more especially the right of accredited representatives of foreign governments to own and to consume, in legation buildings and on legation grounds, liquors, the keeping of which is forbidden by United States law.

The general public may, in its youth, have patronized schools without having derived personal benefit, and the general public may, without benefit, have considered courtesies due to other nations and to guests of the United States of America, such guests occupying, either by ownership or payment of rent, the premises occupied in the name of and under the authority of the governments represented.

It is not recalled that representatives of the United States have been subjected to indignity in any country, or at any court or capital.

The general American public may be at fault in the belief that it owns the United States as a home and that it has a right to expect that all persons will refrain from insulting or annoying guests within that home.

The general public understands that the ambassador is the direct personal representative of his emperor, king, prince, president or chief executive, and that the minister represents his sovereign state—the chief executives and sovereign states of the world being personally present, in the persons of ambassadors and ministers at Washington.

The general public understands that these ambassadors and ministers have transgressed no law or ordinance. Being the personal representatives of chief executives of other nations and of foreign states, the general public does not understand that their personal actions and activities, when on premises owned by other nations, are properly subject to review by senators, representatives, screen favorites, winners of beauty contests, hockey champions, quorums of pinochle clubs, or directors of homes for cats and parrots in their dotage.

In short, the general public will not concede that it is so senile as the authors of these proposed discourtesies would infer by the character of the utterances they believe will edify, amuse or instruct.

WASHINGTON J. ENDICOTT
(Democrat).

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 22.

Overnight Parking Held to Be Necessary and Not Dangerous to Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is reported that the District officials have under consideration a regulation to prohibit overnight parking on the streets of Washington. I should be glad to know the basis for such a proposition. Certainly, overnight parking can not be said to make traffic conditions more hazardous. If this is the claim, I should like to be shown figures giving the number of accidents that have been caused by night parking, assuming there are any such accidents. The news items of accidents give no evidence that accidents have resulted from parked machines. All automobiles are required to burn parking lights, which makes them easily discernible. Therefore, parking is no different at night than it is in the daytime.

The large majority of Washington residents are Government employes working on moderate salaries. Many of them can not afford automobiles at all; others buy them at a sacrifice of other things, as a means of quick conveyance and of pleasure during leisure. Most of them can not afford in addition to pay a monthly garage rental for overnight parking, and certainly it should not be required unless there is sufficient reason to justify it.

A TAXPAYER.

Suggests 200-Foot Transcontinental Highway Under Federal Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This country can always pride itself upon building the Panama Canal and shortening the distance between the ports of New York and San Francisco. Will it ever be able to pride itself on the construction through brand-new territory of a model straight 200-foot wide concrete transcontinental highway that would not only connect cities, but the Eastern and Western coasts?

Such a highway could start from San Francisco, following its meridian and coming east, over passing railroads and constructing new bridges over rivers and chasms and tunneling through mountains at proper elevation, ignoring deviation for cities adjacent to which it passes. The Appalachian Mountains could be tunneled through at proper places, avoiding dangerous turns, and a new route could be selected through the Rocky Mountains. Tunneling and slight deviations would shorten the distance and eliminate dangers of hairpin curves. Such a highway under Federal control would eliminate local friction, and a moderate toll could be charged users between 500-mile distance zones to pay for the original cost and maintenance.

American Girl Tells of Trip On Black Sea

Miss Elsie Grew's Diary Proves Entertaining to Capital Friends.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THERE is material for the most delightful of travel books, now enjoying such a vogue, in the day by day diary of Miss Elsie Grew, daughter of Mr. Joseph Grew, U. S. Ambassador to Turkey, compiled during a trip through the Black Sea, which she made recently with Mr. and Mrs. Grew and a half dozen others. A copy or two has been sent to friends of the Grews in Washington and the tale of this holiday journey, undertaken in order that the group might learn something of the fascinating country in which they are living, makes most entertaining reading.

There is a certain beguiling naivete about the narrative—the writer is but 16—but Miss Grew has a gift for seizing upon the picturesque and the important and presenting what she has seen in vivid fashion. She laments that in entering Constantinople by the Orient Express or by boat from Athens travelers see only the bleakest part of Turkey, which is unfortunately the best known. And she pens a picture of the "Turkish Riviera," the Black Sea litoral from Kerassoun to Rizeh, with its quaint villages all along the way, which would be tremendously appealing to blase travelers fed up with tourist ridden resorts.

On this journey the party visited scores of places whose very names suggest romance, Inebulu, Sinope, Samsoun, Off—recently devasted by flood—Kaluk Kaya and glamorous Trebizond. This Miss Grew describes as extremely picturesque and typically Turkish, with its colored houses and scores of caiques spread out on the beach, which skirts the shore in front of the town. "We drove through the town and then out into the country," she continues, "and then up the Zigana Pass on the road which leads to Erzroum and then on into Persia. Such magnificent scenery we had not seen for a long time. The country which lies beyond Trebizond is even more beautiful than the mountains of Switzerland. The road, rebuilt by the French in 1912 and later improved by the Russians during their occupation, compares favorably with any in Switzerland or France. And it is very old, the same road which Xenophon and his 'Ten Thousand' followed after their famous march."

Trebizond itself is older than Constantinople. It was an empire when London and Paris were mere villages. But it boasts a modern open-air movie palace.

Lest the Turkish Riviera be too good to be true, however, there are no hotels and traveling there would be exceptionally difficult unless one went by boat and lived aboard as the Grews' party did. Although in Constantinople the Turkish women are quite modern, in their dress, Miss Grew found that in the back country most of them were veiled. A guide in Rizeh said that the people there were fanatic, but that he had heard that Americans were more fanatic in religious matters than the Turks.

In lighter vein Miss Grew tells a terrible tale about a time when members of their party, swimming in the Bosporus off their ship, the Ismir, were caught in a "devil's current" and were rescued by a caique, when nearly exhausted, trying to swim back to the gangplank. It developed, however, that the captain had elected at this moment to move the ship a bit nearer the shore and that actually, instead of being carried out to sea, they had been racing the Ismir. Among the despairing swimmers on this occasion was Maj. Duncan Elliott, military attache of the embassy, who has since won modest fame by swimming the Bosporus.

Miss Grew pays high tribute to the people of Turkey, as she met them on her trip, their kindliness, courtesy and hospitality; and says that the members of the party were all touched by the reception they everywhere received. The British Ambassador to Turkey was in the group and so were Maj. and Mrs. Elliott.

The chairmen of the creative groups and of the committees of the League of American Pen Women of the District, which are in charge of Miss Myrta Ethel Cawood, second vice president, held their first meeting of the year on Thursday night at the new studio clubrooms in Stoneleigh Court. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, gave a talk in which he encouraged the young writers to develop their talent in every way possible. After the address an open forum was held in which the leaders of the various groups participated.

Mr. George B. Rea has sailed for China, where he will be for some time. Mrs. Rea and their small daughter, Gloria, have remained in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

GOEBEL IS WINNER OF MEXICO DERBY

PRIZE MONEY IS $3,000

Kansas City, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Col. Art Goebel, who won the Dole Air Race, from California to Hawaii, winged his way to another long-distance victory here today, finishing ahead of other entries in the Mexico City-Kansas City Air Derby.

Official compilations have not been announced, but Goebel's known elapsed flying time between control points assures him of $3,000 first-prize money. He arrived here at 3:13 p. m. from Springfield, Mo., last night's control point.

Other contestants in the race, all Mexican army fliers, arrived here as follows: Col. Roberto Fierro, 3:15 p. m.; Capt. Luis Verdeja, 3:19 p. m.; Capt. Feliciano Flores, 3:28 p. m.

Lieut. Carlos Robirosa, delayed by a forced landing near San Antonio, Tex., Wednesday, fell behind the other derbyists, but flew from San Antonio to Springfield yesterday. He, with Rex Purcell, American flier who joined the races at the border, arrived with the regular contestants. Robirosa was delayed again today by motor trouble and arrived an hour behind the other fliers.

Officials are considering the status of Robirosa and Capt. Verdeja and Col. Fierro. The latter two pilots did not stop yesterday at Joplin, Mo., a regular control point.

One other Mexican flier, Col. Fernando Proal, was forced down soon after leaving Tampico, Mexico, and withdrew from the race.

The winner of second place in the derby will receive a prize of $1,000; the flier finishing third will be given $600, and fourth-place honors carry a prize of $400.

Slayer of Woman Ends Life in River

Negro, Facing Murder, Drowns Himself While Police Trail Him.

Preferring death to arrest on a charge of murder, Randolph Jones, colored, 26 years old, of 1216A Carrollburg place southwest, ended his life by drowning. His body was taken from the Potomac River at the foot of South Capitol street late yesterday by Fourth and Harbor Precincts police.

Jones was sought by police for the murder of Magnolia Richardson, also colored, 36, with whom he lived at the Carrollburg place address. Police said that Jones fatally stabbed the woman during a quarrel at their home Thursday night.

Capt. Fred Cornwell, of the Fourth Precinct, received information yesterday that a man, resembling Jones, was seen in the vicinity of the South Capitol street section, known as Buzzard's Point. With a detail of police, Cornwell went to the section and after a thorough search discovered the body of Jones. Police said a pistol was found in the pocket of Jones' coat, which was on the river bank.

Grocers Ask Dismissal Of Packers' Petition

The American Wholesale Grocers Association and a number of allied corporations yesterday requested the District Supreme Court to dismiss petitions of Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. for a modification of the decree of February 27, 1920, by which the Big Four group of packers agreed to divorce their business from unallied industries. Hearings on the petitions for modification are scheduled for October 2.

The grocers association tells the court that the degree has been sustained by the United States Supreme Court and asserts that the petitions for modification contain irrelevant statements and violate the rules of pleading in several instances.

The Seven Dials Mystery

A Serial Story By AGATHA CHRISTIE.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Gerry Wade is found dead in bed at Chimneys, scene of a house party. Seven out of eight alarm clocks placed in his room to awaken him are lined up on a mantel. The guests are told that death resulted from an overdose of sleeping powder. Jimmy Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to tell a sister, Loraine, of Wade's death.

Lady Eileen Brent, known as "Bundle," finds a letter Wade had written to his sister making reference to the Seven Dials. Bundle feels certain that Gerry was murdered. En route to London a man, mysteriously shot, staggers into the road in front of Eileen's car. It proves to be Devereux, who, dying, whispers: "Seven Dials . . . tell . . . Jimmy Thesiger."

At Jimmy's quarters Bundle finds Loraine. The three of them set out to trail the murderer. From Capt. Battle at Scotland Yard Bundle obtains a list of secret societies. That's unsatisfactory. With Bill Eversleigh, she visits the Seven Dials Club. A watchman, Alfred, is recognized as a former footman at Chimneys.

Chief Minister George Lomax plans a party. He has received a warning letter from the Seven Dials Society. Bundle gets an invitation. Meantime she hides in the meeting room of the society and witnesses a meeting attended by masked members.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

THE INQUEST.

BUNDLE reached home about 6 a. m. She was up and dressed by half-past 9, and rang up Jimmy Thesiger on the telephone.

The promptitude of his reply somewhat surprised her, till he explained that he was going down to attend the inquest.

"So am I," said Bundle. "And I've got a lot to tell you."

"Well, suppose you let me drive you down and we can talk on the way. How about that?"

"All right. But allow a bit extra, because you'll have to take me to Chimneys. The Chief Constable's picking me up there."

"Why?"

"Because he's a kind man," said Bundle.

"So am I," said Jimmy. "Very kind."

"Oh! you—you're an ass," said Bundle. "I heard somebody say so last night."

"To be strictly accurate—a Russian Jew. No, it wasn't. It was——"

But an indignant protest drowned her words.

"I may be an ass," said Jimmy. "I daresay I am—but I won't have Russian Jews saying so. What were you doing last night, Bundle?"

"That's what I'm going to talk about," said Bundle. "Good-by for the moment."

In Books Only.

She rang off in a tantalizing manner which left Jimmy pleasantly puzzled. He had the highest respect for Bundle's capabilities, though there was not the slightest trace of sentiment in his feeling toward her.

"She'd been up to something," he opined, as he took a last hasty drink of coffee. "Depend upon it, she's been up to something."

Twenty minutes later, his little two-seater drew up before the Brook street house and Bundle, who had been waiting, came tripping down the steps. Jimmy was not ordinarily an observant young man, but he noticed that there were black rings round Bundle's eyes and that she had all the appearance of having had a late night the night before.

"Now, then," he said, as the car began to nose its way through the suburbs, "what dark deeds have you been up to?"

"I'll tell you," said Bundle. "But don't interrupt until I've finished."

It was a somewhat long story, and Jimmy had all he could do to keep sufficient attention on the car to prevent an accident. When Bundle had finished he sighed—then looked at her searchingly.

"Bundle?"

"Yes?"

"Look here, you're not pulling my leg?"

"What do you mean?"

"I'm sorry," apologized Jimmy, "but it seems to me as though I'd heard it all before—in a dream, you know."

"I know," said Bundle sympathetically.

"It's impossible," said Jimmy, following out his own train of thought. "The beautiful foreign adventuress, the international gang, the mysterious No. 7, whose identity nobody knows—I've read it all a hundred times in books."

"Of course you have. So have I. But it's no reason why it shouldn't really happen."

"I suppose not," admitted Jimmy. "After all—I suppose fiction is founded on truth. I mean unless things did happen, people couldn't think of them."

"There is something in what you say," agreed Jimmy. "But all the same, I can't help pinching myself to see of I'm awake."

"That's how I felt."

Jimmy gave a deep sigh.

A Missing Member.

"Well, I suppose we are awake. Let me see, a Russian, an American, an Englishman—a possible Austrian or Hungarian—and the lady who may be any nationality—for choice Russian or Polish—that's a pretty representative gathering."

"And a German," said Bundle. "You've forgotten the German."

"Oh!" said Jimmy slowly. "You think——"

"The absent No. 2. No. 2 is Bauer—our footman. That seems to me quite clear from what they said about expecting a report which hadn't come in—though what there can be to report about Chimneys, I can't think."

"It must be something to do with Gerry Wade's death," said Jimmy. "There's something there we haven't fathomed yet. You say they actually mentioned Bauer by name."

Bundle nodded.

"They blamed him for not having found that letter."

"Well I don't see what you could have clearer than that. There's no going against it. You'll have to forgive my first incredulity Bundle—but you know, it was rather a tall story. You say they knew about my going dow o Wyvern Abbey next week?"

"Yes, that's when the American—it was him, not the Russian—said they needn't worry—you were only the usual kind of ass."

"Ah!" said Jimmy. He pressed his foot down on the accelerator viciously and the car shot forward. "I'm very glad you told me that. It gives me what you might call a personal interest in the case."

He was silent for a minute or two and then he said:

"Did you say that German inventor's name was Eberhard?"

"Yes. Why?"

"Wait a minute. Something's coming back to me. Eberhard, Eberhard—yes, I'm sure that was the name."

"Tell me."

"Eberhard was a Johnny who'd get some patent process be applied to steel. I can't put the thing properly because I haven't got the scientific knowledge—but I know the result was that it became so toughened that a wire was as strong as a steel bar had previously been. Eberhard had to do with airplanes, and his idea was that the weight would be so enormously reduced that flying would be practically revolutionized—the cost of it, I mean. I believe he offered his invention to the German government, and they turned it down, pointed out some unden'' flaw in it—but they did it rather nastily. He set to work and circumvented the difficulty, whatever it was, but he'd been offended by their attitude and swore they shouldn't have his ewe lamb. I always thought the whole thing was probably bunkum, but now—it looks differently."

An Unofficial Conference.

"That's it," said Bundle, eagerly. "You must be right, Jimmy: Eberhard must have offered his invention to our government. They've been taking, or are going to take Sir Oswald Coote's expert opinion on it. There's going to be an unofficial conference at the Abbey. Sir Oswald, George, the air minister and Eberhard. Eberhard will have the plans or the process, or whatever you call it——"

"Formula," suggested Jimmy. "I think formu'' is a good word myself."

"He'll have the formula with him, and the Seven Dials are out to steal the formula. I remember the Russian saying it was worth millions."

"I suppose it would be," said Jimmy.

"And well worth a few lives—that's what the other man said."

"Well, it seems to have been," said Jimmy, his face clouding over. "Look at this damned inquest today, Bundle, are you sure Rony said nothing else?"

'No," said Bundle. "Just that, 'Seven Dials. Tell Jimmy Thesiger. That's all he could get out, poor lad."

"I wish we knew what he knew," said Jimmy. "But we've found out one thing. I take it that the footman, Bauer, must almost certainly have been responsible for Gerry's death. You know, Bundle——"

"Yes?"

"Well, I'm a bit worried sometimes. Who's going to be the next one! It really isn't the sort of business for a girl to be mixed up in."

Bundle smiled in spite of herself. It occurred to her that it had taken Jimmy a long time to put her in the same category as Loraine Wade.

Army-Boston U. Game at West Point to Be Broadcast Over WMAL—Byrd Expedition to Hear Stars

The football broadcast season will be opened by the Columbia Broadcasting System and associated stations with the covering of the Army-Boston University game at West Point at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Edward B ("Ted") Husing will be at the microphone at every game, assisted by Herbert B. Glover.

Charles Ruggles, popular comedian and a featured player in Paramount Pictures, assumes his new duties as regular master of ceremonies for the weekly nation-wide broadcast of the Paramount-Publix Radio Hour at 9 o'clock from WMAL. Mr. Ruggles will first introduce players who will present a radio dramatization of "Applause," starring Helen Morgan. He will then call upon Nino Martini, the Italian opera singer who was brought to the country a short time ago to make his debut in motion pictures. David Mendoza, musical director and conductor for the organization's broadcasts, will provide the music.

The radio audience will be offered popular dance music played by the Meyer Davis Swanee Syncopators between 7 and 7:30 o'clock from Station WMAL. This program is presented through the courtesy of the S. Kann Sons Co., who are celebrating their thirty-sixth anniversary next week.

Three dance orchestras will be heard from WMAL during the period between 10 o'clock and midnight.

The darkness of Antarctic winter will be dispelled by radio stars when the ethereal tour of triumph up Broadway for Commander Byrd and his South Pole Expedition is broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co., and by short wave stations of the General Electric Co., Schenectady, and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh.

The program is scheduled to be heard from WRC between 10:15 o'clock and midnight. Nathaniel Shilkret, Gustave Haenschen, Hugo Mariani, Harold Sanford, Frank Black and George Dilworth will lead the augmented symphony and jazz orchestras featured. The four masters of ceremony will be Graham McNamee, Phillips Carlin, Milton J. Cross and John S. Young.

The complete cast reads like a Who's Who in Radio. Jessica Dragonette, Gitla Erstinn, Gladys Rice and Genia Zielinska will be the featured sopranos, while Elizabeth Lennox and Devora Nadworney will blend their contralto voices in highpoints of the program. "Blues" song lovers will hear Mildred Hunt and Welcome Lewis. Tenors will include Giuseppe di Benedetto, Julian Oliver, and Robert Simmons.

A highlight of the broadcast will be "Skyward," Nat Shilkret's composition dedicated to Commander Byrd, which will be played under the direction of the composer.

Mark Twain, is the hero of the dramatic sketch to be broadcast at 7 o'clock from WRC. This is the fourth in the series of "famous challenges."

Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne," Wolf-Ferrari; Two Hungarian Dances, Nos. 17 and 21, Brahms; "Marionettes" from "Scene de Ballet," Glazounow; Dream Pantomime, from "Hansel und Gretel," Humperdinck; "Morrish March," Moszkowski; selections from the "Petite Suite," Debussy; "Viennese Rhapsody," Schmitt; "The Irish Washerwoman," Sowerby; "Under the Linden Trees," from "Scenes Alsaciennes," Massenet; "La Zarzuela," from "La Feria," Lacome; "Danse Negre," Scott, and "Marche Joyeuse," Chabrier.

Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," with incidental music from the "Peer Gynt Suite," by the Norwegian composer, Grieg, will be presented for the first time on the air in an adaptation by Vernon Radcliffe when the Radio Guild is heard at 9 o'clock from WJZ and associated stations.

A short program of mandolin and guitar music will be presented by Walter T. Holt from WOL at 6 o'clock. Lizette Follmer, contralto, a program of dance music, and the Silver String Revelers will be heard also.

The Waikiki Harmony Boys, a steel guitar combination, will play a program of Hawaiian and late popular numbers from WJSV between 8:45 and 9:30 o'clock. A Hill Billy program will begin at 9:45 o'clock and end at midnight.

WORK'S BRIDGE

Bridge Brevities, a pamphlet by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Auction and Contract Bridge, free.

This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it.

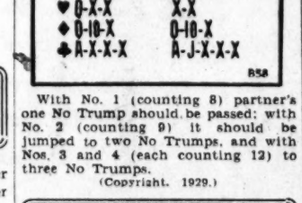
Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp) self-addressed return envelope.

Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract. Every day exclusively in The Washington Post.

THIS is the first of a series of articles describing the proper bidding in Contract after partner has bid No Trump and second hand has passed. Today we canvass the types of hands with which partner's one No Trump should be jumped to two or three No Trumps. In doing this, we will not consider hands with which the No Trump should be taken out with a suit bid—that will be a separate subject. Our question today will be between jumping the No Trump and passing.

It should be said at the outset that a five-card suit (which suggests a suit-bid take-out) is not necessarily a bar to jumping the No Trump, especially when the five-card suit is a minor. Nor is a worthless singleton (which forbids an original No Trump bid) a bar to jumping partner's No Trump. To bid No Trump originally with a worthless singleton is dangerous because partner may have a bust, but there is no such danger when partner has bid No Trump; in that case, if your hand has strength and a worthless singleton, the probability is that your No Trump bidding partner has your singleton suit guarded.

The best rule to follow when determining whether to jump partner's No Trump is to count your high cards as follows: Ace 4, King 3, Queen 2, Jack 1 and Two Tens 1. Also reckon a five-card suit as giving additional points as follows: If the suit has one of the three top honors, 1 additional point; if it has two of those honors, add 2 points, and if it has all three honors, 3 points. Figuring your hand in that way, if your partner as dealer, or second hand after dealer's pass has bid one No Trump, jump to two with a count of 9, 10 or 11; jump to three with a count of 12 or more; pass with a count of 8 or less. The following hands illustrate the above:



With No. 1 (counting 8) partner's one No Trump should be passed; with No. 2 (counting 9) it should be jumped to two No Trumps, and with Nos. 3 and 4 (each counting 12) to three No Trumps.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Divorce—the Cure-All.

Strange the ideas that find lodgment beneath the human skull. Two especially come to mind. First, the idea that marriage makes two people over again into two totally different characters—all virtues and no faults. The second, that divorce ends misery, brings back happiness, accomplishes the miracle of wiping out all that has gone before it.

There are no two ideas that have oftener been shown to be fallacies—but will the human skull dislodge them? Never. We still go on thinking that the worthless man will reform after marriage, take on a new character, be a man when he has been all his life a slacker; that the brainless girl will become a paragon of wifely wisdom once the magic words are said.

And then when time has shown that the slacker is still the slacker, and the doll head is that and nothing more, then the second idea is trotted out—divorce. Divorce will fix everything. The good little woman who picked the slacker out of all the men on earth will get a divorce and have another chance at the bull's-eye. The man who led the doll head to the altar will turn her in for another model. And everything will be lovely.

Is it? It is not. For the woman who voluntarily went out into the open market and picked herself an overgrown slacker with the brain of a bird will, when free, go right out into the same market and find herself another, while the good, steady youth who divorced the doll will never cease looking till he finds another doll as hopeless as the first.

The only solution seems to be that a certain type of human naturally selects a certain type for a mate, unless trained to do otherwise. And a certain type goes headlong into things—and headlong out of unpleasant situations. These people marry all wrong in the first place, yell for divorce, then cry for new mates, and select the same brand.

If you have any doubt as to the truth of these facts consider your friends, and be answered. Then read Nettie's plea:

"We married against the wishes of my people. He would not hold a job more than a few months and would go months doing nothing, but he said he had no one to work for. So we married anyway, and he is no better. We are swamped with debts and have a baby. This summer I met a man who wants me to get a divorce and marry him. But he is just such a man as my husband. He is a salesman and just works enough to get by. No ambition. Not a dollar ahead. However, he is good-natured, which my husband is not. I am only 26 and feel I am entitled to something out of life. How can I love a man who lets me work to keep him and our child?"

There you have it. Out of the pan into the fire. How can people regard divorce as the great cure-all for every ill? And when will we begin to teach young people how to mate intelligently?

Jane Interprets the Mode

Shorts, the latest in lingerie! We make these from half a yard—oh-o-o! (Dah-ray Designs.)

IT just seems as though we are continually surpassing our own selves! After all these years we ought to be able to be nonchalant and give a careless shrug of the shoulder and say (falsetto contemptuoso) "'Tis nothing, 'tish, nothing!" Implying, of course, that, though 'tis a very great deal indeed, 'tis a mere piffling to what we can and will do.

You see, when we designed the "bloomer that doesn't bunch," which was made from a square yard of material—we thought that was about the last possible word in lingerie achievement. And then, in just no time at all, we come along, and what do you think we evolved?

Lingerie shorts, made from half a yard of material! No, sir, they do not fit only a flipples happer—I mean hapless flipper, oh deah, deah, I mean hipless flapper! They fit, if you must have me bare my innermost secrets to the unfeeling gaze of the multitude—me—and enny-wun who has ever seen me will write you a testimonial swearing that I am anything but hipless.

And they not only fit me, but they are extremely comfortable, wrinkleless, even 'neath a garment as demanding as lounging pajamas, sitting or standing.

• • • •

Yes, they're illustrated for you today, and you can make them for yourself without the slightest trouble in the world, no matter how expert you may or may not be with the needle!

Oh, I forgot to tell you, those in the upper panel are the type that are best for tight frocks, and those on the figure are the same shorts with the addition of clever pleats, which flare them. It is this type that is worn so often now for bathing shorts, and even for tennis and golf by the "youngers."

• • • •

Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for our clearly illustrated leaflet, which tells you in the simplest possible way exactly how to make them.

• • • •

Have you realized that the silhouette is decidedly different these days? Yes, I know, we read a lot about it, we sort of admit it and all that, but at that, it doesn't always penetrate. But think a minute. Do you realize how closely gowns mold the figure from the bust to just above the knees, and distinctly flare from there? Raised waistline, molded hip, lengthened skirt, all these indicate the mode of today. Start changing your viewpoint to the new silhouette!

Fur trimmings on coats are decidedly original this season. They form large upstanding collars, and are generally disposed in irregular bands on the sleeves and sometimes on the hem.

What with a wun-n-ner-ful book being published (I mean the way it's being published is wun-n-ner-ful) and the Clever Fingers Contest and what not, we haven't been able to give you the latest "family news" from Paris. You see, I've been expecting to leave from week to week, and here I exactly am!

Ennyhow, just so's you won't be lonely, I promise to give you a little family gossip every now and then—let's call it "Family Chatter."

Uncle Ray's Corner

"Dear Uncle Ray: A donkey was on one side of a river. On the other side was some corn. The donkey wanted the corn, but could not swim. What did he do? He didn't get across in a boat or on a raft—nothing carried him across. Will you give up? Your friend,

"KEPPEL CURTIS."

Well, Keppel, I feel like giving up without even trying. You see, a donkey hasn't an oversupply of brains and, besides, he couldn't talk and tell some one to bring the corn to him. Perhaps he just lay down and went to sleep and dreamed he had the corn. If that isn't the right answer you might write us and "spring the joke."

Back in the Middle Ages there were men who used to argue about very queer things. One of their questions was this:

"What would a donkey do if he were midway between two stacks of hay and had no reason to turn his head toward one stack any more than toward the other stack?"

They talked about that a great while and at last decided that the donkey would starve to death.

There are people in the world very much like that donkey. They think of reasons for doing something and reasons against it. they are not careful they may starve to death before they do anything.

Another question which the "professors" in the Middle Ages talked about was this:

"How many angels could dance on the point of a needle?"

It was said that angels did not "take up any space at all," and therefore millions and millions of angels could dance on the point of a needle.

Personally, I do not dance very often, but when I do so I prefer something else than the point of a needle!

Uncle Ray

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

BEING talked out of some much needed rest by the persuasive eloquence of the Fox cohorts Thursday midnight, this somnolent column today is enabled to report briefly upon the peculiarly meritorious qualities of what I look upon as by far the finest characterization Will Rogers has ever brought to the screen, his first all-talkie, "They Had to See Paris," having been the subject of the malutinal preview.

"They Had to See Paris" is a Movietoned version of Owen Davis' play, based on a story by Homer Croy, and to the mind of the seasoned playgoer will recall "The Man From Home," the Booth Tarkington-Harry Leon Wilson collaboration which served as a starring vehicle for William Hodge for so many seasons, many season back. Not that there is any suggestion of plagiarism, carbon copying or anything of the sort, but merely that the ground work of the two dramatic structures is the same.

Rogers has timed his portrayal perfectly and evidently has incorporated many of his own droll lines in the dialogue. The character of Pike Peters, garage mechanic who strikes oil, as etched by the author-comedian-lecturer, is homely, humorous and completely believable. The development of the story is graced by a warming flow of keenly satirical wit, punctuated by occasional outbursts of high hilarity that are genuinely explosive.

Irene Rich, like Mr. Rogers, to my mind here offers one of the most natural and most thoroughly enjoyable character delineations she has ever executed for the cameras, and Pifi Dorsay, as a sagacious Parisian siren, is exhilariating, exotic and engaging.

I never knew, until last night that Mlle. Dorsay in private life is Mrs. Fred Berens, wife of the musical comedian, who frequently has appeared at the Fox with his educated player-piano, where she, also, I am told, is a familiar figure.

"They Had to See Paris" is an early booking that may confidently be awaited with every pleasurable anticipation.

Having got 'way behind in their own sleep, "Mike" Cullen, Sam Rubin and the others of the Loew locals have issued invitations for a preview of "The Hollywood Revue" Monday morning at 9 o'clock. This simplifies things tremendously. I can stop in on my way home!

In the September 25 issue of his "Daily Review" Arthur James publishes a defense of Will H. Hays and his organization and a verbal castigation of Welford Beaton, owner and publisher of Film Spectator, the acrid quality of which may be dimly inferred from the caption, "Skunkery at the Crossroads.' Since Mr. Hays from time to time has written me kindly letters about ideas—if any—advanced by this department, and Mr. Beaton recently reprinted one of our Sunday sermons, which, strangely enough, he liked, you can not but stand in admiration of the rigid neutrality that precludes our taking sides beyond expressing the belief that Mr. James is right!

Before it is forgotten again, as it was Thursday, it might be well to state that next week's menu provides movie fare as follows: Rialto, Madge Bellamy and a notable cast in "Tonight at Twelve;" Earle, Dolores Costello and Grant Withers in "Hearts in Exile;" Fox, May McAvoy and Monte Blue in "No Defense;" Palace, Charles McNaughton, Joan Bennett and Beryl Mercer in "Three Live Ghosts;" Little, a French cast in a silent picturization of Emile Zola's "Nana;" Metropolitan, a second week of the Technicolor production of the talking - singing - dancing picture, "Gold Diggers of Broadway," and Columbia, a second week of Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll in "The Dance of Life," also a talking-singing-dancing film.

I am indebted to J. B. Lippincott & Co. for a copy of "An Hour With the Movies and the Talkies," by Gilbert Seldes which, as far as I've gone, discloses more original ideas to the stick of type than any other tome on the same subject I have ever read. More of this—much more—later.

A selected scene from Shakespeare's "Richard III," John Barrymore's contribution to the Warner Brothers' "Show of Shows" revue, is among the material already completed for the colossal Vitaphone special. It was filmed entirely in Technicolor.

Charlie Ruggles, who has scored distinct hits in inebriety in both "Gentlemen of the Press" and "The Lady Lies," current at the Earle, is to be featured by Paramount in a new talkie by Ben Hecht, author of "Underworld" and coauthor of "The Front Page," to be directed by Hobart Henley. Title not yet decided.

Vilma Banky will be starred in one picture for M-G-M by arrangement with Samuel Goldwyn. An original story is being prepared by Sidney Howard, author of "They Knew What They Wanted" and "The Silver Cord." It will be directed by Victor Seastrom, just back from a vacation of several months in Sweden.

Somebody should have told him about Hains Point!

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF September 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9.15 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 9:30 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m.

From an astrological standpoint this is a good date. You have a mental and spiritual awakening, which will greatly influence your future outlook upon life. Travelers are in luck, and will meet with happy surprises.

Children born on this September 28 will have bold, venturesome and energetic natures. Their dominant force will carry them to the fore, and they will be looked upon as leaders. They will be lively and vivacious.

You have a healthy curiosity, which does you considerable good, and others no harm. You are interested in universal knowledge, but are not interested in the personal affairs of others. Your willingness to admit ignorance and your attempt to remedy the fact will in time make you learned. Your determination to find out and make sure of facts—to "check up"—means in the end that you learn what you want, and get what you want. It does not occur to you to camouflage ignorance by discreetly turning the conversation or making an ambiguous answer which avoids an issue. You come straight out with a query, with a naivete and absence of self-consciousness which disarms ridicule.

You are never content with the second best in anything. You are willing to pay the price for the best, and you demand full value in return. Unhampered by fear of what other people are thinking of you, reinforced by a peculiarly single-minded determination, you "get there" nearly every time.

You are very interested in the study and correct usage of words. You express yourself very clearly in both your conversation and writing. You have a naturally happy disposition, and make an interesting and a good-natured companion.

With the intent of ruining the hull of the new battleship, Connecticut, which will be launched at the New York Navy Yard, Thursday, some person or persons placed an obstruction on the ways. While Navy officials would not discuss the nature of the obstruction it is known that it was not an explosive. If it had not been found by divers and removed it would have either torn a great hole in the bottom of the ship or else thrown it on its side. None of the naval officers or men can recall another case where a malicious atempt was made to wreck a battleship.

No event in the history of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States has ever brought together so many priests, prelates and members of the hierarchy as the Third General Eucharistic Congress, which was opened with a solemn pontifical mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. The congress will continue three days.

Commissioner West was told that political banners had been permitted to hang across the Avenue every four years and the winning banner remaining until inauguration. PRICES DIP SHARPLY UNDER RISING LOANS

Heavy Trading Mitigates Stocks' Severest Break Since August.

MONEY MARKET STEADY

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Under the dark shadow of towering brokers' loans, the stock market experienced one of the most drastic declines of the year today. The efforts of pool operators, who have frequently been able to send stocks sharply higher in the face of large increases in the loan total, were like straws in the storm of selling, which carried scores of issues down 5 to 35 points.

The only factor mitigating the severity of the break was the volume of trading, which was held to fairly moderate limits, only 4,591,590 shares changing hands. Although professional short selling was undoubtedly in large volume, there was such a flood of real liquidation that short covering in the final transactions caused but negligible rallies from the day's lowest levels.

The increase of $192,000,000 shown by last night's weekly brokerage loan figures, was wholly unexpected, and in many quarters regarded as unaccountable save on the theory that stock has been passing from strong hands into marginal accounts, and the speculative structure thereby weakened. Furthermore, Wall street dislikes nothing so much as bad news which appears without warning. The market was able to maintain its equilibrium in the face of the increase in the London discount rate yesterday largely because it had been forewarned by several weeks.

Severest Since August.

The break was the most severe since the collapse during the first session after the New York Federal Reserve Bank put up its rate to 6 per cent last August, according to the Standard Statistics Co. Associated Press price indices today the index of 20 utilities dropped 10.6 points, as compared to 14.4 then, the index of 50 industrials, 6.6, as compared to 7.2, and that of 20 rails 3, as compared to 4.

There was practically nothing in the day's news of an adverse nature, save for the brokerage loan figures. Confirmed bulls tried to explain away the figures on the basis of the large volume of new financing. Traders generally have become reconciled to rising loans accompanying sagging prices, but sharply rising loans to the accompaniment of sagging prices, has been highly perplexing.

During the last four weeks, the Federal Reserve loan figures show an increase of $644,000,000. During the period covered by the figures, the price index of 50 industrials has dropped 18.7 points, that of the 20 rails, 7.6 points, while only that of the 20 utilities has gone forward, showing a gain of nearly 27 points.

Money Market Is Unchanged.

There was no change in the money market today, call money holding at 9 per cent and time money at 9 to 9½. News bearing upon trade and industry appearing during the day was generally satisfactory. The weekly reviews stated that wholesale and retail trade and lighter manufacturing lines were moving forward at a rapid pace, while steel and some of the heavier manufacturing lines continued to hesitate. Heavy buying of railroad equipment, several more large orders appearing today, is expected, however, to bolster the steel industry.

U. S. Steel was heavily sold, sagging more than 9 points to 223½, and closing at 226. Such issues as Allied Chemical, American & Foreign Power, American Can, American Telephone, Anaconda, A. M. Byers, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Johns-Manville, Macy, Montgomery Ward, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Public Service of New Jersey, Republic Steel, Simmons and Westinghouse Manufacturing closed from about 5to 12 points lower.

Motors continued to sag, several, including Chrysler and Studebaker reaching new 1929 lows, and General Motors getting within less than a point of its minimum. In the rails Chesapeake & Corporation sold at a new low for the year at 78¾. Oils sagged moderately.

Auburn Drops 33 Points.

Auburn Auto had one of its characteristically wide movements, dropping 35 points and rallying 10. Columbian Carbon lost 17 and Commercial Solvents 15 points.

A handful of utilities and specialties was bid up violently in a desperate move by bulls. Standard Gas was sent up about 25 points to a new peak, then lost about a third of its gain. American Water Works rose 14 points to a new peak at 199, and closed at 195. Merger prospects kept enthusiasm alive for the Pacific Coast utilities, Pacific Lighting and Southern California Edison reaching new peaks. Cutler Hammer reached another new top, and Industrial Rayon was bid up 14 points.

Commodities were somewhat heavy. Wheat lost about 2 cents a bushel on poorer export demand, and corn lost a cent and more. Cotton was quiet and closed a little lower.

Foreign exchanges moved in narrow ranges, sterling slipping back a little, while the French franc was firmer. Renewed weakness of sterling on Paris was ascribed to withdrawals of French balances in London for month-end requirements. The Canadian dollar rallied to 99.32 cents.

WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1929. 13

MAJOR FOOTBALL TEAMS TO OPEN SEASON TODAY

Chattanooga Farm Likely For Nats

Engel's Purchase of Club Pending; Nats May Train There.

Yankees Here Today for Double-Header at 1:30.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

EVERY indication points to Chattanooga being a Washington baseball farm next season, in view of the likely purchase of the Southern Association club by Scout Joe Engel, who has announced from the Tennessee city that he expects to close the deal shortly. While the Dixie league still has the rule in effect that blocked the Nats' purchase of the Atlanta Club—that a majority of the board of directors must approve the sale of any of its clubs to major leaguers—Engel claims to be dickering for the purchase of the Chattanooga Club on his own account and declares that the Nationals are not interested.

The Washington "ivory" hunter, however, is not what might be called a rich man, and if the owners of the Nats are not helping him swing the deal it looks like a sure bet that, in view of the close connections between them and Engel, an effective working agreement by which the Nats will have all of the benefits which a "farm" would give them will be put in effect.

It is also likely that if Engel buys the Chattanooga Club the Nationals will do their spring training there, Secretary E. B. Eynon, jr., now being at Chattanooga looking into the matter of facilities.

With competition so keen in the majors the Nationals surely need closer connections with at least one minor league club to hold their own in the battle for players and in the opportunity of developing talent for themselves, and Engel's purchase of the Chattanooga Club, no doubt, will give them this, one way or another.

Jones and Marberry To Face Yanks.

Baseball buried its dead yesterday when all American League games were postponed as a mark of respect to Miller Huggins, Yankee leader, whose rites were held in New York. In order to complete the schedule, it was necessary for a double-header to be staged at the Griffith Stadium this afternoon. The Yankees will be here with play scheduled to start at 1:30 o'clock.

Manager Johnson plans to use "Sad Sam" Jones and Fred Marberry as pitchers, while Roy Sherid and George Pipgras are expected to get the call from Acting Manager Art Fletcher, of the New Yorkers.

If the Nationals could start their season in August each year, they would have an excellent chance of winning the pennant, judging from the pace they have set during the waning days of last year and this. They ended the 1928 schedule with the best record for the last month or so and are duplicating the stunt this season. Since they left town last August 7, they have won 30 games and lost 19, for a .612 average. The Senators won 26 and lost 18 during this period, the Yankees split 52 games, the Indians won 24 of 44, while Bucky Harris' Tigers could do no better than capture 18, while losing 28.

St. John's Weakened For William and Mary

Special to The Washington Post.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Sept. 27.—The St. Johns College football team, minus the assistance of a number of crack freshmen and several ineligibles, arrived here this morning to get in its practice workout under the arc lights before tackling the William and Mary Eleven in their initial melee tomorrow night. The game is scheduled for 8:30 and will be played under flood lights surrounding Cary Field.

The Johnnies will be without their full strength on the field inasmuch as a freshman agreement with William and Mary prevents several otherwise varsity regulars from appearing in the lineup, which follows: Carpenter and Novicki, ends; Jos and Lotz, tackles; Bean and Fields, guards; Capt. Turner, center; Cassa, quarter back; Lynch and Maccartee or Dulin, half backs, and Armacost full back.

EASTERN 19-0 VICTOR IN OPENER

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

WITH Everett Oxley and Charley Millar leading the way, Eastern High's championship-aspiring eleven opened its season in an auspicious manner yesterday afternoon by downing its ancient rivals from Calvert Hall in the Lincoln Park Stadium, 19-0. These two young men did practically all the ball carrying for the victors and removed all doubt as to the assurance of a capable back field for the Easterners this season.

Due to the late arrival of the visitors from Baltimore the game was not started until 4:15 and only 8-minute quarters were the order.

This condition probably prevented the score from being a bit higher in Eastern's favor as the first half ended with the ball in their possession on the visitors' 15-yard line.

Although Oxley and Millar were outstanding among their team-mates, Bennie McCullough also put up a whale of a game for the winners and was instrumental in making many short gains through the line.

Interception of Pass Leads To Victory.

The little back was also indirectly responsible for the last Eastern touchdown, as it was his interception of an enemy pass on his own 37-yard line which gave his team possession of the ball, which it never lost until McCullough himself had planted it beyond the last white line.

With the backs performing in a tip-top manner, the Eastern line likewise acquitted itself well with a stone-wall defense which was well-nigh impenetrable to the erstwhile ground gainers of Calvert Hall. Not only were the visitors stopped cold at every turn, but on no less than three occasions the Eastern line broke through to smear their opponents far behind the line of scrimmage. Led by Capt. Tom Nally, the light Blue and White line not once allowed its opponents to reach the secondary defense.

New York Pays Last Tribute At Bier of Miller Huggins

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—In a service as simple as the life of Miller Huggins led, New York this afternoon said its prayer for the manager of the New York Yankees and his body left with an escort of baseball players, officials and writers, to rest in the soil of his native Cincinnati.

The funeral, held in the Church of the Transfiguration, "The Little Church Around the Corner," was attended by a congregation of fewer than 500 persons, limited by the capacity of the small edifice, but more than 10,000 others stood massed about the corners of Twenty-ninth street at Madison and Fifth avenues. Police permitted only those going to the church to enter the street between the two avenues after the lines twice had broken out of control.

More than half the small congregation was made up of men connected with baseball. All the Yankees, from little Eddie Bennett, the batboy, the big Babe Ruth, were there, arriving in a body just before the service began. Eight were pallbearers —Arthur Fletcher, Charles O'Leary Babe Ruth, Herbert Pennock, Bob Shawkey, Tom Lazzeri, Lou Gehrig and Earl E. Combs.

Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League, and John A. Heydler, president of the National League, Thomas S. Shibe, president of the Athletics, William F. Baker, president of the Phillies, Robert Quinn, president of the Red Sox, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, Wilbert Robinson, president - manager of Brooklyn and Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Braves, were among the baseball executives present.

Baseball Notables On Hand.

Led by John J. McGraw, virtually every member of the Giants came to the church and a majority of the Brooklyn team had places. Tris Speaker, who in other days matched baseball hits with Huggins, and dozens of players of yesterday's baseball generation, such as Hans Lobert and Rube Marquard were there.

Flowers from all parts of the country, from his adopted home, St. Petersburg, Fla., and as far away as California, banked the chanel. Almost every well-known organization in baseball was represented and some were from the great rank and file "just fans."

Every bat and glove in the American League was idle today by order of President Barnard as a tribute of respect to the manager of the retiring world champions.

The Episcopal funeral service was read by the Rev. W. H. Weigle, chaplain of the Episcopal Actors Guild, assisted by the Rev. B. A. McLaughlin, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration. The Rev. J. E. Price, pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, a close friend of Huggins, delivered the eulogy.

Huggins Paid Tribute By Dr. Price.

Speaking in intimate vein, Dr. Price drew a picture of a weary Miller Huggins finding rest at last. The speaker first paid tribute to his friend as a baseball manager and then as a man.

Edward G. Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, could not attend the services for his friend and colleague. Breaking under the strain of the Yankee manager's illness, he was confined to his home by sickness.

The body of the little manager was taken from the church to a railway station and at 4 o'clock started on its journey west, a pilgrimage Huggins often made at the head of his all-conquering Yankees.

Barons and Dallas Play 3d Series Game Today

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—One riding the crest, the other down but grimly determined to fight its way back, the Birmingham and Dallas clubs reached here late today after their long jump from Alabama and prepared to resume the battle for Dixie baseball supremacy tomorrow.

Triumphing in two tilts at Birmingham, Johnny Dobbs and his Barons rated excessive favorites over the Texas League champions. In order to bring this circuit its ninth victory in ten series against the Southern Association's best, the Herd will have to win four out of its next five starts, including at least one in Birmingham. So far the club has displayed little aptitude at beating the Barons anywhere.

St. John's Academy At Thomas High Today

Petersburg, W. Va., Sept. 27.—St. John's Academy opens its 1929 grid season tomorrow against Thomas High at Thomas. With only a remnant of the 1928 eleven, the locals go into the game somewhat at a disadvantage. The squad has been cut by Coach Sheasley to nineteen men, who have been sent through daily workouts. Only two games will be played on the home field this year, although next year will see a corresponding increase in home contests.

The schedule as announced:

CHOICES WIN WAY TO PRO NET FINAL

Richards Beats Heston; Kozeluh Pressed by Kinsey.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Triumphant in the final of the first national professional doubles championship ever staged in the United States as well as in the semifinals of the singles, Vincent Richards and the great little Czechoslovakian pro, Karel Kozeluh, monopolized the honors on the tennis courts of the West Side Stadium today.

A gallery, generously estimated at 800, saw some of the finest tennis produced on these famous courts this year. Richards, at the peak of his game, defeated Paul Heston, clever young Washington professional, by scores of 6—1, 6—3, 6—4, and Kozeluh beat off the challenge of Howard Kinsey, San Francisco star, at 6—4, 6—4, 7—5, in the other semifinal.

The doubles final provided plenty of tennis fireworks, Kinsey and Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, going down to defeat at the hands of Richards and Kozelah only after a hard and spectacular struggle. The scores were 5—7, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1. Kinsey and Johnson, a strong team of former amateur stars, slowed up after taking the first set with the aid of sensational volleying. The better physical condition of Kozeluh and Richards carried them through in the later sets.

Heston Took Set at Palm Beach.

Heston, who took a set from Richards when they met at Palm Beach two winters ago, was no match for Viney this afternoon. The Washington player flashed a game that probably would have beaten any but the five or six best amateurs in the country, but against the hard hitting and experienced Richards his efforts were of no avail.

Kozeluh was pressed considerably harder in his match with Kinsey. The bespectacled and chunky Californian master of the heavily topped arching ground shot, half drive and half lob played a canny game, mixing this form of attack with flat chops and occasionally meeting the ball on the volley. Long interchanges marked the play, which was closer than the scores indicate. Kinsey was beaten only after having warded off Kozeluh at match point three times in earlier games.

After the matches, Richards was quietly optimistic over his chances against Kozeluh tomorrow, although he was frank to admit that his victory over the European in the final last year was made easier by the fact that the match was played in the rain. This, he said, hampered his volleying game less than it bothered Kozeluh, who usually prefers to take the ball on the bound.

PLAY TOMORROW.

Georgetown, Maryland In Debut

Washington College at College Park; C. U. at Boston.

A SEEMINGLY endless training period has closed, and today Joe Fan will see college football teams playing for "keeps."

Two games form the local contribution to the general opening program of the big fall sport. Georgetown will engage Mount St. Mary's, of Emmitsburg, Md., at the Hilltop, starting at 2:30 o'clock, and Maryland University will entertain Washington College, of Chestertown, Md., at College Park, commencing at 3 o'clock.

Victory for the home team is expected in each contest. Both Georgetown and Maryland will present their strongest line-ups at the start. If things progress as looked for the respective coaches will yank their regulars in favor of subs and thereby will save their best men for next Saturday's hard games.

The only question concerning the personnel of either local starting array was cleared up last night by Coach Lou Little of Georgetown. He said that Harold "Ching" Wynkoop, veteran of the 1928 team, would be the Hilltop's snapper-back at the opening whistle.

Only Brennan, the 155-pound left end of Georgetown, has never seen action in a varsity game before. This scrappy youngster came up from the 1928 freshmen and has beaten out several larger and more experienced players for the position.

Although rated lowly, Mount St. Mary's and Washington College are known to be tireless fighters, Georgetown and Maryland will have to play football all the way to win. Three years ago the Saints threw the Hilltoppers into a panic, but they finally went down, beaten by one touchdown. Adding interest to the Hilltop-Saints clash will be the presence of Mike Tracy, former Gonzaga High star, as quarter back for the visiting eleven.

District Boy Dominates Maryland Squad.

As usual, Maryland is filled with former Washington high school players. All but Warcholy obtained their early training in the Capital's public and private schools. The Old Liners' second-string team also is composed mostly of former Washington schoolboys.

Unless the visiting elevens prove troublesome, Lou Little and Curly Byrd will send practically all of their players into action. The first-string combinations will stay in there only long enough to insure triumph.

A third local team, Catholic University, also swings into the parade today. The Cardinals meet Boston College, undefeated and untied last year, in the Hub. Coach Jack McAuliffe's club figures to hold the Eagles to a lower score than that of their 1928 engagement, but by no stretch of the imagination looms the winner. The game will be played in Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

Catholic probably will start against the Eagles with Gerth and Zeno at the flanks; O'Connor and Raffhe, tackles; Menke and Monaco, guards; Ambrose, center; Oliver, quarterback; Kane and Champa, half backs, and Capt. Malevich, full back. Gene Murphy, the Cards' regular quarter last year, is nursing a sore back but may be able to get into some part of the game.

BUSMEN STILL GOING.

The Arlington Busmen will meet the Anacostia Eagle Nine, Sunday, at 2:30 o'clock, on the Arlington Diamond.

Phils in 5th Place; Defeat Braves, 11 to 5

Philadelphia, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The Phillies consolidated their forces in fifth place today by defeating the Braves by 11 to 5 as the Robins lay idle in Brooklyn. The Phils now hold the top of the second division by a margin of half a game. Lou Koupal held the Braves safely enough until his mates had pounded out a good lead at the expense of Gorham Leverett and Walter Perry.

Chuck Klein hit his forty-second home run in the first inning with one on base. The blow sent Klein into a tie with Melvin Ott for the league lead, and matched Rogers Hornsby's National League record of 42 homers hit in 1922.

Frank O'Doul virtually clinched the individual batting championship by getting three safeties and a pass as Babe Herman lay idle. O'Doul raised his average to .394, 10 points above Herman.

Few Contests Offer Close Battles

South, West Elevens Most Active; Little Conference Play.

Warm-Up Games Are Rule in First Rush to Gridirons.

By ALAN GOULD,
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—With the debate still on over the latest heavyweight punch and the world's series yet in the conversational stage, old man football and most of his boys will leap into action tomorrow to further complicate the scene for the popeyed spectators of the sporting whirl.

It will mark the first general rush of the major teams across the gridirons from coast to coast. Though like skirmishes are forecast for the most part, the big fellows will have an opportunity to display their stuff in actual combat for the first time, with the chance that some of them may find unexpected opposition from the little fellows.

Such changes as have been made in the football rules for 1929, especially that making all fumbles dead at the points of recovery, have been designed to help the little fellows and eliminate a lot of the "breaks." The preliminary tests will be watched with considerable interest.

Few Major Teams Are Idle.

Major conference teams North and South, East and West, will figure in tomorrow's play with a few exceptions, including the old Eastern big three—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—and six members of the Big Ten—Purdue, Ohio State, Northwestern Chicago, Minnesota and the championship Illinois eleven. These aggregations make their debut next Saturday, October 5, but the warfare is on a widespread scale otherwise.

All the Pacific Coast Conference teams, all members of the Southwestern Conference and 20 of the 28 of the Southern Conference outfits are slated to play, but the Big Six of the Missouri Valley area, where Nebraska is the present ruler, have another week of practice. Georgia Tech, which had the best claim of any to national championship honors last year, is one of the few Southern elevens making a delayed getaway.

The East has not much prospect of early excitement, although there will be interest in the opening exploits of the Army's all-American, Red Cagle, as the Cadets take on Boston University. The Navy meets a little foe from Ohio, Denison University. West Virginia was upset last year by Davis and Elkins, but is not likely to be caught napping again. Syracuse has an Eastern innovation in its night game with Hobart.

The only Southern Conference championship game brings together Vanderbilt and the University of Mississippi at Nashville. There may also be fireworks at New Orleans, where Clark Shaughnessy's Loyola Team entertains Rice Institute, from the Southwestern Conference group.

Michigan begins the Big Ten doubleheader program playing Mount Union and Albion, under the new regime of Harry Kipke. Wisconsin, Indiana and Iowa are the only other Western Conference teams scheduled to play.

These Rocky Mountain Conference teams—the Utah Champions, Montana State and Brigham Young—are scheduled against nonconference foes. On the Pacific Coast, Southern California tackles its Los Angeles rival, U. C. L. A., for the first time, while Stanford goes against the Olympic Club veterans. California meets the frequently dangerous Santa Clara Team, and Washington tackles Whitman.

FRIAR CLIFF SCORES LUCKY WIN IN GRAW FEATURE

Lisa, Choice, Blocked in Stretch

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 27. In the running of this afternoon's feature race, the Perryville Purse, a dash of a mile and 70 yards, Friar Cliff came back with another winning effort, when he beat the Harry Payne Whitney filly, Lisa, a length. His victory was a lucky one. It is doubtful that he would have beaten Lisa had the latter had a clear passage.

There were five starters in the Perryville, Sweet Genevieve, Russet and Passing By, being withdrawn. In the early running, Reform and Lieutenant Russell went to the front and made the pace, Lisa and Friar Cliff racing in behind. The riders on this pair were watching each other. Both lads made their move at the same time.

Going to the turn into the home stretch Steffen went to the outside of the leaders with Friar Cliff, while Robertson elected to hang to the rail in an effort to save ground. The result was that when he tried to go through he found himself blocked, and the interference forced him to take back to last place but one.

Friar Cliff Takes Lead at Furlong Pole.

In the meantime Friar Cliff had taken command, and drew away into a lead of a length and a half at the furlong pole. Robertson then took Lisa to the outside, and when the Whitney racer found a clear passage she closed with a rush and at the finish was catching the winner at every stride. Lisa was a 1-to-2 favorite and her defeat was a costly one to the public.

The weather man was again kind to the management and another large crowd came over from Philadelphia and Baltimore to witness the sport. The followers of "Sonny" Workman profited handsomely when the Whitney jockey won the first three races with Red Briar, Skirl and Joy Rock.

A driving finish came with the running of the fifth race, when Rejuvenation lasted long enough to beat Ruby Keller out a scant length. Rejuvenation was a favorite and was ridden by Steve O'Donnell. After breaking none too well, Rejuvenation gradually improved his position in the run down the back stretch and, catching the tiring pacemaker, Sanford, at the furlong pole, he took command to retain the lead the balance of the trip. Ruby Keller, a trailer the first half mile, closed an immense gap, but after she got to the winner in the homestretch she began to weaken. The early pacemakers tired badly the last furlong and dropped out of the contention.

Intrepid Shows Gameness To Outrun Platers.

Intrepid, under a rousing ride, beat the big band of platers that went to the post in the sixth race. He was ridden by C. E. Allen and displayed rare gameness when he came again after appearing to be beaten at the top of the homestretch, to wear down the tiring Blue Flag. Robertson attempted to make a runaway race of it with Blue Flag. He rushed him to the front at the half-mile pole, and rounding the far turn drew away into a commanding lead. At the furlong pole he looked a certain winner, but when put to the test he weakened. Captain Applejack was third.

Joy Rock Romps Home Under Workman.

Joy Rock scored an easy victory in the running of the third race when he won in a gallop. Workman kept him right up with the pace in the early running and entering the home stretch came through on the inside with a rush to assume an easy lead in the stretch. At the finish he was going away with a lead of three lengths over Good Shepherd, the latter had plenty of foot in the early stages but could not hold it, and when Joy Rock challenged he collapsed. Torrence was a tiring third, four lengths farther back. There were fifteen starters, and they were an ordinary lot. One of the cheapest fields that has gone to the post at the meeting.

The Bedwell Stable horses which are in particularly good condition just now furnished the winner of the Young Maryland Handicap, the conditions of which called for horses foaled in Maryland. Red Briar a son of Thunderstorm, out of that good mare Red Briarpath was the one to carry the White and Green cap to victory. He was ridden by R. Workman and in a sinew-straining finish was first home beating the odds-on favorite Scared o' Nothing.

Kitty Marie Cuts Out Early Pace.

There were six starters and, Scared o' Nothing went to post an odds-on favorite in early running. Kitty Marie went to the front and made the pace until just before entering the homestretch when Red Briar went to the front, Scared o' Nothing who began slowly moved up at this stage and joined issue with Red Briar and the pair fought it out head and head the remainder of the trip.

Red Briar, under strong urging, hung on with determination and the favorate was never to improve his position. Three lengths away Assiz was up in final stride to beat tired pacemaker, Kitty Marie, out a nose for third place.

TRINITY A. C. DRILLS.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT C. COLLYER

GETAWAY DAY. Out at Lincoln Fields, the jobbies, janes, hicks, molls and floaters will take the air this afternoon for a session at Hawthorne and what have you? On such occasions it is the habit of your humble servant to dig deep into the old vat; hence, I am going to call it Greely Day at Lincoln. This good "Irish bye" has POMEGRANATE in the first. BRUNO in the second, and TRAYMORE in the sixth. All can win and for your further information I know the stable is usually shooting from taw.

Harking back to BRUNO, it is of moment to say this hide is just a trifle better than ordinarily rated and seven furlongs is his leather. True, ZETA is consistent while SALONA and THE PADRE are closely bunched. Let your conscience be your guide.

In the day's opener old GIBBONS is asked to strut his stuff and should be able to fall down, get up turn three somersaults, then be first to catch the judge in the eye.

In the closing spasm I am taking STELVIO, the bird yanked forth from the vat by yours truly, earlier in the meeting. Take it on the run, fellows, and meet me at Hawthorne next week.

Over at Woodbine, Canadian racing over the mile tracks comes to a close for the year. As usual Secretary Fraser has arranged an outstanding card with the Ontario Jockey Club Cup over the one and one-half miles' journey wieing with the Hendrie Memorial Steeplechase and the Durham Cup as headliners. For the cup, CARTAGO, prepared by that astute horseman, Lloyd Gentry, is given the preference. As a matter of fact this horse has been pointed for this race. IOLLAN, FRISCIUS and MARINE are closely bunched.

For the cross-country affair the EASTLAND ENTRY seems to have a considerable call. Both horses are fit as the proverbial fiddle, also they rate within a point or two of each other. They may run one two.

WOODBINE.

2—Vacillate, Tonic Rock, Pinus.
4—Cartago, Iollan, Friscius.
5—Mr. Gaiety, Beau of the West, Attack.
7—Trieze, Euphrates, Royal Doulton.

Best—Vacillate.

Wood God, at 10 to 1, Winner at Aqueduct

Aqueduct Race Track, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—George H. Bull's Wood God, showing remarkable improvement over his recent race, won the Yaphank claiming handicap which featured a very poor card here today. Wood God was 10 to 1 and won in a gallop. Sunny Saint was second and Scots Grey third. Cadilla, the favorite, finished next to last, running a very bad race.

Juggler and Stupendous were used up in their mad attempt to gain the lead. They set a sizzling pace to the stretch where they both stopped. Meanwhile Elston, on Wood God, rode him hard and closing gamely, Wood God won by two lengths. Sunny Saint beat Scots Grey a nose for second money. The mile was run in 1:39 1-5.

BALDWIN RETAINS ARMY GOLF TITLE

Maj. Bradley Beaten in Final

Women's Title Won by Mrs. Hird at Manor Club.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

LIEUT. E. A. BALDWIN, a reserve officer in the Second Corps Area, New York City, who last year won the Army golf championship on the Chevy Chase course, yesterday retained his title when he defeated Maj. O. N. Bradley, of the Fourth Corps Area, Atlanta, 2 and 1, on the course of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club, in the final round of 36 holes.

Maj. Bradley struggled bravely to dethrone the champion, both contestants exhibiting a fine brand of golf. At the conclusion of the morning round Lieut. Baldwin, with a card of 77, was only 1 up on his opponent, whose medal score totaled 78. With the first three holes of the final eighteen halved, Lieut. Baldwin increased his lead to 3 up by winning the fourth and sixth holes, also capturing the eighth when Maj. Bradley missed a short putt that would have given him a half. Maj. Bradley, however, won the seventh and ninth, so that at the turn Lieut. Baldwin had an advantage of only two holes.

The tenth was won by Maj. Bradley with a par 3, but Lieut. Baldwin took the eleventh with a birdie 3. Maj. Bradley scored a birdie 4 and again won on the twelfth but, with the thirteenth halved, lost the fourteenth, 335 yards, to Lieut. Baldwin's birdie 3. Lieut. Baldwin was now 2 up, an advantage which he held to the seventeenth tee.

Maj. Bradley Misses 20-Foot Putt by Inches.

On the seventeenth green, the thirty-fifth of the match, Maj. Bradley endeavored to run down a 20-foot putt for a birdie 2, but failed by a couple of inches. With the hole halved in par 3's, the match was over. The feature of the match was Lieut. Baldwin's driving, at least three of his tee shots measuring over 300 yards. The cards of the final round:

Out
Baldwin	4	5	4	5	4	5	4	4	4	—39
Bradley	4	5	4	6	4	5	4	5	3	—40
Baldwin	4	3	5	3	5	4	3	5	—37	—76
Bradley	3	5	4	5	4	5	4	3	5	—38—78

Mrs. H. B. Hird, who won the women's club championship at the Manor club in 1927 and who was runner-up last year, yesterday again annexed the title, defeating Mrs. B. C. Hartig in the final round of the eighteen holes, 1 up. Mrs. Hird had an extended battle to reach the final, defeating Mrs. D. N. Burnham on the nineteenth hole, while Mrs. Hartig was carried to the twentieth hole before she won from Mrs. E. M. McClelland.

In the second flight Mrs. D. M. McPherson, who had defeated Mrs. W. L. Eddy, 4 and 3, in the semifinal round, was victor over Miss Eleanor Smith, 6 and 2. Miss Smith, in the semifinal round, played against her mother, Mrs. R. Scott-Smith, and won on the nineteenth hole.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 27.—Episcopal High School will entertain the Alexandria High School at football at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on Hoxton Field, the stamping ground of the Episcopalians, this marking the resumption of athletic relations between the two institutions, which were suspended some years ago.

Coach Reynolds, of the Big Reds, has made several shifts in his line-up since last week's game in Newport News, and expects to meet the Episcopalians on at least equal footing. The Alexandrians will be handicapped by the loss of Capt. Sidney Hancock, who was injured in the Newport News game, but will be able to fill the vacancy with one of the second string men.

The Old Dominion Boat Club Bowling League opened last night at the Health Center before a large gathering of bowling fans. The Sculls and Sweeps won three games, while the Splashes landed two of theirs. Wimstead, captain of the Sculls, was high man in the single game rolling, with 126, and also was high set with 343. O'Daniel was the runner-up, rolling 124 for high game. The high set for the evening went to the Sculls, with 1,418, the Sweeps running second with 1,415.

E. V. Weems entered the finals in the Belle Haven Country Club bowl golf tourney yesterday when he defeated Beaudric L. Howell one up in a thrilling round. T. E. Sebrell, jr., and Col. Pipes will be the next to play a semifinal match, and the winner of this tilt will meet Weems in the finals, which will be played tomorrow and Sunday. Weems was the winner of this tourney last year, and a victory over the winner of the other final match will give him two legs on the silver bowl, the rules requiring that it be won three times before it passes into the permanent possession of an individual.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime—By H. W. Webster

VA. LINE-UP IN OPENER SECRET

Cavaliers Entertain Randolph-Macon This Afternoon.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 27.—Virginia is ready for the opening of the 1929 football season against Randolph-Macon College on Lambeth Field tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Supporters of both Cavaliers and Yellowjackets will watch this game with more interest than usual. Both squads are under new coaches this season and the play tomorrow will give the first indication as to probable future performances.

Earl Abel, head coach of Virginia's varsity, has not made public the line-up he will use in action for the first time. He is not even telling the men on his squad.

The line is more uncertain than the back field. Of course, George Taylor, veteran center for two seasons, will be in his old position and Dick Turner, regular end, will finish off the left flank. It is more than likely that Hunter Motley, a veteran, and Larry Whalen, who has not played with the varsity before, will be the tackles.

Dunn and Kimball May Start as Guards.

In the last scrimmage of the week, Churchill Dunn, substitute line man last fall, and Bob Kimbal, who is on the squad for the first season, played the guards. They may start tomorrow, but the call may go to some others. John Peyton, former freshman end, seems to have a temporary edge over Bill Paxton and Bill Byrd for the right wing.

Capt. Johnny Sloan, Hunter Faulconer, Gus Kaminer and Albert Lewy, the four back field veterans from last fall, have been worked together in practice and will probably start as a unit.

Weakened Tiger Team To Face Bridgewater

Special to The Washington Post.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Sept. 27.—With their home schedule opening tomorrow with Bridgewater on Death Valley, the Tiger Eleven will not be at its full strength. Injuries which took their toll before the V. M. I. game have been increasing daily. More men have been hurt this year than has been the case in the past six years of early season work.

The list of injured men include some of the heaviest and more experienced members of the squad. Franklin, expected to fill the shoes of Speck Worden, smashed a shoulder and was not even taken on the V. M. I. trip. Hammack, big lineman, also received a shoulder injury. Perry, promising young tackle, is out of the game for the rest of the season with a fractured shoulder. Hunt, Hughes, and Garden are nursing sprained ankles.

V. M. I. MEETS RICHMOND TODAY

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 27.—A hard scrimmage Wednesday topped off V. M. I.'s rough work this week in preparation for the game here tomorrow with the University of Richmond Spiders. Today was given over to a final polishing-up process designed to put the Flying Squadron in fighting trim.

Frequent substitutions have been made in the first team line-ups this week, but the chances are that the starting eleven will be practically the same as that which opened the season against Hampden-Sidney. Capt. Al Hawkins will call the signals and Roy Dunn will be back at the full back post. Coach Bill Raftery is uncertain whether he will pair Lofty Williams and Bernard McCray at half back, or Johnnie Biggs and Charlie Holtzclaw. All of these backs saw service last Saturday, and there is little to choose among them.

In the line Coaches Ed Hess and Stag Binish will give the center assignment to the veteran Virgil Grow, who will be flanked at one guard by Phil Willard. The other guard berth is a toss-up between Bill Haase and Arthur Markiis, with a possibility that Aubrey Grow will be shifted there from tackle.

Chadwick, Smith Sure to Start as Tackles.

The great game played last week by Louis Chadwick and Ben Smith almost insures their starting as tackles, and the chances are that Tommie Scott and T. O. Palmer will be on the flanks, though the latter may be replaced by Jo Moody, who has been on the sick list.

The heaviest line-up likely to take the field for the Cadets would average slightly over 175 pounds, about 177 in the line and 172 in the back field. Several possible changes, however, would bring much lighter men into the game, and lower the average several pounds for both the forwards and the ball toters. The game Saturday will be called at 2:30, and the Cadets expect to be set to wipe out the sting of last year's 6-to-6 deadlock.

St. John's Preps Win From Geo. Mason, 19-0

Paully Byrne's St. John's prepmen opened their season with a win yesterday by scoring over the George Mason High School, 19 to 0. The game was an unexpected battle for both teams, as it was only arranged Friday morning by the two coaches.

Rogers and Scanlon were the big men for the winners. The first-named headed the latter by one in number of points scored by crossing the goal line twice for touchdowns, while Scanlon added the third late in the game.

At half time, St. John's led, 13 to 0. With the game apparently tucked away, Coach Byrne threw practically a new team into the fray, sending in nine substitutes. Only Quigley, end, and Kuhn, tackle, were left in the game, being the only two members of the team to play throughout the entire four quarters.

N. C. U. READY FOR WAKE FOREST

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 27.—Sixty Tar Heel gridmen were tensely set tonight for the whistle blast that will ring through Kenan Stadium tomorrow afternoon and set a ton of Tar Heel beef and brawn charging another ton of Wake Forest material in the first Big Five game of another football season.

With Duke playing at Mercer, Davidson hitting an outside team and the other Big Five aggregation laying idle, the game here will easily be the day's headliner in North Carolina. A record crowd is expected to be on hand when the referee's whistle rings out through Kenan Stadium at 2:30 o'clock and sets the ancient rivals to struggling on the first lap of the 1929 State Championship fight, won by the Tar Heels last year.

Tarheels Well Primed Despite Flock of Injuries.

Despite a flock of injuries that have struck the camp in the last week, the Tar Heels were fairly well primed tonight and in fine spirits for the morrow's battle. A light workout rounded out the four-week practice drive, and the coaches sent the boys off to get "plenty of sleep."

Head Coach Chuck Collins announced today that Ellis Crew, 187-pound reserve left guard, would be started at right guard. The week has been open season on Tarheel right guards, four having gone the injured route, two in an automobile accident. The absence of a veteran at right guard will handicap the Tarheels, but the youngster Crew has proven dependable in scrimmage and should come through.

The "old guard" of veterans will start for the Tarheels. Holt and Fenner, ends; Koenig and Adkins, tackles, and Capt. Farris, guard, all slated to start, are all seniors. Crew and Lipscomb, the center, are both juniors of a year's experience.

Jimmy Ward, a senior, will be at left half, and Yank Spaulding, another senior, at full back. Strud Nash and Pete Wyrich, who will start at right half and quarter back, will be the junior members, but both are letter men.

Moorefield Defeats Keyser High by 6 to 0

Moorefield, W. Va., Sept. 27.—Moorefield High nosed out a 6-to-0 victory over Keyser High in the first grid game of the season here this week. The locals were off form in the first quarter, but struck a winning stride in the second. Moorefield carried the fight to Keyser from the first. Not a single substitution was made in the Moorefield line-up.

38-Year-Old Tackle Wages Battle for Post at Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 27.—When and if Charles Walker is playing tackle for the University of Virginia, the Cavaliers will have a decided edge on any opponent in the matter of experience, at least.

For Walker is unique among the football players of the day. He is a 38-year-old native of Charlottesville, a prosperous iron foundry operator, who was playing football at Hampden-Sidney in 1910 when most of his present teammates were in swaddling clothes and before some had entered this vale of tears.

The years have not dealt unkindly with Walker in a physical way. Always active, he had little superfluous flesh to work off in early season training. He has been working with the second squad during most of the practice sessions, but Coach Earl Abel regards him as promising varsity timber.

Veteran Ideally Built For Tackle Post.

Walker, now a student at the university law school, is taking his football as more than a pastime and a diversion and his determined play in practice has led Coach Abel to point out the veteran as a model worker on the field. A veritable giant in stature, Walker is ideally built for the tackle position and it is the feeling at Virginia that he will play "a lot of football" before the season is over.

Walker has shown little difficulty in adjusting himself to the modern style of play. A far cry from the mass play and flying wedge tactics that were employed in the days that the veteran played in the back field for Hampden-Sidney 19 years ago. He is a student of modern football and when he sends his huge frame crashing into the opposition, the latter realizes that somebody has been hit hard.

Ordinarily, Walker would be ineligible for the Virginia eleven under the Southern Conference rules which bar transfers, but under a strange state of circumstances there are no bars for Walker, inasmuch as Hampden-Sidney in 1910 had a student body of less than 100 and under the rules of the conference could not be recognized as a college.

Gained Ground Without Taking a Step.

Walker likes to tell of the days at Hampden-Sidney, and his stories emphasize the progress of the gridiron game in the colleges. It was during the season of 1910 that "Hampden-Sidney employed a play that was common among the larger colleges.

This particular formation was employed only when precious yards were needed for a touchdown or first down. The essence of the play lay in the handles sewed on the pants of the usually diminutive quarter back. When the ball was snapped to the latter, it was a very easy matter for two big half backs to lay hold of the quarter back and with a perfunctory expenditure of strength heave him high and wide over the scrimmage line, to fall as best he may, but always far enough to gain the needed yardage. This sort of thing was not only common in Walker's palmy days, but also very expeditious.

HANDICAPED V. P. I. TEAM TO PLAY

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 27.—With a final light rehearsal of Pop Warner's renowned methods of attack this afternoon, Virginia Poly's eleven rests tonight, ready for the kick-off which will insugurate the opening tilt with Roanoke College and the thirty-ninth gridiron campaign in Miles Stadium tomorrow.

Scores of cadets lined the stadium field this afternoon to lend encouragement to a makeshift Gobbler eleven which tomorrow will seek to cast further into oblivion the sting of two tie games in the long V. P. I.-Roanoke series which dates all the way back to the "gay nineties."

This array is a long cry from the early dreams of a veteran eleven. Injuries or illness have taken Mark Ritter and Buckner Green from the picture, temporarily, at least, so that neither of the first-string tackles will be in the game. Davis and Stark, the emergency linemen, show promise and have weight, but lack experience.

Jack Gray, revamped end, is a guard of one week's training. His career here has been marked by fast tactics at both tackle and end. Now, his speed fits him well to be one of those hustling(fast-stepping guards of the type Pop Warner demanded in his off-tackle thrusts. Hal Wimmer, the new center, was a third-string pivot man last year, but knows quite a bit of football and has shown to advantage in scrimmage during the training period. Walter Pattie, Dixit boxing champ, is now at right end and Capt Nutter will return after a season's absence to his old post on the left flank.

This new line, which contains but two men who started the game against the Maroons a year ago, and one of these two in a new position, is the chief worry of the Gobbler coaches.

County Champions In Series Tomorrow

The Takoma Tigers and Bowie Motor company Nines are all set for their championship series for the bicounty title beginning tomorrow with a single game on the Silver Spring diamond at 2:30 o'clock. A double-header will be played October 6 on the Bowie diamond beginning at 1:30 o'clock, culminating the series.

Johnny Pope and Lefty Jones are most likely opponents on the mound in tomorrow's opening. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected.

Navy Set for Opener With Denison Today

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27—Denison University gridders, Navy's foe in the inaugural of the 1929 season here, will average 174 pounds, Coach Edson Rupp revealed this afternoon after the Ohioans had completed an hour's drill in signals on Farragut Field, the sward of tomorrow's fracas. Thus, while the middies expect to win by four or five touchdowns, the visitors will at least in size be somewhat in the Tars' class, although Ingram's outfit that starts will tip the beam better than 177.

On the eve of the opening game of a season in which Navy expects to reach its highest pinnacle since 1926 when it gained national laurels, the varsity team has not been picked and, unless the Granville outfit proves stronger than anticipated, Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram will send two and possibly three complete backfield combinations into action. In the final practice, Ingram eased up the work and gave the boys only a passing and kicking drill which was not unwelcome to sore muscles.

BOND LIST REVEALS FURTHER SOFTNESS

Convertible Issues Display Most Depression; Rails Ease Somewhat.

FOREIGN LOANS YIELD

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Bond prices continued soft today. As was natural from the weakness of stocks, convertibles showed the greatest depression, developing net losses of one to more than seven points, although sales at the lower levels were only nominal.

The two communication company debentures led the decline in the stock option department. American Telephone 4½s finished at 211, the lowest of the day and 7½ points below the Thursday close, while International Telephone 4½s showed a seven-point drop. Reading Coal & Iron 6s, which moved against the predominant downward trend earlier in the week, lost three points. American International 5½s, Commercial Investment Trust 5½s, Atchison 4½s, American I. G. Chemical 5½s and the Allegheny Corporation issues sagged 1 to 1½ points. American Natural Gas 6½s, which carry stock purchase warrants, were an exception to the share feature list, advancing 4½ points on small trades.

Rails ruled slightly easier, in contrast to the firmer tone of yesterday, but interest was largely confined to the more speculative issues. Seaboard Air Line and Seaboard All Florida bonds showed pronounced strength, the former advancing from ⅜ to 1½ under the stimulus of good buying. In the higher grade division, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy general 4s went down to equal the low of 88, Erie 4s were close to the year's minimum on a minor recession.

Industrials displayed heaviness, Bethelem Steel 5½s lost half a point, Chile Copper 5s dipped a major fraction and Pressed Steel Car 5s of 1933 lost 2, touching the new low of 83. Oil company bonds were uniformly lower. Union Oil of California 5s, series A, sold off 3 to 96½, a new minimum. Phillips Petroleum 5½s, Pierce Oil 8s and the Sinclair issues yielded fractionally.

There was some selling of foreign bonds which sent British United Kingdom 4s down 1¾ points to the new low of 80 on a minor transaction. Argentine issues eased and several of the utilities in this section finished in lower ground.

Trading in United States Government liberties and treasuries was on a small scale and prices moved irregularly.

Time money was firm and although the official quotation was 9 to 9¼ per cent for all maturities it was reported that no offerings were made below the higher rate.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

CHAMBER TO INVITE BYRD TO MEETING

Governor to Be Asked Views on Proper Approach to Memorial Bridge.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Although work is rapidly nearing completion on the new Memorial Bridge there is still much uncertainty as to when work will be started on adequate approaches from the Virginia side. The executive committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce launched into a general discussion of the subject when in session yesterday.

Executive Secretary P. P. Woodbridge said the committee recognized the apparent lack of information as to what is being accomplished toward obtaining the needed rights of way for the proposed Lee boulevard, the straight-to-the-bridge route. It was decided to invite Gov. Harry F. Byrd to attend the quarterly meeting to be held at the Washington-Lee High School Wednesday night, October 16, at which time the matter can be fully discussed.

There is a possibility that the routes as now surveyed may have to be changed, due to the fact that the State can not spend funds for road construction over a road not in its highway system, this also applies to the Federal Government, and it is considered most necessary that the matter be discussed with State officials.

A special committee composed of the president, Keith A. Brumback, Harry K. Green and Guy N. Church will go to Richmond Monday and extend the invitation to Gov. Byrd in person.

Secretary Woodbridge stated last night that the question of an approach to the Memorial Bridge will be one of the principal matters to be discussed at the quarterly meeting. Among other questions to come before the meeting will be the report of Henry C. Morris, chairman of the special committee having in charge the arrangements for the industrial survey, which will be made during the month of October by representatives from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute with the cooperation of Allen J. Saville, of Richmond, zoning engineer. Reports will also be received from other standing committees showing the progress which has been made by the organization during the past year.

Supporting the zoning commission in its recent action in refusing the application of the Sun Oil Co., of Philadelphia, for a permit to establish a storage and distribution plant along the Lee highway and extending to the Potomac River on Mackey's Hill at Rosslyn, the following resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce was made public yesterday:

"There being some reasonable doubt as to the economic suitability of the proposed location of the Sun Oil Co.'s plant at Rosslyn to that type of industry, and the county board of supervisors having employed a competent zoning engineer, Allan J. Saville, of Richmond, to advise the commission and the people of the county, the board of directors goes on record as expressing its confidence in the integrity and judgment of the zoning commission on this subject."

The Arlington County Zoning Commission at its meeting held last night at the courthouse received recommendations from County Engineer C. L. Kinnier that a set-back of 10 feet be required on Myers street and Donaldson avenue in Cherrydale in the construction of the theater, for which a permit application was submitted by Joseph C. Boss. This brought forth strong objections from Mr. Boss.

Terming the recommendations of the county engineer "unreasonable," Boss declared: "I am a poor man and can not afford to give away land as you are requesting me to do.

"This building will cost me $35,000 if I am permitted to erect it and I am now asked to give away more than 3,000 feet of most valuable land," he said.

"Had I known that such a request would be made by this commission I would have thought a long time before purchasing the land. No such notice was ever sent me that there would be such a setback required. I am willing to give 5 feet," Boss said.

In explaining his reason for recommending a setback of 10 feet Engineer Kinnier stated that consideration for the future developments must be given. The two streets in question are now only 30 feet wide and some provisions for wider streets should be given.

The commission voted to delay action on the application for another week.

Merchants, with the cooperation of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, are planning to organize a Clarendon Retail Merchants Association, according to an announcement made last night by P. P. Woodbridge, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce.

A special meeting of all the merchants in Clarendon has been called for Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the rooms of the chamber of commerce in the Reese Building. At this meeting it is hoped to perfect the organization.

One of its first activities will be to promote a gala night in Clarendon to celebrate the opening of the new building and the completion of the first section of the boulevard through the business district.

The date of the celebration will be determined following a conference with county officials.

HARD WORK IS REMEDY

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 27.—Despite the modern influence of "luxury and self-indulgence," America's future is "safe in the hands of each succeeding generation," and the young people of our schools and colleges are the hope of the Nation, Dr. Paul H. Bowman, president of Bridgewater College, today declared in the convocation address at exercises which marked the formal opening of the twenty-first session of the Harrisonburg State Teachers College here.

Discovery and invention, pointed out Dr. Bowman, have transformed American life. The life of "comfort and ease" of today was made possible by our hardy forefathers, he asserted, but "the wholesome gospel of hard work" remains dominant in America, he added.

President Samuel P. Duke announced that the State Teachers College here this year has more students from other States enrolled than ever before. In the student body of 700 young women are represented thirteen States in addition to Virginia and Cuba. Dr. Duke also announced that the Teachers College, in cooperation with the University of Virginia, this year, for the first time, is conducting extension classes at Winchester, Purcellville, Woodstock, Front Royal, Luray and Shenandoah.

Leesburg Rotary Scores High Again

Luncheon Club Holds 102d Consecutive 100 Per Cent Attendance Meet.

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 27.—The Leesburg Rotary Club held its 102d consecutive 100-per-cent-attendance meeting yesterday at the Leesburg Inn, and heard addresses from Dr. H. C. Littlejohn and Coleman C. Gore.

Dr. Littlejohn spoke on the subject of Rotary work among boys, in the course of which he stressed the value of education from an economic standpoint, quoting figures to show the comparatively superior earning capacity of high school and college graduates to that of others. Mr. Gore discussed the question of "International Service," calling attention to the possibilities for usefulness in promoting international good will which Rotary Clubs are utilizing.

Much interest is being manifested in preparations for the banquet to be held in the Leesburg High School auditorium Friday evening, October 11, when Eugene Newsom, president of Rotary International, and other distinguished visitors will speak.

Other officers are Hilda Crabill, vice president; Elizabeth Hatsell, secretary-treasurer, and Margaret Butler, historian.

Filling the auditorium of the Robert E. Lee Schoolhouse to its capacity, the teachers were given a rousing reception by the Parent-Taecher Associations last night.

State Senator Frank L. Ball, the principal speaker, welcomed the teachers to the county and assured them that they need not fear lack of cooperation when surrounded by such an active Parent-Teacher Association. Senator Ball briefly discussed the Constitution and stressed the value of a thorough understanding of it.

Other speakers were Thomas J. DeLashmutt, chairman of the county school board, and Maj. E. W. Cushing, member of the board from Washington District, both of whom expressed their appreciation of the cooperation given by the association. The program included solos by Mrs. Edna Croson, Miss Lillian Tomley and Mrs. Louise Wilson. Mrs. Herbert Marcey, president, presided.

Between 400 and 500 motorists parked for a considerable distance along Wilson Boulevard and Clements avenue in Arlington County near their intersection last night to view at a distance a celebration of the Ku Klux Klan held on property of the organization skirting the two thoroughfares.

The event was marked by a concert of the Ballston Independent Band and by an initiation which could not be seen from the roads. Many were attracted to the scene by the large electrically-lighted cross set up in the field.

FAIRFAX COUNTY'S HEALTH HEAD QUITS

MASH IN AUTO IS SEIZED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

The State Board of Health has accepted the resignation of Dr. Harry Walker, Fairfax County health officer, effective October 5. Dr. Walker took the position of health officer here last August, when Fairfax County began its health unit work. He plans to return to Richmond as an interne.

Assistant Commissioner Roy K. Flannagan has announced that the State Board of Health has selected Dr. R. E. Feagans, of Lynchburg, as his successor. His appointment is subject to the approval of the Fairfax County Board of Health.

Commissioner Flannagan and Dr. Feagans will be in Fairfax next Wednesday to confer with the county board. The members of this board are Dr. C. A. Ransom, Dr. W. P. Caton, Dr. F. M. Brooks, F. W. Richardson and Pierce Reid.

Dr. Feagan has lived in Bedford County, is a graduate of the University of Virginia, 1925, and since his graduation has been practicing in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Until recently, when he practiced in the health units of this state.

Bernard Cleveland and John Hill, alias John Blanchard, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dick Wheeler late Thursday evening at Baileys Cross Roads on a charge of transporting mash.

Deputy Wheeler was standing in front of a store at Baileys Cross Roads when he noticed a large touring car, the rear seat of which was covered with a tarpaulin. His suspicion was aroused when one of the bystanders remarked that the car had passed several times that day and each time appeared to be carrying a heavy load.

Wheeler followed the car and overtook it at the home of Cleveland, where he arrested two of the occupants. The third escaped by running into the woods.

The two men were taken before Justice of Peace Dowden at Baileys Cross Roads and were held for action of the grand jury.

Aaron B. Garrett, of Alexandria, was arrested in Fairfax yesterday by County Engineer F. N. Larkin on a charge of being drunk. He was arrested after complaint was made by Charles Smith, who said that Garrett was blocking the Chain Bridge road and would allow no one to pass. Garrett was taken before Mayor Thomas P. Chapman and was fined $20 and costs.

The road in front of the Fairfax Courthouse was the scene of an accident yesterday, when an automobile driven by L. S. Updike, of Harrison, Va., ran into the car of M. S. Keilscarde. Updike was arrested by County Engineer F. N. Larkin and Capt. Heywood Durrer and taken before Mayor Chapman on a charge of reckless driving and colliding. He was fined $20 and costs and paid for the damage to Keilscarde's car, which amounted to $42.

Charles E. Beans, of Herndon, was arrested late Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockrill for driving while drunk and transporting liquor. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Williams, who ordered him held for action of the grand jury.

The failure of Joseph Wells, colored, of Balls Hill, to take advantage of a trade resulted in his imprisonment yesterday for two years in the State Penitentiary on a charge of operating a still.

Wilson Farr, Commonwealth attorney, is said to have offered to recommend that Wells be given a $500 fine and four months in jail if he would plead guilty to the charge. Wells replied that he would agree on condition that the Commonwealth attorney order the return of 400 pounds of sugar that had been seized during the raid on his place several months ago. Otherwise, he wanted a trial by jury.

The defendant got the latter and subsequently one of the severest penalties for liquor manufacture in the history of Fairfax County.

SCHOOL SITE VOTED IN PRINCE GEORGES

Offer of $850 an Acre for Middle Location Is Approved by Board.

BOND ISSUE IS HELD UP

Several important matters, among them the location of the Bradbury Heights School, were acted upon at a special meeting of the Board of Education of Prince Georges County yesterday at the board offices in Upper Marlboro.

The board voted to accept the offer of the middle site, which has been approved by both factions, of $850 an acre. This offer was made at the regular meeting of the board by Mrs. Mary Riley, owner of the property. The citizens of Bradbury Heights were anxious to have the school located on the side of the Riley property closest to their community. The citizens of Greater Capitol Heights who also will be served by the school were equally as anxious to have the school located on their side.

The site in the middle of the tract was equi-distant and satisfactory to both sides, but the members of the board believed the price asked was too high. Mrs. Riley offered at the last meeting to sell the five acres at $850 an acre. The board at first was considering condemnation proceedings but after it was learned that Mrs. Riley was willing to dedicate a right of way to the Marlboro pike and to Bradbury, and the approval of the site by the building committee, the board voted to accept the offer.

The board also acted upon the school construction program bonds which were authorized at the last session of the State Legislature. It was decided to hold the bonds until January, when the bond market is expected to improve. In the meantime, Assistant Superintendent of Schools J. A. Miller will continue to make preparations for the advertising of specifications for bids on the work in February.

The money to be realized from the bond issue is to care for the construction of an addition to the Riverdale Elementary School at a cost of $30,000; an addition to the Hyattsville Elementary at $18,000; construction of the Decatur Heights Junior High School at a cost of $50,000; construction of the Mount Rainier High School at a cost of $90,000; construction of the Bradbury Heights Elementary School at a cost of $50,000, including the cost of the land, and an addition to the Cheverly School at a cost of $13,000.

The board ordered the school at Hall's Station closed because of the small attendance and contracted with Eugene Sweeney for transportation of the children attending that school to the Mitchellville School. An additional teacher was authorized for the Cheverly-Tuxedo School, provided the citizens of the community provide temporary quarters for the class pending the construction of an addition.

Additional teachers were authorized for the Brentwood and Bladensburg Schools provided the enrollment records of October 1 justify the appointments. Removal of one teacher from Takoma Park was ordered unless the October 1 enrollment shows an increase sufficient to warrant retention of the teacher. Henry McPherson was appointed a trustee of the Woodville School.

L. B. Howland, principal of the Laurel School, was given permission by the board to use the school building for night school, at which students will pay tuition.

The Riverdale School building committee will meet within a few days to discuss plans for the erection of the addition to the school authorized by the school budget, it was reported to the board. The members of this committee are Brice Bowie, E. B. Dunford, M. D. Campbell, R. P. Caruthers, J. H. Baines, J. McDonald, Mrs. Bernice Saulsbury, Dr. C. A. Cary and Edward F. Glading.

Edward B. Moore, a Washington taxicab driver, was fined $100 yesterday in Upper Marlboro branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. He was found guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and reckless driving. Judge J. Chew Sheriff also imposed a fine of $1 in the reckless driving charge.

First-Degree Verdict Will Be Asked in Maryland Deputy's Slaying.

TWO MEN ARE ACCUSED

Frederick, Md., Sept. 27.—State's Attorney William M. Storm said today he will ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree at the trial of Charles Lewis, of near Thurmont, and Leslie Clark, of near Hagerstown, indicted for killing Deputy Sheriff Clyde L. Hauver, during a raid on a still at Catoctin Mountain, near Thurmont, July 31. The trial has been set for October 28.

This case has been deferred at the request of both sides to give them more time to complete their evidence. Lewis will be represented by his uncle, Samuel A. Lewis, former State's attorney, and Clark has retained Alban M. Wood. William Miller, Russell Clark, Lloyd Lewis, Floyd Williams, Norris Cark and Paul Williams, arrested in connection with the raid and afterward released in bail, were indicted for the manufacture of liquor for sale.

Twenty-two prisoners were arraigned today on charges ranging from theft to murder. They included Daisy Emory, alias Dora Ramsburg, charged with forging a check for $35, who pleaded not guilty. She said that her father is in California and that she is without means of employing counsel. The court appointed Walter E. Sinn to defend her.

R. L. Yinger, this city, pleaded not guilty to passing a fraudulent check. His trial was set for Monday. Others who will be tried are Clyde Ramsburg, charged with forgery; Meredith Morgan and Charles Crummitt, indicted for the theft of merchandise and an automobile; Joseph Wallace and Keefer Redmond, charged with robbing the store of Dr. Harry E. Steiner. Trials of the four latter are set for Tuesday.

Maurice Roderick, indicted for assault on two girls, pleaded not guilty and will be tried Wednesday.

The grand jury returned eighty indictments. No indictment was returned against Osby McAfee, who, with Lewis and Clark was held without bail in connection with the shooting of Deputy Hauver.

Jury Upholds Will Of Mrs. Marchant

Distribution of $50,000 Estate Is Upheld in Litigation.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 27.—After a trial lasting for three days, a jury in the Corporation Court, with Judge A. D. Dabney presiding, returned a verdict sustaining the will of Mrs. Fanny Bragg Marchant, which left the bulk of her estate to the University of Virginia. The jury was out only five minutes.

Mrs. Marchant, widow of Capt. H. Clay Marchant, for years president of the Charlottesville Woolen Mills, died in Richmond, Va., in July, 1926. The will, admitted to probate here the same month, disposed of an estate valued at approximately $50,000.

In July, 1928, suit was instituted by R. E. Bragg, a distant relative of the decedent, and numerous others, about 24 in number, in the Corporation Court here to impeach the will. The executor, W. Allan Perkins, the University of Virginia and other defendants were represented by Murray M. McGuire of the Richmond bar, with whom was associated John S. Battle, of the firm of Perkins & Battle, this city.

CARSON ANSWERS BROWN'S CHARGES

Address at Roanoke Full of "Misstatements" on Park, He Declares.

DENIES $110,000 SPENT

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Sept. 27.—It cost only $20,156 to collect the $1,000,000 in Shenandoah National Park pledges, and not $110,000 to collect a $135,000 portion of the pledges, as charged by Dr. William Moseley Brown, and the park will cost $5,000,000 less than the amount Brown cited in his Roanoke speech last night, William E. Carson, chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission, declared today. The criticism of the project by the coalition candidate for governor was full of "errors and misstatements," Carson said.

The $110,000 which Brown charged was spent in collecting the park pledges was expended by the Shenandoah National Park Association, a voluntary organization formed to present the park project to the Virginia people and to organize the campaign for raising funds to buy the mountain land, Mr. Carson stated, and was spent for promotion and educational work before the State Conservation Commission took hold of the park movement. Its expenditure, he added, was under the direction of a body of patriotic men working for nothing, two of whom were Col. Howard J. Benchoff, of Woodstock, a leading valley Republican, and R. H. Angell, of Roanoke, State Republican chairman.

"Instead of making any personal investigation of the facts on which he based his charges," said Chairman Carson, "Prof. Brown seems to have relied altogether upon a newspaper article without verifying the facts.

Only 2½ Per Cent Spent.

"As a matter of fact and as shown by the records and public audit, only $26,156 was expended by the State commission in the collection of the 22,000 park pledges, amounting to approximately $1,000,000, the truth being it cost the State Conservation Commission only 2½ per cent to collect the pledges. The $110,000 to which Prof. Brown refers all went for promotional and educational work by the Shenandoah National Park Association, the private corporation, which started the park project before it became a State project and sold the idea to the people of Virginia and the United States and carried on a long and arduous campaign to secure pledges of support.

"Another egregious blunder in Prof. Brown's attack was the statement that it had developed that the cost of acquiring the park lands will run into the immense sum of ten or twelve million dollars. It is true enough that some estimates of the cost of acquiring the park area as originally proposed ran up as high as $19,000,000. But if Prof. Brown had followed the reports and if he had kept up with public affairs of the State he could not fail to know that when the park project was taken over by the State authorities the conservation commission made a careful investigation of the proposed boundary lines and then made a new survey which cut down the area from 387,000 acres to 327,000 acres, excluding most of the valuable orchards, farm lands and residences in the lowlands of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and thus reduced the estimated cost of the park area not less than $5,000,000.

Authorized by Congress.

"Prof. Brown is evidently not aware that an act of Congress was passed two years ago, confirming and approving the action by the State authorities, or he would not have made a mistake of $5,000,000, more or less, by using estimates of the value of the park area as originally proposed instead of the present estimates."

Mr. Carson then declared that Prof. Brown was "wholly misinformed" about the suits against approximately 4,000 subscribers to the park fund. The facts are, said Carson, that of the $1,000,000 park pledges there remained uncollected about $61,000 pledged by about 4,000 small contributors. The conservation commission being unable to collect these pledges it, in accordance to the park law, turned them over to the attorney general, who acts for the commission in such matters.

The attorney general and the commission realize, Mr. Carson said, that only a small part of the balance is collectible and that many of the small subscribers are unable to pay. There is no intention, he said, to file 4,000 suits, although it is planned to sue about 50 subscribers, known to be able to pay, and who have not paid.

2,000 Persons See Frederick Show

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 27.—About 2,000 persons attended the annual fashion and business show sponsored by the Kiwanis Club in the interest of crippled and underprivileged children at the State armory tonight. It was the final day of the exhibit, and was designed as aviation night in acknowledgement of the municipal airport established on the route of the air mail line between Washington and Pittsburgh.

A large plane flown by Pilot A. B. Harris arrived at the airport this morning and made a number of flights with those connected with the show. One of the features of the exhibit was a demonstration by George Twyford, an electrical engineer. Willie Wentworth, champion pole setter of Baltimore, attended the show and occupied a platform at the top of a 20-foot pole on the stage for three hours.

The show began Tuesday and was attended during the week by approximately 12,000 persons. Business houses and industrial plants exhibited their products in booths arranged the length of the big drill shed of the armory. A special feature in addition to a fancy dress review was given each night.

SMOKING MINISTER FORCED TO GIVE UP

Rev. Mr. Craver "Swears Off" Weed and Is Passed to Deaconate.

BISHOP WARNS OF DUTY

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 27.—Advancement of fifteen licensed preachers to the deaconate and election of clerical and lay delegates to the general conference at Dallas, Tex., marked the third day's session of the 145th Baltimore annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South here today.

The Rev. Harry Wallace Craver, of Augusta, W. Va., whose use of tobacco was a matter of animated discussion in the conference yesterday, was in the class that was passed to the deaconate. The committee on admissions would not recommend his advancement in its report yesterday because, it was claimed, he refused to promise to refrain from smoking in private. The matter was sent back to the committee and was not reported on the floor of the conference today. Mr. Craver presented himself with the other candidates. The incident closed with his signing a pledge to abstain from the use of tobacco, according to the official spokesman for the conference.

Bishop Defines Duties.

The others passed to the deaconate were Mack Thomson, Levels, W. Va.; William P. Sanders, Newcastle, Va.; Raymond L. Moore, White Post, Va.; Arthur W. Hinton, Minnehaha Springs, W. Va.; Charles F. Phillips, Gainesville, Va.; John T. Brown, Burlington, W. Va.; Walter D. Sheets, Staunton, Va.; Allen Gillis, Pembroke, Va.; Herman M. Wilson, Gaithersburg, Md.; William F. Hodges, Asbury, W. Va.; Julian E. McDonald, Odenton, Md.; William J. Grosh, Churchville, Va.; Peter C. Helmintoller, jr., Rockville, Md., and George L. Walters, Japan, who was a missionary in that country.

Bishop Denny defined to the class the duties of a preacher as he saw them. He said:

"We don't need you for political campaigners. We preachers are called upon to lead a separate life. We've got to do it." He revealed the possible source of his repugnance for political activity among churchmen when he told how, at his arrival at his first charge, a mountain village, he was at once asked on which side he stood in a local political campaign.

"I could have wrecked that church by taking sides," he declared. "So I did not vote."

"Don't Turn Deputy."

In telling the young men that they must understand their relations in the community and their relative positions with regard to members of the congregations he said: "You don't have to turn deputy sheriff. I have nineteen grandchildren, but I no longer administer personal castigation on them. If I see one of them misbehaving, I allow its mother to attend to that."

"If you go upstairs to your wife's bedroom, you go in without knocking and kiss her. That is your duty and privilege. But if you go across the street it is not your place to do that in that house.

"Are you in debt so as to embarrass you?" was another question, and then Bishop Denny commented: "I am sorry to say that men will forgive you if you get drunk or take another man's wife. But they will not forgive you if you do not pay your debts."

The election of delegates to the general conference resulted so far in naming four of the seven clerical and six of the seven lay delegates after a number of ballots. Those elected are: Clerical, N. B. Harmon, jr., editor of the Baltimore Southern Methodist; H. M. Canter, presiding elder of the Winchester district; H. H. Sherman, Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the general board of education, and J. H. Wells, pastor of Trinity Church, Baltimore; lay, Ben H. Hiner, attorney, Franklin, W. Va.; Daniel C. Roper, Washington, who was United States collector of internal revenue under President Wilson; J. P. Wells, Roanoke, Va.; A. E. Huddleston, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; W. G. Hardy, Winchester, Va., and J. P. Stieff. The balloting will be continued tomorrow.

The board of Christian literature reported the property of the church publishing house was valued at $2,953,834, an increase of $42,785 since last year.

H. L. Houck, Hinton, W. Va., chairman and agent, made the report on group insurance, disclosing that 187 ministers in the conference have taken out $1,000 policies with a prominent insurance company.

The report of the Woman's Missionary Society showed the membership to be 12,787, a gain of 372. The total amount raised was $44,221.

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 27.—The annual Virginia United Brethren conference, in session at the Calvary Church today selected Staunton, Va., as the place of meeting next year. Dr. J. H. Brunk, of Harrisonburg, Va., was reelected conference superintendent and the Rev. U. P. Hovermale, of Dayton, Va., was reelected secretary. The conference charter was adopted and ordered incorporated in the State of Maryland.

VIRGINIA CHEMISTS REVEAL PROGRAM

FUTURE OF AREA IS TOLD

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27 (A.P.).—The Virginia section of the American Chemical Society tonight announced dates and programs of eleven meetings it will sponsor in Virginia this year to help bring about a realization of Virginia's industrial future, and to interest chemical industries of the United States in Virginia as an industrial center.

"The prediction had been made that the James River Valley will become the chemical center of the United States," Edwin Cox, chairman of the Virginia section, said in announcing the program. "If the prediction is to become a realization, the chemists of this section must begin paving the way. By creating centers of pure research we may look to the future chemicalization of the James River Valley with confidence."

The first of the chemical meetings will be held in Richmond October 4, when Dr. Charles Holmes Herty, consulting chemist, specializing in Southern industries, will address a joint meeting of the section and the Richmond Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Herty is advisor of the Chemical Foundation and one of the most noted chemists in the country. He will speak on "The Future of Industrial Chemistry In Virginia."

Joint Meeting Planned.

October 18 is the date for the second meeting, which will be held jointly with the Maryland and Washington (D. C.) divisions. Dr. Irving Langmuir, president of the American Chemical Society, will make the principal address. Two papers will be presented by members of the Virginia section.

Hollins College will be the scene of the third meeting, which will be held November 9, jointly with the Southwest Virginia Chemists Club. Dr. W. G. Guy, of the College of William and Mary, will speak on "Radio Activity."

The remaining meetings, with one exception, are to be held in Richmond. The first of these will be November 15, when Dr. I. A. Updike, of Randolph-Macon College, will speak on "Organic Sulphur Compounds," on the same program with R. B. Arnold, of the Tobacco By-Products & Chemical Corporation, who will discuss "Nicotine as an Insecticide."

Dr. Holm to Speak.

The program of the December 13 meeting will include an address by Dr. George E. Holm, sen
